(Complete Reader’s Theater to April ?, 2000)
Alexander: I went to sleep with gum in my mouth and now there's gum in my hair. And, when I got out of bed this morning, I tripped on the skateboard and, by mistake, dropped my sweater in the sink while the water was running.

Narrator 1: Alexander could tell: it was going to be a terrible, horrible, no good, very bad day.

Narrator 2: At breakfast, Anthony found a Sting Ray Car Kit in his cereal box. Nick found a Junior Undercover Agent code ring in his cereal box, but all Alexander found was....

Alexander: Breakfast cereal. I think I'll move to Australia.

Narrator 3: In the car pool, Mrs. Gibson let Becky have a seat by the window. Audrey and Elliot got seats by the window too.
Alexander: I said I was being scrunched. I said I was being smushed. I said If I don't get a seat by the window I am going to be SICK.

Narrator 3: But no one even answered. Alexander could tell it was going to be a terrible, horrible, no good, very bad day.

Narrator 1: At singing time:

Narrator 2: Alexander, you are singing too loud!

Narrator 3: At counting time:

Narrator 1: Alexander, you skipped sixteen.

Alexander: Aw... who needs sixteen?

Narrator 2: Alexander could tell it was going to be a terrible, horrible, no good, very bad day.

Narrator 3: And do you know what Paul said...?

Narrator 1: Alexander, you're not my best friend anymore. You are my third best friend.

Alexander: On yeah! I hope you sit on a tack. I hope you get a double decker strawberry ice cream cone and the ice cream part falls off the cone part and lands in Australia!
Narrator 2: Philip Parker’s lunch bag had two cupcakes in it. Albert got a Hershey bar with almonds in his lunch bag. Paul got a jelly roll with coconut sprinkles on top.

Alexander: I guess mom forgot to put my dessert in my lunch bag!

Narrator 3: Poor Alexander. It definitely was a terrible, horrible, no good, very bad day.

Narrator 1: After school, Alexander’s mom took Alexander and his brother and sister to the dentist. Dr. Field's only found one cavity... too bad it was in Alexander's tooth!

Narrator 2: Come back next week Alexander and I’ll fix it.

Alexander: Next week... I'm going to Australia!

Narrator 3: Poor Alexander... the elevator closed on his foot, and Anthony made him fall in the mud, AND THEN he cried, AND Nick called him a cry baby.

Narrator 1: Then Alexander punched NICK for calling him a crybaby and mom scolded him for being muddy AND for fighting.

Alexander: I am having a terrible, horrible, no good, very bad day.

Narrator 2: No one even answered!

Alexander: And guess what else... lima beans for dinner!
Narrator 3: Alexander hated lima beans.

Alexander: Kissing on T.V.,

Narrator 1: Alexander hated kissing.

Alexander: My bath was too hot.
I got soap in my eyes.
I lost my marble down the drain AND I had to wear my railroad train pajamas.

Narrator 2: Alexander hates his railroad train pajamas.

Alexander: Nick took back the pillow he gave me.
My night light turned out.
I bit my tongue.

Narrator 3: The cat wanted to sleep with Anthony, not Alexander!

Narrator 1: Alexander had a terrible, horrible, no good, very bad day.

Narrator 2: Alexander’s mom said some days are just like that.

Alexander: Even in Australia!!!

THE END!
Alexander, Who's Not
(Do you hear me? I mean it!)
Going to Move

Written by: Judith Viorst

Adapted for Reader’s Theater
by Jen Lehman

Speakers: Alexander       Mom
           Narrator 1   Narrator 2
           Nick        Anthony
           Dad

Alexander: They can't make me pack my baseball mitt or my “I Love Dinosaurs” sweatshirt or my cowboy boots. They can't make me pack my ice skates, my jeans with eight zippers, my compass, my radio, or my stuffed pig. My dad is packing. My mom is packing. My brothers Nick and Anthony are packing. I am NOT packing. I'm not going to move!
Narrator 1: Alexander's father needed to move to where his new job is which is about a thousand miles away.

Mom: We have to move to where our new house is. That house is a thousand miles away. Right next door to the new house there's a boy who is Anthony's age. Down the street there's a boy the same age as Nick.

Alexander: There's no one next door or down the street or maybe for a thousand miles who is MY age. I'm not...DO YOU HEAR ME? I MEAN IT!... going to move.

Narrator 2: Alexander thinks he will never have a best friend like Paul again. He'll never have a great sitter like Rachel again. Or even a soccer team or a pool again. He's afraid he'll never have kids that know him, except his brothers, and sometimes they don't even want to know him.

Alexander: I am not packing. I'm not going to move.

Nick: You are being a fool. You should get a brain transplant.

Anthony: You're being immature.
Mom & Dad: After a while you will get used to living a thousand miles away!

Narrator: Alexander thought of all the other places he could live so he didn't have to move away.

Alexander: I could maybe stay here and live with the Baldwins. They've got a dog. I always wanted a dog. Or...maybe I could stay here and live with the Rooneys. They've got six girls. They always wanted to have a boy.

Narrator 1: He thought of staying with Mr. and Mrs. Oberdorfer because they always give great treats on Halloween. He also thought of living by himself in a tree house or maybe a tent or even a cave.

Nick: You could live in a zoo with all the other animals.

Anthony: You are being immature!

Dad: You should take a last look at all your special places, Alexander.

Alexander: I am taking a look...but it won't be my last!
Narrator 2: He looked at the Rooney's roof where he once climbed out on but had to wait until the Fire Department came and got him down. Then he looked at Pearson's drug store where his mom once had to pay $80 because Alexander threw a ball in the air and almost caught it. He moved on to the lot next to Albert's house, where he fell and found out he got poison ivy. Then, he looked at his school, where Ms. Knoop, his teacher that he spilled the goldfish bowl on, said she'd miss him.

Alexander: I looked at my special places where a lot of different things happened...not just different bad but different good too!! Like winning the sack race. Like finding the flashlight...

Alexander: Like spitting farther then Jack three times in a row. Like selling so much lemonade that my dad said...

Dad: You will probably have to pay taxes.

Narrator 1: Alexander knew that his dad was joking about having to pay taxes. He only wished he was just making jokes about having to move.

Alexander: I'm not...DO YOU HEAR ME? I MEAN IT!... going to move.
Nick: You are acting like a puke face.

Anthony: You are being immature!

Mom: Say a last good-bye to all your special people, Alexander.

Alexander: I'm saying goodbye...but it won't be my last!

Narrator 2: He said goodbye to all his friends, especially Paul, who was almost like having a third brother, except he doesn't say puke face or immature...

Narrator 1: He said goodbye to his neighbors, especially Swoozie, who was almost like having a dog, except it was the Baldwins not his. He said goodbye to Rachel, who taught him how to stand on his head and whistle with two fingers. He said goodbye to Seymour the cleaners, who even if it's gum wrappers or an old tooth, always saves him the stuff he leaves in his pockets.

Alexander: I said lots of goodbyes to a lot of people and got a lot of hugs and kisses, enough hugs and kisses to last for a person's whole life. I said a lot of goodbyes...except I am staying right here. I'm not going to move!

Narrator 2: Then the movers came to put his bedroom furniture on their truck...
Alexander: Maybe I'll barricade my bedroom door. Then when my dad wants to tie my bicycle to the roof rack on top of the station wagon, maybe I'll lock up my bike and bury the key.

Narrator 1: Alexander thought...

Mom: Finish packing up, it's time for us to get going!

Alexander: Maybe she'll look around and she won't see me! I know places to hide where they'd never find me. Like behind the racks of clothes at Seymour the cleaners. Like underneath the piano in Eddie's basement. Like inside the pickle barrel at Friendly's market. Or maybe I could hide in the weeds in the lot next to Albert's house, now that I know how to tell which is poison ivy. I'd rather have poison ivy than have to move.

Dad: It might take a while but you'll find a new soccer team. It might take a while but you'll find boys your age. Sometimes, when a person moves away, his father may need to get him a dog to be his friend until he makes some people friends...

Dad: Swoozie Two would be a good name... don't you think Alexander?
Mom: It might take a while but we'll find a great sitter. And we'll find a cleaners who will even save gum wrappers and old teeth. Sometimes, when a person moves away, his mother might let him call his best friend long-distance.

Alexander: I already know the telephone number by heart.

Narrator 2: He thought... Paul gave him his baseball cap. Rachel gave him a backpack that glows in the dark. Mr. and Mrs. Oberdorfer gave them treats to eat for a thousand miles.

Nick: Alexander, if you are ever lonesome in your new room all by yourself, I might let you sleep with me for a little while.

Anthony: Nick, YOU are being immature.

Alexander: My dad is packing. My mom is packing. My brothers Nick and Anthony are packing. I don't like it but I am packing too. They better not try to move anymore when we get to where we are going to go.

ALEXANDER, WHO USED TO BE RICH LAST SUNDAY

by: Judith Viorst
Adapted by James Servis

CAST:

Narrator 1  Narrator 4
Narrator 2  Narrator 5
Narrator 3

Narrator 1: It isn’t fair that my brother Anthony has two dollars and three quarters and one dime and seven nickels and eighteen pennies.

Narrator 2: It isn’t fair that my brother Nicholas has one dollar and two quarters and five dimes and five nickels and thirteen pennies.

Narrator 3: It isn’t fair because what I’ve got is...bus tokens.

Narrator 4: And most of the time what I’ve mostly got is...bus tokens.
Narrator 5: And even when I’m very rich, I know that pretty soon what I’ll have is...bus tokens. I know because I used to be rich...last Sunday.

Narrator 1: Last Sunday Grandma Betty and Grandpa Louie came to visit from New Jersey. They brought lox because my father likes to eat lox. They brought plants because my mother likes to grow plants.

Narrator 2: They brought a dollar for me and a dollar for Nick and a dollar for Anthony because...Mom says it isn’t nice to say this...we like money.

Narrator 3: A lot! Especially me! My father told me to put the dollar away to pay for college.

Narrator 4: He was kidding.

Narrator 5: Anthony told me to use the dollar to go downtown to a store and buy a new face. Anthony stinks!

Narrator 1: Nicky said to take the dollar and bury it in the garden and in a week a dollar tree would grow. Ha, ha, ha!

Narrator 2: Mom said if I really want to buy a walkie-talkie, save my money. Saving money is hard!
Narrator 3: Because last Sunday when I used to be rich, I went to Pearson’s Drug Store and got bubble gum. And after the gum stopped tasting good, I got more gum. And after that gum stopped tasting good, I got more gum. And even though I told my friend David I’d sell him all the gum in my mouth for a nickel, he still wouldn’t buy it.

Narrator 4: Good-bye...fifteen cents.

Narrator 5: Last Sunday, when I used to be rich, I bet that I could hold my breath till 300. Anthony won. I bet that I could jump from the top of the stoop and land on my feet. Nicky won.

Narrator 1: I bet that I could hide this purple marble in my hand and my mom would never guess which hand I was hiding it in. I didn’t know that moms made children pay.

Narrator 2: Good-bye...another fifteen cents.

Narrator 3: I absolutely was saving the rest of my money. I positively was saving the rest of my money. Except that Eddie called me up and said that he would rent me his snake for an hour. I always wanted to rent his snake for an hour.

Narrator 4: Good-bye...twelve cents.
Narrator 5: Last Sunday, when I used to be rich, by accident I flushed three cents down the toilet. A nickel fell through a crack when I walked on my hands. I tried to get my nickel out with a butter knife and also my mother’s scissors.

Narrator 1: Good-bye...eight cents.

Narrator 2: And the butter knife.

Narrator 3: And the scissors.

Narrator 4: Last Sunday, when I used to be rich, I found this chocolate candy bar just sitting there. I rescued it from being melted or smashed. Except the way I rescued it from being melted or smashed was that I ate it. How was I supposed to know it was Anthony’s?

Narrator 5: Good-bye...eleven cents.

Narrator 1: I absolutely was saving the rest of my money. I positively was saving the rest of my money. But then Nick did a magic trick that made my pennies vanish in thin air...the trick to bring them back he hasn’t learned yet.

Narrator 2: Good-bye...four cents.
Narrator 3: Last Sunday, when I used to be rich, Cathy around the corner had a garage sale. I positively only went to look. I looked at a half melted candle. I needed that candle. I looked at a bear with one eye. I needed that bear. I looked at a deck of cards that was perfect except for no seven of clubs and no two of diamonds. I didn’t need that seven or that two.

Narrator 4: Good-bye...twenty cents.

Narrator 5: I absolutely was saving the rest of my money. I positively was saving the rest of my money. I absolutely positively was saving the rest of my money. Except I needed to get some money to save.

Narrator 1: I tried to make a tooth fall out...I could put it under my pillow and get a quarter. No loose teeth.

Narrator 2: I brought some non-returnable bottles down to Friendly’s Market. Friendly’s Market wasn’t very friendly.

Narrator 3: I told my grandma and grandpa to come back soon.
Narrator 4: Last Sunday, when I used to be rich, I used to have a dollar. I do not have a dollar any more. I’ve got this dopey deck of cards. I’ve got this one-eyed bear. I’ve got this melted candle.

ALL: And...some bus tokens!

THE END!
More than anything in the world, Ben wanted a pet that would be his friend. First, he asked his mother about a dog. A little brown dog with floppy ears and a wagging tail. But his mother said,

I'm sorry, Ben, but dogs are too much trouble. They tear up the furniture. They bark at the neighbors. And you have to walk them everyday.

So he asked his father about a cat. Just a small, purring cat with soft, soft fur. But his father said,

Oh, dear, Ben. Cats are terrible! They scratch and bite and they steal food from the refrigerator. I'm sorry but we just can't have a cat.
A few days later, Ben had an idea.

Ben: How about a monkey?

he asked his mother.

Ben: A small, funny monkey to play with me all day long.

But his mother said,

Mom: A monkey! Don't be silly, Ben! Monkeys are dirty and messy, and they have fleas. We most certainly cannot have a monkey!

Then Ben had another idea.

Ben: Could we get a parrot?

he asked his father.

Ben: Parrots don't have fleas, they don't steal food, and you don't have to take them out for walks. A nice blue and yellow parrot could talk to me all day long.

But his father said,

Dad: No parrots! They screech and squawk and say terrible things!

The next morning, Ben had another idea.

Ben: A hamster in a cage!

he called to his mother.
Ben: A hamster is quiet and small.
And I could take care of it all by myself.

Narr: But his mother said,

Mom: Hamsters smell and they do nothing but sleep all day.
I don't like hamsters at all!

Narr: Ben decided he would think of something else .... something very, very small.
But the next day, Ben couldn't get out of bed.
His head hurt.
His throat hurt.
His stomach hurt.

Doctor: It's a bug,

Narr: declared the doctor.

Ben: Maybe it's come to keep me company.

Narr: Ben giggled.

Ben: When I grow up...

Narr: Ben decided.

Ben: ...things will be different.
I'll have all the pets I want.
I'll have a friendly old turtle and big fuzzy spiders that hang from the ceiling.
I'll keep a parrot in my closet, a hippo in the bathtub, and a giant snake will keep me company on the sofa.
The next morning Ben felt a little better. But he couldn't think of any new ideas.

I'll never have a pet...

...he sighed. And he felt all alone. Until he heard a noise outside his window. Coo, Coo, coo. On the windowsill was a big blue and gray pigeon. It hopped along the sill, turned, and hopped back again. It blinked and looked right at Ben. And then it flew away.

I have an idea, said Ben. And he asked his mother for some bread crumbs.

I think...

Ben said,

I've finally found a friend.

And then he smiled and crawled back into bed.

Tex  (Enters dragging left foot, holds right arm above head, jokingly) Come on guys, this house is great! If there were such things as monsters, and there’s not, this would definitely be the place to find them. Look at this...

Narrator  Sarah, Tony and Tony’s dog, Morris, a huge German shepherd, enter the house.

Sarah  I don’t like this Tex. I don’t like it at all. Something tells me we shouldn’t be here. I like being scared, but this is different.
Tex    Aw, is Sarah too scared?
You’re the one who said it would be cool to check out this house.
It was your idea.

Tony    Sarah’s right, Tex.
Besides, my parents would kill me if they knew I snuck out and came here.
Even Morris seems on edge.

Narrator    There was a deep dark door.
Past the deep dark door was a deep dark staircase.
Past the deep dark staircase was a deep dark basement.
In the deep dark basement was a...

Tex    Hey! This is where that reporter and camera man from “Ghost Sightings” said they saw the one armed brakeman.
(Nervously) I’ll...I’ll tell you what.
We’ll check this out, then go home.
At least we can tell everybody we came down here.

Sarah    You guys saw that reporter! He was terrified! He just sat in the back of that ambulance rocking back and forth, moaning.
I don’t want to be like that.

Tony    (Whispering) Look, Morris won’t even come down here and he’s never been scared of anything.
I’m out of here!
Narrator

As the three begin to approach the stairs, Morris begins to growl and bark. The hair on his back is standing straight up.

Sarah

Uuuugh!!! Look under the stairs. Please tell me this is a joke!!

Tony

Oh my God!! Oh my God!! He’s real!

Narrator

From under the stairs came a red glow of a lantern. The light illuminated the outline of an enormous man with one arm. His face was contorted into a grimace of pain. Fifteen years ago Mike Tucker had been working as a brakeman. There had been a horrible accident and all that was found of old Tucker was his left arm.

Tex

He’s got my ankle! He’s got my ank...!

Tony

(Glancing back) Run, Sarah! Tex is gone! We can’t help him!!!

Narrator

Good Morning. This is Channel 8’s Steve Torris with the news. Tex Riggins, a twelve year old boy from Stark County, is missing today after apparently entering an abandoned house on Moss Lane...

The End!
Narrator: Brown Bear, Brown Bear. what do you see?

Brown Bear: I see a red bird looking at me.

Narrator: Red Bird, Red Bird, what do you see?

Red Bird: I see a yellow duck looking at me.

Narrator: Yellow Duck, Yellow Duck, what do you see?
Yellow Duck: I see a green frog looking at me.

Narrator: Green Frog, Green Frog, what do you see?

Green Frog: I see a purple cat looking at me.

Narrator: Purple Cat, Purple Cat, what do you see?

Purple Cat: I see a white dog looking at me.

Narrator: White Dog, White Dog, what do you see?

White Dog: I see a black sheep looking at me.

Narrator: Black Sheep, Black Sheep, what do you see?

Black Sheep: I see a goldfish looking at me.
Narrator: Goldfish, Goldfish, what do you see?

Goldfish: I see a teacher looking at me.

Narrator: Teacher, Teacher, what do you see?

Teacher: I see children looking at me.

Narrator: Children, Children, what do you see?

All!: We see a brown bear, a red bird, a yellow duck, a green frog, a purple cat, a white dog, a black sheep, a goldfish, and a teacher looking at us. That's what we see!

Narrator 1: Bubba and Bumpo were always on the lookout for an easy way to make some money.

Narrator 2: But when they both lost a tooth their mother told them to put the teeth under their pillows for the Tooth Fairy. They had no idea what would happen.

Bubba: "Thithy thuff"

Narrator 1: said Bubba

Bumpo: "Baby thuff"

Narrator 2: said Bumpo

Narrator 1: Much to their surprise, when they awoke, the teeth were gone. And there were silver dollars in their place!

Narrator 1: They both ran to the mirror and counted their teeth.

Bubba: "I have twenty-three"

Narrator 2: said Bubba

Bumpo: "I have twenty-three too"

Narrator 1: said Bumpo

Bubba: "That's FORTY-SIX DOLLARS!"

Bumpo: "Get the hammer"

Bubba: "Wait"

Narrator 2 said Bubba, scratching his crew cut.

Bumpo: "Wait?"

Narrator 1: said Bumpo, scratching his.

Bubba: "How many friends do we have?"

Bumpo: "None"

Bubba: "Okay, how many kids do we know?"

Bumpo: "Lots"

Narrator 2: said Bumpo, beginning to see the light.

Bubba: "They all have teeth!"
Narrator 1: The Bully Brothers gave each other a high five.

Narrator 2: Then they put on their purple leather jackets with the ten-inch fringe, got on their "Li'l Hawg" bikes, and cruised the neighborhood.

Narrator 1: They looked in the mouth of every kid they met.

Narrator 2: They listened...

Narrator 1: They watched...

Narrators 1 & 2: Then they pounced.

Bubba & Bumpo: "What's the matter?"

Narrator 2: they asked Rodney Fish.

Rodney: "My tooth is loose."

Bubba: "Oh my"

Bumpo: "Oh my"

Bubba: "Have some taffy"

Narrator 1: said Bubba, handing him some.

Rodney: "Gee, thankth"

Narrator 2: Rodney bit down.

Narrator 1: Bubba and Bumpo yanked the taffy.
Narrator 2: Out popped Rodney's tooth.

Rodney: "Give me my tooth!"

Bubba: "It's in our taffy"

Narrator 1: said Bubba as they pedaled away.

Narrator 2: That night they put Rodney's tooth under the pillow. And the next morning they found another silver dollar.

Narrator 1: At school they circled the cafeteria on tooth patrol. They found Cynthia Melnick eating applesauce.

Bubba: Loose tooth?

Narrator 2: asked Bubba

Cynthia: "Yeth"

Bumpo: "Too bad you can't eat"

Bubba: "Here, have some bubble gum"

Narrator 1: They each gave Cynthia five pieces.

Narrator 2: She put them in her mouth and chewed.

Bubba: "Lets see you blow a bubble"

Narrator 2: Cynthia blew hard, and in the big bubble was her tooth.
Narrator 1: Bumpo popped the bubble, and Bubba caught the tooth.

Narrator 2: That night it went under the pillow.

Bumpo: The Tooth Fairy's going to get suspicious

Narrator 1: Bubba went to his treasure chest and came back with some black wax.

Bubba: "Put this over your teeth, then it will look like you've lost more."

Narrator 2: As business improved, the row of black wax spread across Bumpo's mouth.

Bubba: "It looks like a black hole in space"

Narrator 1: Soon Bubba had a black hole too. Business was great. But then they got greedy.

Bubba: "Where do people with loose teeth go?"

Bumpo: "To the dentist!"

Narrator 2: So the Bully brothers put on white coats, grabbed a bag of disguise stuff, and pedaled over to Dr. Molar's office.

Narrator 1: They found an empty room. Bumpo lost the toss, so he had to be the nurse. He put on a red wig and went into the waiting room.

Bumpo: (in a disguised voice) "The dentist will see you now"
Narrator 2: He said to the old lady who was sitting there. Mrs. Applegate followed him. She sat down in the chair and took out her false teeth.

Bubba: "Bingo!"

Bumpo: "Bingo!"

Narrator 1: Bumpo grabbed the teeth and ran for the door. Mrs. Applegate screamed as best as she could. In ran Dr. Molar...

Narrator 2: Out the door shot Bubba and Bumpo in their long white coats. Dr. Molar ran after them. Mrs. Applegate ran after Dr. Molar.

Narrator 1: They nearly got away, but at the top of the stairs, Bubba tripped over his white coat, Bumpo tripped over Bubba, Mrs. Applegate's teeth went flying, and the Bully brothers rolled over and over, hitting their teeth on every step all the way downstairs.

Narrator 2: Soon Dr. Molar stood over them.

Dr. Molar: "All right, boys, hand over the teeth!"

Narrator 1: Bubba spit out some teeth in his hand. So did Bumpo.

Dr. Molar: "Not those teeth"
Mrs. Applegate: Theeth teeth!

Narrator 2: Shouted Mrs. Applegate. They were in the potted palm tree.

Narrator 1: As it all turned out, Bubba lost three teeth, Bumpo lost four, and Mrs. Applegate lost five, which had to be replaced.

Narrator 2: The bill came to exactly forty-six dollars. So from then on instead of putting silver dollars under their pillows, the Tooth fairy sent a check to Dr. Molar.

Bubba: "Thith ith not the American way"

Narrator 1: said Bubba, sadly lifting up his pillow, about to hit Bumpo.

Bumpo: "No"

Narrator 1: said Bumpo, hitting Bubba with his.

THE END!
Boy

On the last day of summer, ten hours before fall...
my grandfather took me out to the Wall.
Then he finally said,
with a very sad shake of his very old head,

Grandfather

"As you know, on this side of the Wall we are Yooks.
On the far side of the Wall live the Zooks."
Boy Then my grandfather said,

Grandfather "It's high time that you knew of the terrible thing that Zooks do. In every Zook house and in every Zook town every Zook eats his bread with the butter side down!"

"But we Yooks, as you know, when we breakfast or sup, spread our bread with the butter side up. That's the right honest way!"

Boy Grandpa gritted his teeth.

Grandfather "So you can't trust a Zook who spreads bread beneath! Every Zook must be watched! He has kinks in his soul! That's why, as a youth, I made watching my goal, watching Zook for the Zook-Watching Border Patrol!"

In those days, of course, the Wall wasn't so high and I could look any Zook square in the eye.
If he dared to come close
I could give him a twitch with my tough-tufted prickly Snick-Berry Switch.
For a while that worked fine.
All the Zooks stayed away and our country was safe.

Then one terrible day a very rude
Zook by the name of Van Itch snuck up and slingshotteed my Snick-Berry Switch!
With my broken-off switch,
with my head in shame, to the Chief Yookeroo in great sorrow I came.
But our Leader just smiled.
He said, Chief Yookeroo
"You're not to blame.
And those Zooks will be sorry they started this game.
"We'll dress you right up in a fancier suit!
We'll give you a fancier slingshot to shoot!"

And he ordered the Boys in the Back Room to figger how to build me some sort of triple-sling jigger.
With my Triple-Sling Jigger
I sure felt much better.
I marched to the Wall with great vim and great vigor, right up to Van Itch with my hand on the trigger. "I'll have no more nonsense," I said with a frown, "from Zooks who eat bread with the butter side down!" Van Itch looked quite sickly. He ran off quite quickly. I'm unhappy to say he came back the next day in a spiffy new suit with a big new machine, and he snarled as he said, looking frightfully mean, Van Itch
"You may fling those hard rocks with your Triple-Sling Jigger. But I, also, now have my hand on a trigger! "My wonderful weapon, the Jigger-Rock Snatchem, will fling 'em right back just as quick as we catch 'em. We'll have no more nonsense. We'll take no more gupp from you Yooks who eat bread with the butter side up!"
"I have failed, sir," I sobbed as I made my report to the Chief Yookeroo in the headquarters fort. He just laughed,

"You've done nothing at all of the sort. Our slingshots have failed. That was old-fashioned stuff. Slingshots, dear boy, are not modern enough.

"All we need is some newfangled kind of a gun. My boys in the Back Room have already begun to think up a walloping whizz-zinger one! My Bright Boys are thinking. They're on the right track. They'll think one up quick and we'll send you right back!"

They thought up a great one! They certainly did. They thought up a gun called the Kick-a-Poo Kid which they loaded with powerful Poo-a-Doo Powder and ants' eggs and bees' legs and dried-fried clam chowder. And they carefully trained a real smart dog named Daniel to serve as our country's first gun-toting spaniel. Spaniel, and I marched back towards the Wall with our heads held up high while everyone cheered and their cheers filled the sky:

Everyone

"Fight! Fight for the Butter Side Up! Do or Die!"

Grandfather

Well... We didn't do. And we didn't quite die. But we sure did get worsted poor Daniel and I. Van Itch was there too! And he said, the old pig,

Van Itch

"The Boys in my Back Room invented this rig called the Eight-Nozzled, Elephant-Toted Boom Blitz. It shoots high explosive sour cherry stone pits and will put your dumb Kick-a-Poo Kid on the fritz!"

Grandfather

Poor Daniel and I were scared out of our witz! Once more, by Van Itch I was bested and beat.
Once again I limped home from the Wall in defeat. I dragged and I sagged and my spirits were low, as low as I thought that they ever could go when I heard a Boom-Bah! And a Diddle-dee-dill! And our Butter-Up Band marched up over the hill! The Chief Yookeroo had sent them to meet me along with the Right-Side-Up Song Girls to greet me. They sang:

"Oh, be faithful! Believe in thy butter!"

And they lifted my spirits right out of the gutter!

"My boy, we've just voted and made you a general! You've been promoted. Your pretty new uniform's ready. Get in it!"

The Big War is coming. You're going to begin it! And what's more, this time you are certain to win it.
Chief Yookeroo (continued) "My Boys in the Back Room have finally found how. Just wait till you see what they've puttered up now! In their great new machine you'll fly over that Wall and clobber those Butter-Down Zooks one and all!"

Grandfather Those Boys in the Back Room sure knew how to putter! They made me a thing called the Utterly Sputter and I jumped aboard with my heart aflutter and steered toward the land of the Upside-Down Butter. This machine was so modern, so frightfully new, no one knew quite exactly just what it would do! But it had several faucets that sprinkled Blue Goo which, somehow, would sprinkle the Zook as I flew and gum up that upside-down butter they chew. I was racing pell-mell when I heard a voice yell,

Van Itch "If you sprinkle us Zooks, you'll get sprinkled as well!"

Grandfather Van Itch had a Sputter exactly like mine! And he yelled, Van Itch  "My Blue-Gooer is working just fine! And I'm here to say that if Yooks can goo Zooks, you'd better forget it. 'Cause Zooks can goo Yooks!"

Grandfather  I flew right back home and, as you may have guessed, I was downright despondent, disturbed and depressed. And I saw, just as soon as I stepped back on land, so were all of the girls of the Butter-Up Band. The Chief Drum Majorette, Miz Yookie Ann Sue, said,

Chief Drum Majorette  "That was a pretty sour flight you flew. And the Chief Yookeroo has been looking for you!"

Grandfather  I raced to his office. The place was a sight. The Chief said,

Chief Yookeroo  "Have no fears. Everything is all right. My Bright Back Room Boys have been brighter than bright. They've thought up a gadget that's Newer than New. It is filled with mysterious Moo-Lacka Moo and can blow all those Zooks clear to Salamagoo."
Chief Yookeroo

THEY'VE INVENTED THE BITSY BIG-BOY BOOMEROO!
"You just run to the Wall like a nice little man. Drop this bomb on the Zooks just as fast as you can. I have ordered all Yooks to stay safe underground while the Bitsy Big-Boy Boomeroo is around."

Grandfather

As I raced for that Wall, with the bomb in my hand, I noticed that every last Yook in our land was obeying our Chief Yookeroo's grim command.

Grandfather

They were all bravely marching, with banners aflutter, down hole! For their country! And Right-Side-Up Butter!

Boy

That's when Grandfather found me!

Grandfather

"You should be down a hole! And you're up here instead! But perhaps this is all for the better, somehow. You'll see me make history! RIGHT HERE! AND RIGHT NOW!"
Boy Grandpa leapt up that with a lopulous leap and he cleared his hoarse throat with a bopulous beep. He screamed, Grandfather "Here's the end of that terrible town full of Zooks who eat bread with the butter side down!"

Boy And at that very instant we heard a klupp-klupp of feet on the Wall, and old Van Itch klupped up! The Boys in his Back Room had made him one too! In his fist was another Big-Boy Boomeroo! He yelled,

Van Itch "I'll blow you into pork and wee beans! I'll butter-side up you to small smithe reens!"

Boy "Grandpa!" I shouted. "Be careful! Oh, gee! Who's going to drop it? Will you...? Or will he?"

Grandpa said,

"Be patient. We'll see. We'll see..

has a big, big plan.
Will Thomas go up to the top?
Thomas the Tank Engine comes to a stop.

Look, a tunnel.
A tunnel for me.
A tunnel,
Gordon did not see.
You may be fast
I may be slow.
But I am first.
And you are last.

The Choo-Choo End!
Once upon a time, there was a tiny little chicken whom everyone called Chicken Little. One day, while she was out in the garden (where she had no right to be), a rose leaf fell on her tail. Away she ran in great fright, for she thought the sky was falling. As she ran along she met Henny Penny.

Oh, Henny Penny, the sky is falling!

How do you know that?
Chicken Little
Oh, I saw it with my own eyes; I heard it with my ears; and part of it fell on my tail.

Henny Penny
Let us run and tell the King.

Narrator
So they ran along together until they met Ducky Lucky.

Chicken Little
Oh, Ducky Lucky, the sky is falling!

Ducky Lucky
How do you know that?

Chicken Little
Oh, I saw it with my own eyes, I heard it with my ears; and part of it fell on my tail and we are going to tell the King.

Ducky Lucky
May I go too?

Chicken Little
Oh, yes!

Narrator
And they all ran along together. Presently, they met Goosey Loosey.

Chicken Little
Oh, Goosey Loosey, the sky is falling!

Goosey Loosey
How do you know that?
Chicken Little
Oh, I saw it with my own eyes, I heard it with my ears; and part of it fell on my tail, and we are going to tell the King.

Goosey Loosey
May I go too?

Chicken Little
Oh, yes!

Narrator
And they all ran along together. Presently, they met Turkey Lurkey.

Chicken Little
Oh, Turkey Lurkey, the sky is falling!

Turkey Lurkey
How do you know that?

Chicken Little
Oh, I saw it with my own eyes, I heard it with my ears; and part of it fell on my tail, and we are going to tell the King.

Turkey Lurkey
May I go too?

Chicken Little
Oh, yes!

Narrator
And they all ran along together. Presently, they met Foxy Loxy.
Chicken Little
Oh, Foxy Loxy, the sky is falling!

Foxy Loxy
How do you know that?

Chicken Little
Oh, I saw it with my own eyes, I heard it with my ears; and part of it fell on my tail, and we are going to tell the King.

Foxy Loxy
Come with me and I will show you where the King lives.

Narrator
So Chicken Little, Henny Penny, Ducky Lucky, Goosey Loosey and Turkey Lurkey all followed Foxy Loxy; but Oh! he led them into his den, and they never, never, came out again!

THE END
Nar. 1 I guess you think you know this story. You don’t. The real one’s much more gory. The phony one, the one you know, was cooked up years and years ago, and made to sound all soft and sappy just to keep the children happy.

Nar. 2 Mind you, they got the first bit right, the bit where, in the dead of night, the Ugly Sisters, jewels and all, departed for the Palace Ball.

Nar. 3 While darling little Cinderella was locked up in the slimy cellar, where rats who wanted things to eat began to nibble at her feet.
Nar. 4  She bellowed, “Help!” and “Let me out!”
The Magic Fairy heard her shout.
Appearing in a blaze of light,
She said, “My dear, are you all right?”

Nar. 1  “All right?” cried Cindy. “Can’t you see
I feel as rotten as can be!”
She beat her fist against the wall,
And shouted, “Get me to the Ball!”
There is a Disco at the Palace!
The rest have gone and I am jalous!
I want a dress! I want a coach!
And earrings and a diamond broach!
And silver slippers, two of those!
And lovely nylon panty hose!
Thereafter it will be a cinch
To hook the handsome Royal Prince!

Nar. 2  The Fairy said, “Hang on a tick.”
She gave her Wand a mighty flick
And quickly, in no time at all,
Cindy was at the Palace Ball!

Nar. 3  It made the Ugly Sisters wince
To see her dancing with the Prince.
She held him very tight and pressed
Herself against his manly chest.

Nar. 4  The Prince himself was turned to pulp,
All he could do was gasp and gulp.

Nar. 1  Then midnight struck. She shouted “Heck!”
I’ve got to run to save my neck!”
Nar. 2  The Prince cried, “No! Alas! Alack!” He grabbed her dress to hold her back.

Nar. 1  As Cindy shouted, “Let me go!” The dress was ripped from head to toe,

Nar. 2  She ran out in her underwear, But lost one slipper on the stair. The Prince was on it like a dart, He pressed it to his pounding heart,

Nar. 3  “This girl this slipper fits,” he cried, “Tomorrow morn shall be my bride! I’ll visit every house in town Until I’ve tracked the maiden down!”

Nar. 4  Then rather carelessly, I fear, He placed it on a crate of beer.

Nar. 2  At once, one of the Ugly Sisters, (The one whose face was blotched with blisters) Sneaked up and grabbed the dainty shoe, And quickly flushed it down the loo.

Nar. 3  Then in its place she calmly put The slipper from her own left foot.

Nar. 4  Ah-ha, you see, the plot grows thicker, And Cindy’s luck start looking sicker.

Nar. 2  Next day, the Prince went charging down To knock on all the doors in town
Nar. 3 In every house, the tension grew. Who was the owner of the shoe?

Nar. 4 The shoe was huge and frightfully wide. (A normal foot got lost inside.)

Nar. 2 Also it smelled a wee bit icky. (The owner’s feet were hot and sticky.)

Nar. 3 Thousands of eager people came To try it on, but all in vain.

Nar. 4 Now came the Ugly Sisters’ go. One tried it on. The Prince screamed “No!”

Nar. 2 But she screamed “Yes! It fits! Whoopee! So now you’ve got to marry me!”

Nar. 3 The Prince went white from ear to ear. He muttered, “Let’s get out of here.”

Nar. 4 “Oh no you don’t! You’ve made a vow! There’s no way you can back out now!”

Nar. 2 “Off with her head!” the Prince roared back. They chopped it off with one big whack.

Nar. 3 This pleased the Prince. He smiled and said, “She’s prettier without her head.”

Nar. 4 Then up came Sister Number Two, Who yelled, “Now I will try the shoe!”

Nar. 2 “Try this instead!” the Prince yelled back. He swung his trusty sword and smack!
Her head went crashing to the ground. It bounced a bit and rolled around.

In the kitchen, peeling spuds, Cinderella heard the thuds Of bouncing heads upon the floor, And poked her own head round the door.

“What’s all the racket?” Cindy cried.

“Mind your own bizz,” the Prince replied.

Poor Cindy’s heart was torn to shreds. My Prince!, she thought. He chops off heads! How could I marry anyone Who does that sort of thing for fun?

Just then, all in a blaze of light, The Magic Fairy hove in sight, Her Magic Wand went swoosh and swish!

“Cindy!” she cried, “Come make a wish! Wish anything and have no doubt That I will make it come about!”

Cindy answered, “Oh kind Fairy, This time I shall be more wary. No more Princes, no more money. I have had my taste of honey. I’m wishing for a decent man. They’re hard to find. D’you think you can?

Within a minute, Cinderella
Was married to a lovely feller,

Nar. 3 A simple jam-maker by trade, Who sold good homemade marmalade.

Nar. 4 Their house was filled with smiles and laughter And they were happy ever after.

THE END
Narrator 1: It's hard to believe such a thing could be true. And I hope such a thing never happens to you. But it happened, they say, to poor Mayzie McGrew. And it happened like this....
Narrator 2: She was sitting one day, at her desk, in her school, in her usual way, when she felt a small twitch on the top of her head. So Mayzie looked up. And almost dropped dead. Something peculiar was going on there...

Narrator 3: A daisy was sprouting right out of her hair! Behind her was sitting young Herman (Butch) Stroodel.

Butch: This looks like a daisy up here on her noodle! It doesn't make sense! Why it couldn't be so! A noodles no place for a daisy to grow!

Narrator 1: Then up spoke another boy, Einstein Van Tass, the brightest young man in the whole of the class.

Einstein: It's a very odd place to be sprouting a daisy. But nevertheless, one is growing on Mayzie!
Butch: This looks like a daisy up here on her noodle! It doesn’t make sense! Why, it couldn’t be so! A noodles no place for a daisy to grow!

Narrator 1: Then up spoke another boy, Einstein Van Tass, the brightest young man in the whole of the class.

Einstein: It’s a very odd place to be sprouting a daisy. But nevertheless, one is growing on Mayzie!

Butch: Hey! Look it, right here in this room! Daisy-Head Mayzie! She is bursting in bloom.

Narrator 2: Miss Sneetcher, the teacher, came rushing up quick.

Miss Sneetcher: Such nonsense! Some child here is playing a trick! Which one of you boys stuck that thing in her hair? You know that a daisy could never grow there!
Butch: But Teacher, I saw the thing rise right out of her head with my very own eyes. Just give it a yank if you think I tell lies!

Narrator 3: But Miss Sneetcher had heard quite enough of this talk.

Miss Sneetcher: Mayzie! Hold Still! Let me get at that stalk!

Mayzie: OUCH!

Butch: Quit yanking, you're giving her pains. I'll bet that those roots go way down in her brains!

Narrator 1: The kids in her class started yelling like crazy:

Butch and Einstein: Daisy-Head! Daisy-Head! Daisy-Head Mayzie!

Miss Sneetcher: Children be quiet! Good grief and alas!

Narrator 2: Miss Sneetcher was shocked by the noise in her class.

Miss Sneetcher: I've taught in this room twenty years. Maybe more. But, I've never seen anything like this before! I'll have to report it. You'll have to come to the principal's office and show Mr. Grumm!

Mr. Grumm: My word! It's a genuine daisy! I've seen them quite often in fields growing wild. But never before on the head of a child. Now what in the world ever made this thing sprout? I have no idea. But I'm going to find out Mayzie: Say, look it!

Miss Sneetcher: It's wilting! It's drooping! How wonderful Mayzie! It soon will be dead! You'll get rid of that daisy!

Mr. Grumm: In just a few minutes, our troubles will pass. Take her back to class.
Narrator 1: Then the principal saw a most terrible sight. The daisy was dying and that was all right. But the daisy was part of poor Mayzie McGrew, and Mayzie was starting to wilt away too!

Mr. Grumm: Teacher, you know what I think..! They're both going to die! Hurry! Bring them a drink!

Mr. Grumm: That daisy! That girls the worst problem in town. You take her away and you make her lie down! You lock her up tight in that room down the hall.

Mr. Grumm: There are quite a few numbers that I've got to call! Get Mayzie's parents on the end of the line. I need them here quickly while there is still time!
Narrator 3: Meanwhile, poor Mayzie lay down on a couch, the daisy slumped down on its leaves in a slouch. And the sweet-smelling daisy attracted a swarm of bees. Bees, bees!

Narrator 1: The faster she ran, then faster they flew. So Mayzie kept running. What else could she do? She ran all the way back to school.

Narrator 2: Principal Grumm didn't know what to do.

Mrs. McGrew: My poor little daughter! The daisy! It's true! I'm going to faint!

Narrator 3: cried Mrs. McGrew.

Narrator 1: Then the door opened wide and Finagle the Agent stepped inside.
Agent: I am Finagle the Agent. You've heard of me, I'm sure. Mayzie, you're so special let me shake your hand. Your talent is a wondrous thing-unique in all the land.

Agent: Daisy-Head Mayzie, you've got quite an act! Just stick with me, kid, and sign this contract. Your flower needs to sign too.

Mrs. McGrew: Mayzie! Don't be a fool!

Narrator 3: Daisy-Head fever was gripping the nation. It had quickly become a worldwide sensation!

Narrator 1: Daisy-Head burgers, and Daisy-Head drinks. Daisy-Head stockings, and Daisy-Head sinks. Daisy-Head Buttons, and Daisy-Head bows. Mayzie was famous, the star of her shows.
Narrator 2: But what is money without friends?
A dream had led her far astray.
That was the price she had to pay.
Poor Mayzie said:

Mayzie: I can never go home.
Nobody loves me.

Narrator 3: Nobody loved her...?
Poor Mayzie McGrew!
It's hard to believe such a thing could be true.
And maybe that's why, then, this daisy above, when Mayzie, below, began talking of love....
Well, you know about daisies.
When your love is in doubt, the job of a daisy is, try and find out!

Narrator 1: They love her. They love her not!
They love her. They love her not!
Don't worry Mayzie. They love you!

Mayzie: They love me.
Narrator 2: Well, that's how it happened, the thing went away. And Mayzie McGrew is quite happy today.

Narrator 3: And concerning that daisy... you know that it never grows out of her head ever again! Errr... well, it practically never popped up there again, Excepting, occasionally, just now and then.

Mayzie: And after all.... I'm getting used to it!

Characters:

Mom          Daughter

Mom          How was your class trip to the farm?
Daughter     Oh...boring...kind of dull...until the cow started crying.
Mom          A cow...crying?
Daughter     Yeah, you see, a haystack fell on her.
Mom          But a haystack doesn’t just fall over.
Daughter     It does if a farmer crashes into it with his tractor.
Mom          Oh, come on, a farmer wouldn’t do that.
Daughter: He would if he were too busy yelling at the pigs to get off our school bus.

Mom: What were the pigs doing on the bus?

Daughter: Eating our lunches.

Mom: Why were they eating your lunches?

Daughter: Because we threw their corn at each other, and they didn’t have anything to eat.

Mom: Well, that makes sense, but why were you throwing corn?

Daughter: Because we ran out of eggs.

Mom: Out of eggs? Why were you throwing eggs?

Daughter: Because of the boa constrictor.

Mom: THE BOA CONstrictor!

Daughter: Yeah, Jimmy’s pet boa constrictor. What was Jimmy’s pet boa constrictor doing on the farm?

Mom: You mean he took it into the hen house?
Daughter: Yeah, and the chickens started squawking and flying around.

Mom: Go on, Go on. What happened?

Daughter: Well, one hen got excited and laid an egg, and it landed on Jenny’s head.

Mom: The hen?

Daughter: No, the egg. And it broke-yuckey... all over her hair.

Mom: What did she do?

Daughter: She got mad because she thought Tommy threw it, so she threw one at him.

Mom: What did Tommy do?

Daughter: Oh, he ducked and the egg hit Marriane in the face. So she threw one at Jenny, but she missed and hit Jimmy, who dropped the boa constrictor.

Mom: Oh, and I know, the next thing you knew, everyone was throwing eggs, right?

Daughter: Right.

Mom: And when you ran out of eggs, you threw corn, right?
Daughter: Right again.
Mom: Well, what finally stopped it?
Daughter: Well, we heard the farmer’s wife screaming.
Mom: Why was she screaming?
Daughter: We never found out, because Mrs. Stanley made us get on the bus, and we sort of left in a hurry without the boa constrictor.
Mom: I bet Jimmy was sad because he left his pet boa constrictor.
Daughter: Oh, not really. We left in such a hurry that one of the pigs didn’t get off the bus, so now he’s got a pet pig.
Mom: Boy, that sure sounds like an exciting trip.
Daughter: Yeah, I suppose, if you’re the kind of kid who likes class trips to the farm.

Narrator 2
Narrator 3
Elbert
Elbert's mother
Gardener

NARRATOR 1: One afternoon at an elegant garden party, young Elbert heard a word he had never heard before.

NARRATOR 2: The word floated by like a small storm cloud.

NARRATOR 3: It was ugly and covered with dark, bristly hairs.

NARRATOR 4: With a swift flick of his wrist, Elbert snatched the word from the air and stuffed it into his back pocket.
NARRATOR 1: Forgetting about it, the boy went on his way.

NARRATOR 2: But the word waited patiently.

NARRATOR 3: When Aunt Isabella sang opera in soprano, the word made itself small and flew into Elbert's mouth like a little gnat.

NARRATOR 4: That's when the trouble began.

NARRATOR 1: Chives, the butler, tried to balance too many trays of deviled eggs.

NARRATOR 2: He dropped them all onto Madame Friatta's gown.

NARRATOR 3: Madame Friatta spilled her spritzer on Sir Hilary's bald head.

NARRATOR 4: Sir Hilary threw his croquet mallet up into the air.

NARRATOR 1: Then, with a terrible thud, the mallet landed on Elbert's great toe.

NARRATOR 2: Elbert opened his mouth to scream, but the bad word sprang out, bigger and uglier then before.
NARRATOR 3: Everyone at the party was shocked.

NARRATOR 4: They couldn't believe their ears.

ELBERT'S MOTHER: Come with me, young man!

NARRATOR 1: Elbert's mother said with a frown.

NARRATOR 2: The word made itself small again, about the size of a rat, and followed in the boy's shadow.

NARRATOR 3: In the lavatory Elbert's mother handed him a bar of soap.

ELBERT'S MOTHER: We do not say bad words,

NARRATOR 3: she said.

ELBERT'S MOTHER: Clean it out of your mouth, and never use it again!

NARRATOR 4: While Elbert scrubbed his tongue, the bad word sat on his shoulder, snickering wickedly.

NARRATOR 1: Elbert knew something had to be done.
NARRATOR 2: He ran down a cobbled path, past the reflecting pool, beyond the gazebo, and knocked at the gardener's cottage.

NARRATOR 3: The gardener, who was also a practicing wizard, opened the door with a smile.

GARDENER: Come in,

NARRATOR 4: he said,

GARDENER: and bring that thing with you.

NARRATOR 1: The wizard gardener knew right away that Elbert had caught a bad word and needed a cure.

NARRATOR 2: Opening his desk, he pulled out a drawer filled with words that crackled and sparkled.

GARDENER: Sometimes we need strong words,

NARRATOR 3: he said,

GARDENER: to say how we feel. Use these, and perhaps you won't get into trouble.
NARRATOR 4: Taking the sparkling words from the drawer, the wizard gardener tossed them in a bowl with flour and honey.

NARRATOR 1: He added some raisins, milk, and eggs, mixed them all together, then baked a little cake.

NARRATOR 2: The cake was delicious, so Elbert ate every last crumb.

NARRATOR 3: And as he did, the ugly word shriveled to the size of a flea and hopped onto his necktie.

NARRATOR 4: Everyone was enjoying Cousin Rudolph's oboe solo in D minor when Elbert returned to the party.

NARRATOR 1: But soon the trouble began anew.

NARRATOR 2: Chives, the butler, tripped on Madame Friatta's feathered boa.

NARRATOR 3: Madame Friatta dropped her chocolate mousse on Sir Hilary's bald head.
NARRATOR 4: Sir Hilary threw his croquet mallet up into the air.

NARRATOR 1: Then, with a terrible thud, the mallet landed on Elbert’s great toe.

NARRATOR 2: The music stopped.

NARRATOR 3: Everyone stared at the boy.

NARRATOR 4: Elbert’s face grew red with anger.

ELBERT: MY STARS! THUNDER AND LIGHTNING! RATS AND BLUE BLAZES! SUFFERING CATS! BLISTERING HOP TOADS! ZOUNDS AND GADZOOKS!

NARRATOR 1: he shouted.

NARRATOR 2: Everyone breathed a sigh of relief and gave Elbert three rousing cheers. . .

NARRATOR 3: . . .but no one was more pleased than Elbert.

NARRATOR 4: As the music began again, he saw something that looked like a little spider scurry down a dark hole, and disappear.

THE END
Narrator #1     Narrator #2     Narrator #3     Narrator #4
Wilbur (the pig)      Goose (a rabble rouser)
Mrs. Zuckerman       Mr. Zuckerman

Narrator #1     One afternoon in June, when Wilbur was almost two months old, he wandered out into his small yard outside the barn. Fern had not arrived for her usual visit. Wilber stood in the sun feeling lonely and bored.

Wilber     There’s never anything to do around here,
He walked slowly to his food trough and sniffed to see if anything had been overlooked at lunch. He found a small strip of potato skin and ate it.

His back itched, so he leaned against the fence and rubbed against the boards. When he tired of this, he walked indoors, climbed to the top of the manure pile, and sat down.

He didn’t feel like going to sleep, he didn’t feel like digging, he was tired of standing still, tired of lying down.

I’m less than two months old and I’m tired of living.

He walked out to the yard again.

When I’m out here there’s no place to go but out in the yard.

That’s where you’re wrong, my friend, said a voice.

Narrator #3  Wilber looked through the fence and saw the goose standing there.

Goose  You don’t have to stay in that dirty-little, dirty-little, dirty-little yard.

Narrator #4  said the goose, who talked rather fast.

Goose  One of the boards is loose. Push on it, push-push-push on it, and come on out!

Wilber  What? Say it slower!

Goose  At-at-at, at the risk of repeating myself, I suggest that you come on out. It’s wonderful out here.

Wilber  Did you say a board was loose?

Goose  That I did, that I did.

Narrator #1  Wilbur walked up to the fence and saw that the goose was right—one board was loose. He put his head down, shut his eyes, and pushed, The board gave way.
Narrator #2 In a minute he had squeezed through the fence and was standing in the long grass outside his yard. The goose chuckled.

Goose How does it feel to be free?

Wilbur I like it, That is, I guess I like it.

Narrator #3 Actually, Wilbur felt queer to be outside his fence, with nothing between him and the big world.

Wilbur Where do you think I’d better go?

Goose Anywhere you like, Anywhere you like. Go down through the orchard, root up the sod! Go down through the garden, dig up the radishes! Root up everything! Eat grass! Look for corn!

Goose Run all over! Skip and dance, jump and prance! Go down through the orchard and stroll in the woods! The world is a wonderful place when you’re young.

Wilbur I can see that!
Narrator #4  He gave a jump in the air, stopped, looked all around, sniffed the smells of afternoon, and then set out walking down through the orchard.

Narrator #1  Pausing in the shade of an apple tree, he put his strong snout into the ground and began pushing, digging, and rooting.

Narrator #2  He felt very happy. He had plowed up quite a piece of ground before anyone noticed him.

Narrator #3  Mrs. Zuckerman was the first to see him. She saw him from the kitchen window. She immediately shouted for the men.

Mrs. Zuckerman  Homer! Pig’s out! Lurvy! Pig’s out! Homer! Lurvy! Pig’s out. He’s down there under that apple tree.

Wilbur  Now the trouble starts. Now I’ll catch it.

Narrator #4  The goose heard the racket and she, too, started hollering.
Goose  Run-run-run downhill, make for the woods, the woods! They'll never-never-never catch you in the woods.

Narrator #1  The cocker spaniel heard the commotion, and he ran out from the barn to join the chase. Mr. Zuckerman heard, and he came out of the machine shed where he was mending a tool.

Narrator #2  Lurvy, the hired man, heard the noise and came up from the asparagus patch where he was pulling weeds. Everybody walked toward Wilbur, and Wilbur didn’t know what to do.

Narrator #3  The woods seemed a long way off, and anyway, he had never been down there in the woods, and wasn’t sure he would like it.

Mr. Zuckerman  Get around behind him, Lurvy, and drive him toward the barn! I’ll go and get a bucket of slops.
Narrator #4  The news of Wilbur’s escape spread rapidly among the animals on the place. Whenever any creature broke loose on Zuckerman’s farm, the event was of great interest to the others.

Narrator #1  The goose shouted to the nearest cow that Wilbur was free, and soon all the cows knew. Then one of the cows told one of the sheep, and soon all the sheep knew.

Narrator #2  The lambs learned about it from their mothers. The horses, in their stalls in the barn, pricked up their ears when they heard the goose hollering.

Narrator #3  “Wilbur’s out,” they said. Every animal stirred and lifted its head and became excited to know that one of his friends had got free and was no longer penned up or tied fast.

Narrator #4  Wilbur didn’t know what to do or which way to run. It seemed as though everybody was after him.
Wilbur  If this is what it’s like to be free, I believe I’d rather be penned up in my own yard.

Narrator #1  The cocker spaniel was sneaking up on him from one side. Lurvy, the hired man, was sneaking up on him from the other side.

Narrator #2  Mrs. Zuckerman stood ready to head him off if he started for the garden, and now Mr. Zuckerman was coming down toward him carrying a pail.

Wilbur  This is really awful. Why doesn’t Fern come?

Narrator #3  He began to cry. The goose took command and began to give orders.

Goose  Don’t just stand there! Dodge about, Wilbur! Skip around, run toward me, slip in and out, in and out, in and out! Make for the woods! Twist and turn!
Narrator #4  The cocker spaniel sprang for Wilbur’s hind leg. Wilbur jumped and ran. Lurvy read out and grabbed. Mrs. Zuckerman screamed at Lurvy.

Narrator #1  The goose cheered for Wilbur. Wilbur dodged between Lurvy’s legs. Lurvy missed Wilbur and grabbed the spaniel instead.

Goose  Nicely done, nicely done! Try it again, try it again!

Narrator #2  “Run downhill!” suggested the cows.

Narrator #3  “Run toward me!” yelled the gander.

Narrator #4  “Run uphill!” cried the sheep.

Goose  Turn and twist!

Narrator #1  “Jump and dance!” said the rooster.

Narrator #2  “Look out for Lurvy!” called the cows.

Narrator #3  “Look out for Zuckerman!” yelled the gander.

Narrator #4  “Watch out for the dog!” cried the sheep.

Goose  Listen to me, listen to me!
Narrator #1  Poor Wilbur was dazed and frightened by this hullabaloo. He didn’t like being the center of all this fuss. He tried to follow the instructions his friends were giving him, but he couldn’t turn and twist when he was jumping and dancing, and he was crying so hard he could barely see anything that was happening.

Narrator #2  After all, he was a very young pig—not much more than a baby, really. He wished Fern was there to take him in her arms and comfort him.

Narrator #3  When he looked up and saw Mr. Zuckerman coming with a pail of warm slops, he felt relieved.

Narrator #4  He lifted his nose and sniffed. The smell was delicious—warm milk, potato skins, wheat middlings, Kellogg’s Corn Flakes, and a popover left from the Zuckermans’ breakfast.

Mr. Zuckerman  Come, pig! Come pig!

Narrator #1  Wilbur took a step toward the pail.
Goose  No-no-no!
It’s the old pail trick, Wilbur.
Don’t fall for it,
don’t fall for it!
He trying to lure you back into captivity-ivity.
He’s appealing to your stomach.

Narrator #2  Wilbur didn’t care.
The food smelled appetizing.
He took another step toward the pail.

Mr. Zuckerman  Pig, pig!

Narrator #3  said Mr. Zuckerman in a kind voice, and began walking slowly toward the barnyard, looking all about him innocently, as if he didn’t know that a little white pig was following along behind him.

Goose  You’ll be sorrysorrysorry.

Narrator #4  Wilbur didn’t care
He kept walking toward the pail of slops.

Goose  You’ll miss your freedom.
An hour of freedom is worth a barrel of slops.
Narrator #1  When Mr. Zuckerman reached the pigpen, he climbed over the fence and poured the slops into the trough. Then he pulled the loose board away from the fence, so that there was a wide hole for Wilbur to walk through.

Goose  Reconsider, reconsider!

Narrator #2  Wilbur paid no attention. He stepped through the fence into his yard.

Narrator #3  He walked to his trough and took a long drink of slops, sucking in the milk hungrily and chewing the popover. It was good to be home again.

Narrator #4  While Wilbur ate, Lurvy fetched a hammer and some 8-penny nails and nailed the board in place.

Narrator #1  Then he and Mr. Zuckerman leaned lazily on the fence, and Mr. Zuckerman scratched Wilbur’s back with a stick.

Mr. Zuckerman  He’s enjoying that. He’ll make a good pig.
Narrator #2 Wilbur heard the words of praise.
He felt the warm milk
inside his stomach.
He felt the pleasant rubbing of the stick along his itchy back.

Narrator #3 He felt peaceful and happy and sleepy.
This had been a tiring afternoon.

Narrator #4 It was still only about four o’clock but Wilbur was ready for bed.

Wilbur I’m really too young to go out into the world alone.

Characters:
Rebecca Gregory Narrator
Mom Dad

Rebecca: Gregory, come quick! There’s a giant moose in the yard!

Gregory: Who are you kidding, Rebecca? Last week you saw a rocket ship, yesterday it was a two-headed frog. And now it’s a moose!

Rebecca: If you don’t believe me, smarty, just come outside and see for yourself.

Gregory: I’m busy, Rebecca. I’m making a scarecrow to keep the crows out of the garden. I don’t have time for your silly games.

Rebecca: You better make a scarecrow for the MOOSE or there won’t be any garden.
Narrator  Rebecca and Homer...that’s her dog, stomp off to warn their dad about the moose.

Rebecca   Dad, come help!  There’s a giant moose standing in the spinach!

Narrator  But Dad was acting like any other male during a football game, and ignored her.

Dad      Sure, Rebecca...when the game is over.

Rebecca  He didn’t hear a word I said.

Narrator  Rebecca and Homer eagerly ran to see mom, who was busy painting.

Rebecca  Mom!  Come, hurry!  There’s a giant moose eating all the vegetables!

Mom     Nonsense!  Rebecca, you know there are no moose around here.

Rebecca  It is NOT NONSENSE...IT’S A MOOSE!  You don’t believe your own child.

Narrator  Rebecca decided to solve the problem with her dog since no one else cared to help, because they were tooooo busy.
Rebecca If I were big, she would listen to me. When I have a little girl, I will always listen to her. I guess we’ll just have to chase that moose ourselves.

Narrator Rebecca searched through her toy box trying to find something that would scare a moose.

Rebecca I have a great idea! I’ll put on my hairy monster costume. That moose will be scared out of his wits!

Narrator Rebecca put on the costume and jolted out to the garden where the moose was eating all the vegetables and flowers.

Rebecca Hey you, Moose! Get out of this garden right this minute or I’ll eat you up!

Narrator But the moose didn’t flinch.

Rebecca Nobody listens to me...not even the Moose!

Narrator Rebecca decided that she wasn’t going to be his dessert...so she got in his face and shouted...

Rebecca Now, listen, Moose! I’m getting really angry! ENOUGH IS ENOUGH! NOW CLEAR OUT!!!
Narrator  The moose dropped the flower and scampered away.

Rebecca  Look at that, Homer. He listened to me.

Narrator  Rebecca and Homer skipped away to find Gregory.

Rebecca  GREEEEE-G-O-RIEEEEEE! You don’t need the scarecrow anymore. The garden is all gone!

Mom & Dad  What in the world happened to the garden?

Rebecca  I’m busy now. When I’m finished building my rocket ship, I’ll tell you all about it.

Act 1
The Three Farmers

Narrator 1 Down in the valley there were three farms. The owners of these farms had done well. They were rich men. They were also nasty men. All three of them were about as nasty and mean as any men you could meet. Their names were Farmer Boggis, Farmer Bunce and Farmer Bean.
Narrator 2
Boggis was a chicken farmer. He kept thousands of chickens. He was enormously fat. This was because he ate three boiled chickens smothered with dumplings every day, for breakfast, lunch and supper.

Narrator 3
Bunce was a duck-and-goose farmer. He kept thousands of ducks and geese. He was a kind of pot-bellied dwarf. He was so short his chin would have been under water in the shallow end of any swimming pool in the world. His food was doughnuts and goose livers. He mashed the livers into a disgusting paste and then stuffed the paste into the doughnuts. This diet gave him a tummy-ache and a beastly temper.

Narrator 4
Bean was a turkey-and-apple farmer. He kept thousands of turkeys in an orchard full of apple trees. He never ate any food at all. Instead, he drank gallons of strong cider which he made from the apples in his orchard. He was as thin as a pencil and the cleverest of them all.

Narrator 1
This is what the children round about used to chant when they saw them:

"Boggis and Bunce and Bean
One fat, one short, one lean.
These horrible crooks
So different in looks
Were nonetheless equally mean."
Act 2

Mr. Fox

Narrator 2 On a hill above the valley there was a wood.
In the wood there was a huge tree.
Under the tree there was a hole.
In the hole lived Mr. Fox and Mrs. Fox and their four Small Foxes.

Narrator 3 Every evening as soon as it got dark, Mr. Fox would say to Mrs. Fox,

Mr. Fox Well, my darling, what shall it be this time? A plump chicken from Boggis? A duck or a goose from Bunce? Or a nice turkey from Bean?

Narrator 4 And when Mrs. Fox had told him what she wanted, Mr. Fox would creep down into the valley in the darkness of the night and help himself.

Narrator 1 Boggis and Bunce and Bean knew very well what was going on, and it made them wild with rage. They were not men who liked to give anything away. Less still did they like anything to be stolen from them. So every night each of them would take his shotgun and hide in a dark place somewhere on his own farm, hoping to catch the robber.
Narrator 2 But Mr. Fox was too clever for them. He always approached a farm with the wind blowing in his face, and this meant that if any man were lurking in the shadows ahead, the wind would carry the smell of that man to Mr. Fox’s nose from far away.

Narrator 3 Thus, if Mr. Boggis was hiding behind his Chicken House Number One, Mr. Fox would smell him out from fifty yards off and quickly change direction, heading for Chicken House Number Four at the other end of the farm.

Farmer Boggis Dang and blast that lousy beast!

Narrator 4 cried Boggis.

Farmer Bunce I’d like to rip his guts out!

Narrator 1 said Bunce.

Farmer Bean He must be killed!

Narrator 2 cried Bean.

Farmer Boggis But how?

Narrator 3 said Boggis.

Farmer Boggis How on earth can we catch the blighter?

Narrator 4 Bean picked his nose delicately with a long finger.
Farmer Bean I have a plan.
Narrator 1 he said.
Farmer Bunce You’ve never had a decent plan yet!
Narrator 2 said Bunce.
Farmer Bean Shut up and listen!
Narrator 3 said Bean.
Farmer Bean Tomorrow night we will all hide just outside the hole where the fox lives. We will wait there until he comes out. Then...Bang!...Bang-Bang-Bang!
Farmer Bunce Very clever.
Narrator 4 said Bunce.
Farmer Bunce But first we shall have to find the hole.
Farmer Bean My dear Bunce, I’ve already found it.
Narrator 1 said the crafty Bean.
Farmer Bean It’s up in the wood on the hill. It’s under a huge tree!
Act 3

The Shooting

Mr. Fox  Well, my darling.
Narrator 2  said Mr. Fox.
Mr. Fox  What shall it be tonight?
Mrs. Fox  I think we’ll have duck tonight.
Narrator 3  said Mrs. Fox.
Mrs. Fox  Bring us two fat ducks, if you please. One for you and me, and one for the children.
Mr. Fox  Ducks it shall be!
Narrator 4  said Mr. Fox.
Mr. Fox  Bunce’s best!
Mrs. Fox  Now do be careful.
Narrator 1  said Mrs. Fox.
Mr. Fox  My darling!
Narrator 2  said Mr. Fox.
Mr. Fox  I can smell those goons a mile away. I can even smell one from the other. Boggis gives off a filthy stink of rotten chicken-skins. Bunce reeks of goose livers, and as for Bean, the fumes of apple cider hang around him like poisonous gases.

Mrs. Fox  Yes, but don’t get careless.

Narrator 3  said Mrs. Fox.

Mrs. Fox  You know they’ll be waiting for you, all three of them.

Mr. Fox  Don’t you worry about me.

Narrator 4  said Mr. Fox

Mr. Fox  I’ll see you later.

Narrator 1  But Mr. Fox would not have been so cocky had he know exactly where the three farmers were waiting at that moment. They were just outside the entrance to the hole, each one crouching behind a tree with his gun loaded.

Narrator 2  And what is more, they had chosen their positions very carefully, making sure that the wind was not blowing from them towards the fox’s hole. In fact, it was blowing in the opposite direction. There was no chance of being ‘smelled out.’
Narrator 3  Mr. Fox crept up the dark tunnel to the mouth of his hole. He poked his long handsome face out into the night air and sniffed once.

Narrator 4  He moved an inch or two forward and stopped.

Narrator 1  He sniffed again. He was always especially careful when coming out from his hole.

Narrator 2  He inched forward a little more. The front half of his body was now out in the open.

Narrator 3  His black nose twitched from side to side, sniffing and sniffing for the scent of danger. He found none, and he was just about to go trotting forward into the wood when he heard or thought he heard a tiny noise, a soft rustling sound, as though someone had moved a foot ever so gently through a patch of dry leaves.

Narrator 4  Mr. Fox flattened his body against the ground and lay very still, his ears pricked. He waited a long time, but he heard nothing more.

Mr. Fox  (Softly, to himself) It must have been a field-mouse, or some other small animal.
Narrator 1 He crept a little further out of the hole...then further still. He was almost right out in the open now. He took a last careful look around. The wood was murky and very still. Somewhere in the sky the moon was shining.

Narrator 2 Just then, his sharp eyes night-eyes caught a glint of something bright behind a tree not far away. It was a small silver speck of moonlight shining on a polished surface. Mr. Fox lay still... watching it.

Narrator 3 What on earth was it?

Narrator 4 Now it was moving. It was coming up and up...

Narrator 1 Great heavens! It was the barrel of a gun!

Narrator 2 Quick as a whip, Mr. Fox jumped back into his hole and at that same instant the entire wood seemed to explode around him.

Narrator 3 Bang-bang! Bang-bang! Bang!-bang!

Narrator 4 The smoke from the three guns floated upward in the night air. Boggis and Bunce and Bean came out from behind their trees and walked towards the hole.

Farmer Bean Did we get him?

Narrator 1 asked Bean.
One of them shone a flashlight on the hole, and there on the ground, in the circle of light, half in and half out of the hole, lay the poor tattered bloodstained remains of...a fox’s tail. Bean picked it up.

We got the tail but we missed the fox.

he said, tossing the thing away.

Dang and blast!

said Boggis.

We shot too late. We should have let fly the moment he poked his head out.

He won’t be poking it out again in a hurry.

said Bunce.

Bean pulled a flask from his pocket and took a swig of cider. Then he said, It’ll take three days at least before he gets hungry enough to come out again. I’m not sitting around here waiting for that. Let’s dig him out.

Ah!

said Boggis.

Now you’re talking sense. We can dig him out in a couple of hours. We know he’s there.
Farmer Bunce: I reckon there’s a whole family of them down that hole.

Narrator 4: Bunce said.

Farmer Bean: Then we’ll have the lot.

Narrator 1: said Bean.

Farmer Bean: Get the shovels!
Act 4

The Terrible Shovels

Narrator 2 Down the hole, Mrs. Fox was tenderly licking the stump of Mr. Fox’s tail to stop the bleeding.

Mrs. Fox It was the finest tail for miles around.

Narrator 3 She said between licks.

Mr. Fox It hurts!

Narrator 4 said Mr. Fox.

Mrs. Fox I know it does, sweetheart. But it’ll soon get better.

Small Fox And it will soon grow again, Dad.

Narrator 1 said one of the Small Foxes.

Mr. Fox It will never grow again, I shall be tail-less for the rest of my life.

Narrator 2 said Mr. Fox. He looked very glum.

Narrator 3 There was no food for the foxes that night, and soon the children dozed off. Then Mrs. Fox dozed off. But Mr. Fox couldn’t sleep because of the pain in the stump of his tail.

Mr. Fox Well,
Narrator 4  he thought,

Mr. Fox  I suppose I’m lucky to be alive at all. And now they’ve found our hole, we’re going to have to move out as soon as possible. We’ll never get any peace if we. . What was that?

Narrator 1  He turned his head sharply and listened. The noise he heard now was the most frightening noise a fox can ever hear... the scrape-scrape-scraping of shovels digging into the soil.

Mr. Fox  Wake up!

Narrator 2  he shouted.

Mr. Fox  They’re digging us out!

Narrator 3  Mrs. Fox was wide awake in one second. She sat up, quivering all over.

Mrs. Fox  Are you sure that’s it?

Narrator 4  she whispered.

Mr. Fox  I’m positive! Listen!

Mrs. Fox  They’ll kill my children

Mr. Fox  Never!

Narrator 1  said Mr. Fox
Mrs. Fox  But darling, they will! You know they will!

Narrator 2  sobbed Mrs. Fox

Narrator 3  Scrunch, scrunch, scrunch went the shovels above their heads. Small stones and bits of earth began falling from the roof of the tunnel.

Small Fox  How will they kill us, Mummy? Will there be dogs?

Narrator 4  asked one of the small foxes. His round black eyes were huge with fright. Mrs. Fox began to cry. She gathered her four children close to her and held them tight.

Narrator 1  Suddenly there was an especially loud crunch above their heads and the sharp end of a shovel came right through the ceiling. The sight of this awful thing seemed to have an electric effect upon Mr. Fox. He jumped up and shouted,

Mr. Fox  I’ve got it! Come on! There’s not a moment to lose! Why didn’t I think of it before!

Small Fox  Think of what, Dad?

Mr. Fox  A fox can dig quicker than a man.

Narrator 2  said Mr. Fox, beginning to dig.
Narrator 3  The soil began to fly out furiously behind Mr. Fox as he started to dig for dear life with his front feet. Mrs. Fox ran forward to help him. So did the four children.

Mr. Fox  Go downwards! We’ve got to go deep! As deep as we possibly can!

Narrator 4  ordered Mr. Fox

Narrator 1  The tunnel began to grow deeper and longer. It sloped steeply downward. Deeper and deeper below the surface of the ground it went. The mother and the father and all four of the children were digging together.

Narrator 2  Their front legs were moving so fast you couldn’t see them. And gradually the scrunching and scraping of shovels became fainter and fainter.

Narrator 3  After about an hour, Mr. Fox stopped digging.

Mr. Fox  Hold it!

Narrator 4  he said. They all stopped! They turned and looked back up the tunnel they had just dug. All was quiet.

Mr. Fox  Phew!

Narrator 1  said Mr. Fox.

Mr. Fox  I think we’ve done it! They’ll never get as deep as this. Well done, everyone!
| Narrator 2 | They all sat down, panting for breath. And Mrs. fox said to her children, |
| Mrs. Fox | I should like you to know that if it wasn’t for you father we should all be dead by now. Your father is a fantastic fox. |
| Narrator 3 | Mr. Fox looked at his wife and she smiled. He loved her more then ever when she said things like that. |
Act 5

The Terrible Tractors

Narrator 4 As the sun rose the next morning, Boggis and Bunce and Bean were still digging. They had a hole so deep you could have put a house into it. But they had not yet come to the end of the fox’s tunnel. They were all very tired and cross.

Narrator 1 Boggis said,

Boggis Dang and blast! Whose rotten idea was this?

Narrator 2 Boggis and Bunce both stared at Bean. Bean took another swig of cider, then put the flask back into his pocket without offering it to the others. Bean said, Bean Listen, I want that fox! I’m going to get that fox! I’m not giving in till I’ve strung him up over my front porch, dead as a dumpling!

Narrator 3 Fat Boggis said,

Boggis We can’t get him by digging, that’s for sure. I’ve had enough of digging.
Bunce, the little pot-bellied dwarf, looked up at Bean and said,

Bunce: Have you got any more stupid ideas, then?

Bean replied,

Bean: What? I can’t hear you.

Bean never took a bath. He never even washed. As a result, his ear holes were clogged with all kinds of muck and wax and bits of chewing-gum and dead flies and stuff like that. This made him deaf.

Bean: Speak louder.

Bean rubbed the back of his neck with a dirty finger. He had a boil coming there and it itched. He said, Bean: What we need on this job, is machines.... mechanical shovels. We’ll have him out in five minutes with mechanical shovels.

This was a pretty good idea and the other two had to admit it.

Bean took charge and said,
Bean All right then. Boggis, you stay here and see the fox doesn’t escape. Bunce and I will go and fetch our machinery. If he tries to get out, shoot him quick.

Narrator 3 Soon, two enormous caterpillar tractors with mechanical shovels on their front ends came clanking into the wood. Bean was driving one. Bunce the other. The machines were both black. They were murderous, brutal-looking monsters.

Bean Here we go, then!

Narrator 4 shouted Bean.

Bunce Death to the fox!

Narrator 1 shouted Bunce.

Narrator 2 The machines went to work, biting huge mouthfuls of soil out of the hill. The big tree under which Mr. Fox had dug his hole in the first place was toppled like a match stick. On all sides, rocks were sent flying and trees were falling and the noise was deafening.

Narrator 3 Down in the tunnel the foxes crouched, listening to the terrible clanging and banging overhead.

Small Fox What’s happening Dad? What are they doing?
Mrs. Fox cried,

It’s an earthquake!

One of the small foxes said,

Look! Our tunnel’s got shorter! I can see daylight!

They all looked round, and yes, the mouth of the tunnel was only a few feet from them now, and the circle of daylight beyond they could see the two huge black tractors almost on top of them.

Tractors!

shouted Mr. Fox.

And mechanical shovels! Dig for you lives! Dig, dig, dig!
Act 6

The Race

Narrator 4 Now there began a desperate race, the machines against the foxes. In the beginning, the hill looked like it had been bombed by a hundred airplane bombers.

Narrator 1 After about an hour, as the machines bit away more and more soil from the hilltop, it had gotten smaller and smaller.

Narrator 2 Sometimes the foxes would gain a little ground and the clanking noises would grow fainter and fainter and Mr. Fox would say,

Mr. Fox We’re going to make it! I’m sure we are!

Narrator 3 But then a few moments later, the machines would come back at them and the crunch of the mighty shovels would get louder and louder. Once the foxes actually saw the sharp metal edge of one of the shovels as it scraped up the earth just behind them.

Mr. Fox Keep going, my darlings!

Narrator 4 panted Mr. Fox.

Mr. Fox Don’t give up!

Boggis Keep going!
Narrator 1 the fat Boggis shouted to Bunce and Bean.

Boggis We’ll get him any moment now!

Narrator 2 Bean called back,

Bean Have you caught sight of him yet?

Narrator 3 Boggis shouted,

Boggis Not yet! But I think you’re close!

Bunce I’ll pick him up with my bucket!

Narrator 4 shouted Bunce.

Bunce I’ll chop him to pieces!

Narrator 1 But by lunchtime the machines were still at it. And so were the poor foxes. The size of the hill was now very small. The farmers didn’t stop for lunch; they were too keen to finish the job.

Bunce Hey there, Mr. Fox!

Narrator 2 yelled Bunce, leaning out of his tractor.

Bunce We’re coming to get you now!

Narrator 3 Boggis yelled,

Boggis You’ve had your last chicken! You’ll never come prowling around my farm again!
A sort of madness had taken hold of the three men. The tall skinny Bean and the dwarfish pot-bellied Bunce were driving their machines like maniacs, racing the motors and making the shovels dig at terrific speed. The fat Boggis was hopping about like a dervish and shouting, Faster! Faster!

By five o’clock the hill had almost disappeared. The hole the machines had dug was like the crater of a volcano. It was such an extraordinary sight that crowds of people came rushing out from the surrounding villages to have a look. They stood on the edge of the crater and stared down at Boggis and Bunce and Bean.

Hey there, Boggis! What’s going on?

We’re after a fox!

You must be mad

The people jeered and laughed. But his only made the three farmers more furious and more obstinate and more determined than ever not to give up until they had caught the fox.
Act 7

“We’ll Never Let Him Go”

Narrator 3 At six o’clock in the evening, Bean switched off the motor of his tractor and climbed down from the driver’s seat. Bunce did the same. Both men had had enough. They were tired and stiff from driving the tractors all day. They were also hungry.

Narrator 4 Slowly they walked over to the small fox’s hole in the bottom of the huge crater. Bean’s face was purple with rage. Bunce was cursing the fox with dirty words that cannot be printed. Boggis came waddling up and said, Boggis Dang and blast that filthy stinking fox. What the heck do we do now?

Narrator 1 Bean said,

Bean I’ll tell you what we don’t do! We don’t let him go!

Bunce We’ll never let him go!

Narrator 2 declared Bunce and Boggis cried,

Boggis Never never never!

Narrator 3 Bean yelled, bending low and shouting down the hole,
Bean Did you hear that, Mr. Fox! It’s not over yet, Mr. Fox! We’re not going home till we’ve strung you up dead as a ding bat!

Narrator 4 Whereupon the three men all shook hands with one another and swore a solemn oath that they would not go back to their farms until the fox was caught.

Narrator 1 Bunce, the pot-bellied dwarf asked them,

Bunce What’s the next move?

Narrator 2 Bean replied,

Bean We’re sending you down the hole to fetch him up. Down you go, you miserable midget!

Narrator 3 Running away, Bunce screamed.

Bunce Not me!

Narrator 4 Bean made a sickly smile. When he smiled you saw his scarlet gums. You saw more gums than teeth. Bean said, Bean Then there’s only one thing to do. We starve him out. We camp here day and night watching the hole. He’ll come out in the end. He’ll have to.

Narrator 1 So Boggis and Bunce and Bean sent messages down to their farms asking for tents, sleeping bags and supper.
Act 8

The Foxes Begin To Starve

Narrator 2 That evening three tents were put up in the crater on the hill...one for Boggis, one for Bunce and one for Bean. The tents surrounded Mr. Fox’s hole.

Narrator 3 And the three farmers sat outside their tents eating their supper. Boggis had three boiled chickens smothered in dumplings, Bunce had six doughnuts filled with disgusting goose-liver paste, and Bean had two gallons of cider. All three of them kept their guns beside them.

Narrator 4 Boggis picked up a steaming chicken and held it close to the fox’s hole and shouted, Boggis Can you smell this, Mr. Fox? Lovely tender chicken! Why don’t you come up and get it?

Narrator 1 The rich scent of chicken wafted down the tunnel to where the foxes were crouched.

Narrator 2 One of the small foxes pleaded to Mr. Fox, Small Fox: Oh, Dad, couldn’t we just sneak up and snatch it out of his hand?

Narrator 3: Mrs. Fox, who was frightened, exclaimed,

Mrs. Fox: Don’t you dare! That’s just what they want you to do!

Small Fox: But we’re so hungry! How long will it be till we get something to eat?

Narrator 4: Their mother didn’t answer them. Nor did their father. There was no answer to give.

Narrator 1: As darkness fell, Bunce and Bean switched on the powerful headlamps of the two tractors and shone them on the hole. Bean said, Bean: Now, we’ll take it in turn to keep watch. One watches while two sleep, and so on all through the night... What’s your question, Boggis?

Boggis: What if the fox digs a hole right through the hill and comes out on the other side? You didn’t think of that one, did you?

Narrator 2: Bean, pretending he had, said to Boggis,

Bean: Of course I did.

Boggis: Go on, then, tell us the answer.
Bean picked up something small and black out of his ear and flicked it away, and asked Boggis,

Bean: How many men have you got working on your farm?

Boggis: Thirty-five.

Bunce: I’ve got FORTY-SIX.

Bean: And I’ve got thirty-seven. That makes one hundred and eight men altogether. We must order them to surround the hill. Each man will have a gun and a flashlight. There will be no escape for Mr. Fox.

So the order went down to the farms, and formed a tight ring around the bottom of the hill. They were armed with sticks and guns and hatchets and pistols and all sorts of other horrible weapons. This made it quite impossible for a fox or indeed for any other animal to escape from the hill.

The next day, the watching and waiting went on. Boggis and Bunce and Bean sat upon small stools, staring at the fox’s hole. They didn’t talk much. They just sat there with their guns on their laps.

Every so often, Mr. Fox would creep a little closer towards the mouth of the tunnel and take a sniff. Then he would creep back again and say,
Mr. Fox They’re still there.

Narrator 3 Mrs. Fox would ask,

Mrs. Fox Are you quite sure?

Mr. Fox Positive. I can smell that man Bean a mile away. He stinks.
Act 9

Mr. Fox Has a Plan

Narrator 4 For three days and three nights this waiting-game went on.

Narrator 1 On the third day Boggis asked,

Boggis How long can a fox go without food or water?

Narrator 2 Bean told him,

Bean Not much longer now. He'll make a run for it soon. He'll have to.

Narrator 3 Bean was right. Down in the tunnel the foxes were slowly but surely starving to death.

Small Fox If only we could have just a tiny sip of water. Oh Dad, can’t you do something? Couldn’t we make a dash for it, Dad? We’d have a bit of a chance, wouldn’t we?

Narrator 4 Mrs. Fox replied angrily,

Mrs. Fox. No chance at all. I refuse to let you go up there and face those guns. I’d sooner you stay down here and die in peace.
Narrator 1  Mr. Fox had not spoken in a long time. He had been sitting quite still, his eyes closed, not even hearing what the others were saying. Mrs. Fox knew that he was trying desperately to think of a way out. And now, as she looked at him, she saw him stir himself and get slowly to his feet. He looked back at his wife. There was a little spark of excitement dancing in his eyes.

Mrs. Fox  What is it darling?

Narrator 2  said Mrs. Fox quickly.

Narrator 3  Mr. Fox said carefully.

Mr. Fox  I’ve just had a bit of an idea.

Small Fox  What? Oh, Dad, what is it?

Mrs. Fox  Come on! Tell us quickly!

Mr. Fox  Well...

Narrator 4  said Mr. Fox, then he stopped and sighed and sadly shook his head. He sat down again, and said,

Mr. Fox  It’s no good. It won’t work after all.

Small Fox  Why not, Dad?

Mr. Fox  Because it means more digging and we aren’t any of us strong enough for that after three days and nights without food.

Narrator 4 Mr. Fox, pointing sideways and downward said,

Mr. Fox This time we must go in a very special direction.

Narrator 1 So he and his four children started to dig once again. The work went much more slowly now. Yet they kept at it with great courage, and little by little the tunnel began to grow.

Small Fox Dad, I wish you would tell us where we are going.

Mr. Fox I dare not do that, because this place I am hoping to get to is so marvelous that if I described it to you now you would go crazy with excitement. And then, if we failed to get there (which is very possible), you would die of disappointment. I don’t want to raise your hopes too much, my darlings.
Narrator 2 For a long time they kept on digging. for how long they did not know, because there were no days and night down there in the murky tunnel. But at last Mr. Fox gave the order to stop and said,

Mr. Fox I think we had better take a peep upstairs now and see where we are. I know where I want to be, but I can’t possibly be sure we’re anywhere near it.

Narrator 3 Slowly, wearily, the foxes began to slope the tunnel up towards the surface. Up and up it went...until suddenly they came to something hard above their heads and they couldn’t go up any further. Mr. Fox reached up to examine this hard thing. He whispered to the small foxes,

Mr. Fox (whispering) It’s wood... Wooden planks!

Small Fox What does that mean, Dad?

Mr. Fox It means, unless I am very much mistaken, that we are right underneath somebody’s house. Be very quiet now while I take a peek.

Narrator 4 Carefully, Mr. Fox began pushing up one of the floorboards. The board creaked most terribly and they all ducked down, waiting for something awful to happen. Nothing did. So Mr. Fox pushed up a second board. And then, very very cautiously, he poked his head up through the gap. He let out a shriek of excitement.
Mr. Fox I’ve done it! I’ve done it first time? I’ve done it! I’ve done it!

Narrator 1 He pulled himself up through the gap in the floor and started prancing and dancing with joy. He sang out,

Mr. Fox Come on up! Come up and see where you are, my darlings. What a sight for a hungry fox! Hallelujah! Hooray! Hooray!

Narrator 2 The four Small Foxes scrambled up out of the tunnel and what a fantastic sight it was that now met their eyes! They were in a huge shed and the whole place was teeming with chickens. There were white chickens and brown chickens and black chickens by the thousand!

Mr. Fox Boggis’s Chicken House Number One! It’s exactly what I was aiming at! I hit it slap in the middle! First time! Isn’t that fantastic! And, if I may say so, rather clever!

Narrator 3 The Small Foxes went wild with excitement. They started running around in all directions, chasing the stupid chickens.

Mr. Fox Wait! Don’t lose your heads! Stand back! Calm down! Let’s do this properly! First of all, everyone have a drink of water!
Narrator 4  They all ran over to the chickens’ drinking-trough and lapped up the lovely cool water. Then Mr. Fox chose three of the plumpest hens, and with a clever flick of his jaws he killed them instantly.

Mr. Fox  Back to the tunnel! Come on! No fooling around! The quicker you move the quicker you shall have something to eat!

Narrator 1  One after another, they climbed down through the hole in the floor and soon they were all standing once again in the dark tunnel. Mr. Fox reached up and pulled the floorboards back into place. He did this with great care. He did it so that no one could tell they had ever been moved. He said, giving the three plump hens to the biggest of his four small children,

Mr. Fox  My son, run back with these to your mother. Tell her to prepare a feast. Tell her the rest of us will be along in a jiffy, as soon as have made a few other little arrangements.
Act 11

A Surprise for Mrs. Fox

Narrator 2 The Small Fox ran back as fast as he could, carrying the three plump hens. He was exploding with joy. “Just wait!” he kept thinking, “just wait till Mummy sees these!” He had a long way to run but he never stopped once on the way and he came bursting in upon Mrs. Fox. He cried, out of breath, Small Fox Mummy! Look, Mummy, look! Wake up and see what I’ve brought you!

Narrator 3 Mrs. Fox, who was weaker than ever now from lack of food, opened one eye and looked at the hens. She murmured,

Mrs. Fox I’m dreaming.

Narrator 4 and closed her eye again.

Small Fox You’re not dreaming, Mummy! They’re real chickens! We’re saved! We’re not going to starve!

Narrator 1 Mrs. Fox opened both eyes and sat up quickly. She cried, Mrs. Fox But, my dear child! Where on earth...?

Small Fox  Boggis’s Chicken House Number One! We tunneled right up under the floor and you’ve never seen so many big fat hens in all your life! And Dad said to prepare a feast! They’ll be back soon!

Narrator 2  The sight of food seemed to give new strength to Mrs. Fox. She stood up and said, Mrs. Fox  A feast it shall be! Oh, what a fantastic fox your father is! Hurry up, child, and start plucking those chickens!

Narrator 3  Far away down in the tunnel, the fantastic Mr. Fox was saying,

Mr. Fox  Now for the next bit, my darlings! This one’ll be as easy as pie! All we have to do is dig another little tunnel from here to there!

Small Fox  To where, Dad?

Mr. Fox  Don’t ask so many questions. Start digging!

Mr. Fox    Badger!

Badger    Foxy! My goodness me, I’m glad I found someone at last! I’ve been digging around in circles for three days and nights and I haven’t the foggiest idea where I am!

Narrator 4    Badger made the hole in the ceiling bigger and dropped down beside the foxes. A Small Badger (his son) dropped down after him.

Badger    Haven’t you heard what’s happening up on the hill! It’s chaos! Half the wood has disappeared and there are men with guns all over the countryside! None of us can get out, even at night! We’re all starving to death!

Narrator 1    Mr. Fox asked,

Mr. Fox    Who is we?

Badger    All us diggers. That’s me and Mole and Rabbit and all our wives and children. Even Weasel, who can usually sneak out of the tightest spots, is right now hiding down my hole with Mrs. Weasel and six kids. What on earth are we going to do, Foxy? I think we’re finished!

Narrator 2    Mr. Fox looked at his three children and smiled. The children looked back at him, sharing his secret. Fox said,

Mr. Fox    My dear old Badger. This mess you’re in is all my fault...
Badger: I know it’s your fault. And the farmers are not going to give up till they’ve got you. Unfortunately, that means us as well. It means everyone on the hill.

Narrator 3: Badger sat down and put a paw around his small son.

Badger: We’re done for. My poor wife up there is so weak she can’t dig another yard.

Mr. Fox: Nor can mine. And yet at this very minute she is preparing for me and my children the most delicious feast of plump juicy chickens...

Badger: Stop! Don’t tease me. I can’t stand it!

Small Fox: It’s true! Dad’s not teasing! We’ve got chickens galore!

Mr. Fox: And because everything is entirely my fault, I invite you to share the feast. I invite everyone to share it...you and Mole and Rabbit and Weasel and all your wives and children. There’ll be plenty to go round, I can assure you.

Narrator 4: Mr. Badger cried,

Badger: You mean it! You really mean it

Narrator 1: Mr. Fox pushed his face close to Badger’s and whispered darkly,

Act 13

Bunce’s Giant Storehouse

Badger  My dear Foxy!

Narrator 4  cried Badger

Badger  What in the world has happened to your tail?

Mr. Fox  Don’t talk about it, please. It’s a painful subject.

Narrator 1  They were digging the new tunnel. They dug on in silence. Badger was a great digger and the tunnel went forward at a terrific pace now that he was lending a paw. Soon they were crouching underneath yet another wooden floor. Mr. Fox grinned slyly, showing sharp white teeth. He said,

Mr. Fox  If I am not mistaken, my dear Badger, we are now underneath the farm which belongs to that nasty pot-bellied dwarf, Bunce. We are, in fact, directly underneath the most interesting part of that farm.
Narrator 2 The Small Foxes, licking their lips, cried out,

Small Fox Ducks and geese! Juicy tender ducks and big fat geese!

Narrator 3 Mr. Fox added,

Mr. Fox Ex-actly!

Badger But how in the world can you know where we are?

Narrator 4 asked Mr. Badger. Mr. Fox grinned again, showing even more white teeth,

Mr. Fox Look, I know my way around these farms blindfolded. For me it’s just as easy below ground as it is above it.

Narrator 1 He reached high and pushed up one wooden floorboard, then another. He poked his head through the gap. He jumped up into the room above and shouted,

Mr. Fox I’ve done it again! I’ve hit it smack on the nose! Right in the bull’s-eye! Come and look!

Narrator 2 Quickly Badger and the three Small Foxes scrambled up after him. They stopped and stared. They stood and gaped. They were so overwhelmed they couldn’t speak; for what they saw was a kind of fox’s dream, a badger’s dream, a paradise for hungry animals.
Mr. Fox  This, my dear old Badger, is Bunce’s Mighty Storehouse! All his finest stuff is stored in here before he sends it off to market.

Narrator 3  Against all the four walls of the great room, stacked in cupboards and piled upon shelves reaching from floor to ceiling, were thousands and thousands of the finest and fattest ducks and geese, plucked and ready for roasting! And up above, dangling from the rafters, there must have been at least a hundred smoked hams and fifty sides of bacon!

Narrator 4  Mr. Fox, dancing up and down, cried out,

Mr. Fox  What d’you think of it, eh? Pretty good grub!

Narrator 1  Suddenly, as though springs had been released in their legs, the three hungry Small Foxes and the ravenously hungry Badger sprung forward to grab the luscious food. Quickly, Mr. Fox ordered,

Mr. Fox  Stop! This is my party, so I shall do the choosing.

Narrator 2  The others fell back, licking their chops. Mr. Fox began prowling around the storehouse examining the glorious display with an expert eye. A thread of saliva slid down one side of his jaw and hung suspended in mid-air, then snapped,
Mr. Fox  We mustn't overdo it. Mustn't give game away. Mustn't let them know what we've been up to. We must be neat and tidy and take just a few of the choicest morsels. So, to start with we shall have four plump young ducks.

Narrator 3  He took them from the shelf.

Mr. Fox  Oh, how lovely and fat they are! No wonder Bunce gets a special price for them in the market... All right, Badger, lend me a hand to get them down...You children can help as well...There we go...Goodness me, look how your mouths are watering...And now...I think we had better have a few geese...Three will be quite enough...We'll take the biggest...Oh my, oh my, you'll never see finer geese than these in a king's kitchen...Gently does it...that's the way...And what about a couple of nice smoked hams...I adore smoked ham, don't you Badger?...Fetch me that step-ladder, will you please?

Narrator 4  Mr. Fox climbed up the ladder and handed down three magnificent hams and said,

Mr. Fox  And do you like bacon, Badger?

Badger  I'm mad about bacon! Let's have a side of bacon! That big one up there!

Small Fox  And carrots, Dad! We must take some of those carrots.
Mr. Fox  Don’t be a twerp, you know we never eat things like that.

Small Fox  It’s not for us, Dad. It’s for the Rabbits. They only eat vegetables.

Mr. Fox  My goodness me, you’re right! What a thoughtful little fellow you are! Take ten bunches of carrots!

Narrator 1  Soon, all this lovely loot was lying in a neat heap upon the floor. The Small Foxes crouched close, their noses twitching, their eyes shining like stars.

Mr. Fox  And now, we shall have to borrow from our friend Bunce two of those useful push-carts over in the corner.

Narrator 2  He and Badger fetched the pushcarts, and the ducks and geese and hams and bacon were loaded on the them.

Narrator 3  The animals slid down after them. Back in the tunnel, Mr. Fox again pulled the floorboards very carefully into place so that no one could see they had been moved.

Mr. Fox  My darlings, take a cart each and run back as fast as you can to your mother. Give her my love and tell her we are having guests for dinner...the Badgers, the Moles, the Rabbits and the Weasels. Tell her it must be a truly great feast. And tell her the rest of us will be home as soon as we’ve done one more little job.
Small Fox    Yes, Dad! Right away, Dad!
Narrator 4    they answered, and they grabbed a trolley each and went rushing off down the tunnel.
Act 14

Badger Has Doubts

Narrator 1  Mr. Fox cried,
Mr. Fox  Just one more visit!
Small Fox  And I’ll bet I know where that’ll be!
Narrator 2  said the Small Fox now left, the smallest Fox of all.
Badger  Where?
Small Fox  Well, we’ve been to Boggis and we’ve been to Bunce but we haven’t been to Bean. It must be Bean.
Mr. Fox  You are right, but what you don’t knows which part of Bean’s place we are about to visit.
Small Fox & Badger  Which?
Mr. Fox  Ah-ha, just you wait and see.
Narrator 3  The tunnel was going forward fast. Suddenly Badger said,
Badger  Doesn’t this worry you just a tiny bit, Foxy?
Mr. Fox   Worry me? Why worry? Worry about what?

Badger   All this...this stealing.

Narrator 4   Mr. Fox stopped digging and stared at Badger as though he had gone completely dotty. He said,

Mr. Fox   My dear old furry frump, do you know anyone in the whole world who wouldn’t swipe a few chickens if his children were starving to death?

Narrator 1   There was a short silence while Badger thought deeply about this. Then Mr. Fox added, You are far too respectable.

Badger   There’s nothing wrong with being respectable.

Mr. Fox   Look, Boggis and Bunce and Bean are out to kill us. You realize that, I hope?

Badger   I do, Foxy, I do indeed.

Mr. Fox   But we’re not going to stoop to their level. We don’t want to kill them.

Badger   I should hope not, indeed.

Mr. Fox   We wouldn’t dream of it. We shall simply take a little food here and there to keep us and our families alive. Right?
Badger I suppose we’ll have to.

Mr. Fox If they want to be horrible, let them. We down here are decent peace-loving people.

Narrator 2 Badger laid his head on one side and smiled at Mr. Fox and said, Badger Foxy, I love you.

Mr. Fox Thank you. And now let’s get on with the digging.

Narrator 3 Five minutes later, Badger’s front paws hit against something flat and hard. He said, Badger What on earth is this? It looks like a solid stone wall.

Narrator 4 It was a wall. But it was built of bricks, not stones. The wall was right in front of them, blocking their way.

Badger Now who in the world would build a wall under the ground?

Narrator 1 asked Badger.

Mr. Fox Very simple. It’s the wall of an underground room. And if I’m not mistaken, it is exactly what I’m looking for.
Act 15

Bean’s Secret Cider Cellar

Narrator 2 Mr. Fox examined the wall carefully. He saw that the cement between the bricks was old and crumbly, so he loosened a brick without much trouble and pulled it away. Suddenly, out from the hole where the brick had been, there popped a small sharp face with whiskers. It snapped, Rat Go away! You can’t come in here! It’s private!

Narrator 3 Badger exclaimed,

Badger Good Lord! It’s Rat!

Narrator 4 Mr. Fox said,

Mr. Fox You saucy beast! I should have guessed we’d find you down here somewhere.

Rat Go away! Go on, beat it! This is my private pitch!

Mr. Fox Shut up!

Narrator 1 said Mr. Fox.

Rat I will not shut up! This is my place! I got here first!
Narrator 2  Mr. Fox gave a brilliant smile, flashing his white teeth, and said,

Mr. Fox  My dear Rat. I am a hungry fellow and if you don’t hop it quickly I shall eat-you-up-in-one-gulp!

Narrator 3  That did it. Rat popped back fast out of sight. Mr. Fox laughed and began pulling more bricks out of the wall. When he had made a biggish hole, he crept through it. Badger and the smallest Fox followed him in. They found themselves in a vast, damp, gloomy cellar. Mr. Fox cried,

Mr. Fox  This is it!

Badger  This is what?

Narrator 4  said the Badger.

Badger  The place is empty.

Small Fox  Where are the turkeys?

Narrator 1  asked the Smallest Fox, staring into the gloom.

Small Fox  I thought Bean was a turkey man.

Mr. Fox  He is a turkey man, but we’re not after turkeys now. We’ve got plenty of food.

Small Fox  Then what do we need, Dad?

Mr. Fox  Take a good look around. Don’t you see anything that interests you?
Badger and the Smallest Fox peered into the half darkness. As their eyes became accustomed to the gloom, they began to see what looked like a whole lot of big glass jars standing upon shelves around the walls. They went closer. They were jars. There were hundreds of them, and upon each one was written the word CIDER.

The Smallest Fox leaped high in the air and cried out,

Oh, Dad! Look what we’ve found! It’s cider!

Ex-actly!

Tremendous!

shouted Mr. Badger.

Bean’s Secret Cider Cellar!

said Mr. Fox.

But go carefully my dears. Don’t make a noise. This cellar is right underneath the farmhouse itself.

Cider, is especially good for Badgers. We take it as medicine...one large glass three times a day with meals and another at bedtime.

It will make the feast into a banquet.
While they were talking, the Smallest Fox had sneaked a jar off the shelf and had taken a gulp. He gasped, Wow! Wow-ee!

You must understand this was not the ordinary weak fizzy cider one buys in a store. It was the real stuff, a home-brewed fiery liquor that burned in your heart and boiled in your stomach.

The Smallest Fox gasped,

Ah-h-h-h-h-h! This is some cider!

That’s quite enough of that, said Mr. Fox, grabbing the jar and putting it to his own lips. He took a tremendous gulp and whispered, fighting for breath, he continued,

It’s miraculous! It’s fabulous!

It’s beautiful!

It’s my turn, said Badger, taking the jar and tilting his head well back. The cider gurgled and bubbled down his throat.

It’s. . . it’s like melted gold! Oh, Foxy, it’s . . . like drinking sunbeams and rainbows!
Narrator 4  Rat shrieked,

Rat  You’re poaching! Put that down at once! There’ll be none left for me!

Narrator 1  Rat was perched upon the highest shelf in the cellar, peering out from behind a huge jar. There was a small rubber tube inserted in the neck of the jar, and Rat was using this tube to suck out the cider.

Mr. Fox  You’re drunk!

Narrator 2  said Mr. Fox.

Rat  Mind your own business! And if you great clumsy brutes come messing about in here we’ll all be caught! Get out and leave me to sip my cider in peace!

Narrator 3  At that moment they heard a woman’s voice calling out in the house above them.

Narrator 4  The voice called, “Hurry up and get that cider, Mabel! You know Mr. Bean doesn’t like to be kept waiting! Especially when he’s been out all night in a tent!

Narrator 1  The animals froze. They stayed absolutely still, their ears pricked, their bodies tense. Then they heard the sound of a door being opened. The door was at the top of a flight of stone steps leading down from the house to the cellar.

Narrator 2  And now someone was starting to come down those steps...
Mr. Fox  Quick! Hide!

Narrator 3  said Mr. Fox. He and Badger and the Smallest Fox jumped up on to a shelf and crouched behind a row of big cider jars. Peering around the jars, they saw a huge woman coming down into the cellar.

Narrator 4  At the foot of the steps, the woman paused, looking to right and left. Then she turned and headed straight for the place where Mr. Fox and Badger and the Smallest Fox were hiding. She stopped right in front of them.

Narrator 1  The only thing between her and them was a row of cider jars. She was so close, Mr. Fox could hear the sound of her breathing. Peeping through the crack between two bottles, he noticed that she carried a big rolling-pin in one hand.

Narrator 2  “How many will he want this time, Mrs. Bean” the woman shouted. And from the top of the steps the other voice called back,

Narrator 3  “Bring up two or three jars.”

Narrator 4  “He drank four yesterday, Mrs. Bean.
Narrator 1 “Yes, but he won’t want that many today because he’s not going to be up there more than a few hours longer. He says the fox is bound to make a run for it this morning. It can’t possibly stay down that hole another day without food.”

Narrator 2 The woman in the cellar reached out and lifted a jar of cider from the shelf. The jar she took was next but one to the jar behind which Mr. Fox was crouching.

Narrator 3 “I’ll be glad when the rotten brute is killed and strung up on the front porch. And by the way, Mrs. Bean, your husband promised I could have the tail as a souvenir.”

Narrator 4 “The tails been all shot to pieces. Didn’t you know that?”

Narrator 1 You mean it’s ruined?

Narrator 2 “Of course it’s ruined. They shot the tail but missed the fox.”

Narrator 3 “Oh heck! I did so want that tail!”

Narrator 4 “You can have the head instead, Mabel. You can get it stuffed and hang it on your bedroom wall. Hurry up now with that cider!

Narrator 1 Yes, Ma’am, I’m coming.
Narrator 2 and she took a second jar from the shelf.

Narrator 3 Mr. Fox thought,

Mr. Fox If she takes one more, she’ll see us!

Narrator 4 Mr. Fox could feel the Smallest Fox’s body pressed tightly against his own, quivering with excitement.

Narrator 1 “Will two be enough, Mrs. Bean, or shall I take three?”

Narrator 2 “My goodness, Mabel, I don’t care so long as you get a move on!”

Narrator 3 Then two it is.” said the huge woman, speaking to herself now,” He drinks too much anyway.” Carrying a jar in each hand and with the rolling-pin under one arm, she walked away across the cellar. At the foot of the steps she paused and looked around, sniffing the air. “There’s rats down here again, Mrs. Bean. I can smell em”

Narrator 4 “Then poison them, woman, poison them! You know where the poison’s kept.”

Narrator 1 “Yes, Ma’am.”

Narrator 2 She climbed slowly out of sight up the steps. The door slammed.

Narrator 3 Mr. Fox quickly said,

Mr. Fox Quick! Grab a jar each and run for it!
Narrator 4  Rat stood on a high shelf and shrieked,

Rat  What did I tell you! You nearly got nabbed, didn’t you? You nearly gave the game away! You keep out of here from now on! I don’t want you around! This is my place!

Mr. Fox  You,

Narrator 1  said Mr. Fox.

Mr. Fox  are going to be poisoned.

Rat  Poppycock! I sit up here and watch 'er putting the stuff down. She’ll never get me.

Narrator 2  Mr. Fox and Badger and the Smallest Fox ran across the cellar clutching a gallon jar each. “Goodbye, Rat!” they called out as they disappeared through the hole in the wall. “Thanks for the lovely cider!”

Rat  Thieves! Robbers! Bandits! Burglars!
Act 17

The Great Feast

Narrator 3 Back in the tunnel they paused so that Mr. Fox could brick up the hole in the wall. He was humming to himself as he put the bricks back in place. He said,

Mr. Fox I can still taste that glorious cider. What an impudent fellow Rat is.

Badger He has bad manners.

Narrator 4 said Badger. He said,

Badger All rats have bad manners. I’ve never met a polite rat yet.

Narrator 1 They grabbed their jars of cider and off they went. Mr. Fox was in front, the Smallest Fox came next and Badger last. Along the tunnel they flew...past the turning that led to Bunce’s Mighty Storehouse...past Boggis’s Chicken House Number One and then up the long home stretch towards the place where they knew Mrs. Fox would be waiting.

Mr. Fox Keep it up, my darlings! We’ll soon be there! Think what’s waiting for us at the other end! And just think what we’re bringing home with us in these jars! That ought to cheer up poor Mrs. Fox.
Narrator 2  Mr. Fox sang a little song as he ran:

‘Home again swiftly I glide,
Back to my beautiful bride.
She’ll not feel so rotten
As soon as she’s gotten
Some cider inside her inside.’

Narrator 3  Then Badger joined in:

‘Oh poor Mrs. Badger, he cried,
So hungry she very near died.
But she’ll not feel so hollow
If only she’ll swallow
Some cider inside her inside’

Narrator 4  They were still singing as they rounded the final corner and burst in upon the most wonderful and amazing sight any of them had ever seen. The feast was just beginning. A large dining-room had been hollowed out of the earth, and in the middle of it, seated around a huge table, were no less than twenty-nine animals.

Narrator 1  They were:

Mrs. Fox and three Small Foxes.
Mrs. Badger and three Small Badgers.
Mole and Mrs. Mole and four Small Moles.
Rabbit and Mrs. Rabbit and five Small Rabbits.
Weasel and Mrs. Weasel and six Small Weasels.

The table was covered with chickens and ducks and geese and hams and bacon, and everyone was tucking into the lovely food.

Mrs. Fox  My darling!
Narrator 2 cried Mrs. Fox, jumping up and hugging Mr. Fox.

Mrs. Fox We couldn’t wait! Please forgive us!

Narrator 3 Then she hugged the Smallest Fox of all, and Mrs. Badger hugged Badger, and everyone hugged everyone else. Amid shouts of joy, the great jars of cider were placed upon the table, and Mr. Fox and Badger and the Smallest Fox sat down with the others.

Narrator 4 You must remember no one had eaten a thing for several days. They were ravenous. So for a while there was no conversation at all. There was only the sound of crunching and chewing as the animals attacked the succulent food. At last, Badger stood up. He raise his glass of cider and called out, Badger A toast! I want you all to stand and drink a toast to our dear friend who has saved our lives this day...Mr. Fox!

Narrator 1 “To Mr. Fox!” they all shouted, standing up and raising their glasses. “To Mr. Fox! Long may he live!”

Narrator 2 Then Mrs. Fox got to her feet and said,

Mrs. Fox I don’t want to make a speech. I just want to say one thing, and it is this: MY HUSBAND IS A FANTASTIC FOX!
Everyone clapped and cheered. Then Mr. Fox himself stood up.

Mr. Fox

This delicious meal...

he began, then he stopped. In the silence that followed, he let fly a tremendous belch. There was laughter and more clapping. He went on,

Mr. Fox

This delicious meal, my friends is by courtesy of Messrs Boggis, Bunce and Bean.

More cheering and laughter.

And I hope you have enjoyed it as much as I have.

He let fly another colossal belch.

Better out than in.

said Badger.

Thank you. But now, my friends, let us be serious. Let us think of tomorrow and the next day and the days after that. If we go out, we will be killed. Right?

Right!

We’ll be shot before we’ve gone a yard.
Mr. Fox: Ex-actly! But who wants to go out, anyway; let me ask you that? We are all diggers, every one of us. We hate the outside. The outside is full of enemies. We only go out because we have to, to get food for our families. But now, my friends, we have an entirely new set-up. We have a safe tunnel leading to three of the finest stores in the world!

Badger: We do indeed! I’ve seen ‘em!

Mr. Fox: And you know what this means! It means that none of us need ever go out into the open again!

Narrator 4: There was a buzz of excitement around the table.

Mr. Fox: I therefore invite you all, to stay here with me for ever.

Everyone: For ever!

Narrator 1: All said, “My goodness! How marvelous!” And Rabbit said to Mrs. Rabbit, “My dear, just think! We’re never going to be shot at again in our lives!”
Mr. Fox  We will make a little underground village, with streets and houses on each side...separate houses for Badgers and Moles and Rabbits and Weasels and Foxes. And every day I will go shopping for you all. And every day we will eat like kings.

Narrator 2 The cheering that followed this speech went on for many minutes.
Act 18

Still Waiting

Outside the fox’s hole, Boggis and Bunce and Bean sat beside their tents with their guns on their laps. It was beginning to rain. Water was trickling down the necks of the three men and into their shoes.

Boggis said,

He won’t stay down there much longer now.

The brute must be famished.

That’s right!

He’ll be making a dash for it any moment. Keep your guns handy.

They sat there by the hole, waiting for the fox to come out.

And so far as I know, they are still waiting.

THE END!
It was the first day of school. Peter had just met his 6th-grade teacher and classmates when a message came over the intercom asking him to come to the principal’s office.

You wanted to see me? I mean.........see me?

Said Peter to Mr. Green, the principal.

Hello, Peter. We’re having a bit of a problem with your brother.

Explained Mr. Green.
MR. GREEN: We’ve tried to get your mother or father on the phone, but there’s no answer, so we were hoping you’d be willing to help us.

PETER: What’d he do this time?

MR. GREEN: A number of things. Come on down to the kindergarten. I’ll show you.

NARRATOR: They walked down the hall together and entered the kindergarten. All of the children were busy...some building blocks, others painting, and a group playing house in the corner. Peter’s brother, Fudge, was nowhere to be seen. Mrs. Hildebrandt, the teacher, came limping toward Mr. Green and Peter.

Mrs. H.: Oh, Mr. Green, I’m so glad you’re here. I can’t do a thing with him. He still refuses to come down.

NARRATOR: Peter looked up. There was Fudge perched on top of the cabinets, just inches from the ceiling.

FUDGE: (Waving to Peter) Hi, Pee-tah!

PETER: What are you doing up there?

FUDGE: Resting

PETER: Come on down.

FUDGE: No, I don’t like this school. I quit!

MR. GREEN: You can’t quit.
NARRATOR:     Said Mr. Green.

FUDGE:       Why not?

MR. GREEN:   Because going to school is your job. Otherwise what will you be when you grow up?

FUDGE:       A bird!

MR. GREEN:   (Laughing) Creative, isn’t he?

MRS. H.:     I wouldn’t necessarily call it that.

PETER:       Why’d he climb up there in the first place Mrs. Hildebrandt?

MRS. H.:     Well, that is a long story.

FUDGE:       Because she’s mean. (Spelling) M...E...A...N, Mean!

MRS. H.:     Mr. Green, you’ve known me for a long time and I ask you, have I ever been mean to a child...knowingly, consciously, intentionally mean? Especially on the first day of school?

FUDGE:       (Interrupting) She wouldn’t call me FUDGE! That’s why I had to kick her.

PETER:       He kicked you?

NARRATOR:    Peter asked Mrs. Hildebrandt in a horrified manner.
MRS. H.: (Lifting her skirt and pointing to her bruised shin) And I don’t mind telling you that I was in great pain. I almost passed out...right in front of the children.

PETER: Is that when he climbed to the top of the cabinet?

MRS. H.: (Primly) That is correct.

FUDGE: (Loudly) Because she wouldn’t call me FUDGE!

MRS. H.: It’s not a proper name. And it’s not as if he hasn’t got a proper name. He has!....FARLEY DREXEL HATCHER. I told him I would call him Farley.....or I would call him Drexel.......or I would call him F.D.

FUDGE: (Louder) But she wouldn’t call me FUDGE!

NARRATOR: All the little kids turned around and suddenly the room was very quiet.

MRS. H.: That’s right. Fudge is a good name for candy. It is not a good name for a boy.

FUDGE: (Shouting) I told you. I’m a bird!

MRS. H.: There is something very definitely wrong with that child.
PETER: (Explaining) There’s nothing wrong with him! My mother calls him Fudge. My father calls him Fudge. My grand-mother calls him Fudge. My friends call him Fudge. I call him Fudge......He calls himself Fudge...

MR. GREEN: Yes, we get the picture.

MRS. H.: I can’t imagine a parent actually deciding to call a child Fudge!

PETER: You don’t know my parents.

MR. GREEN: (Decisively) I think what we have here is a basic personality conflict. So I suggest that we transfer Fudge to Ms. Ziff’s kindergarten.

MRS. H.: Splendid idea! The sooner the better.

PETER: (To Fudge) You can come down now. You’re going into the other kindergarten.

FUDGE: Will the teacher call me Fudge?

MR. GREEN: As long as you want her to.

FUDGE: And will she let me use the round blocks?

MRS. H.: (Explaining to Mr. Green) I never let them use the round blocks on the first day. It’s one of my rules.

FUDGE: You can’t build anything good without the round blocks.
MR. GREEN: (To Fudge) We’ll ask Ms. Ziff. But we do have rules here...and you will have to obey them.

FUDGE: As long as I can use the round blocks.

NARRATOR: Mr. Green loosened his shirt collar and wiped off his forehead with a handkerchief. Just then Fudge started climbing down. Mr. Green reached up and lifted him the rest of the way down.

MRS. H.: Good-bye, Farley Drexel.

FUDGE: Good-bye, Rat Face.

PETER: (Nudging Fudge and whispering) You don’t go around calling teachers Rat Face.

FUDGE: Not even if they have one?

PETER: Not even then.

NARRATOR: Mr. Green and Peter took Fudge next door to Ms. Ziff’s kindergarten. Mr. Green handed her Fudge’s registration card.

MR. GREEN: His name is Farley Drexel. But everybody calls him Fudge.

MS. ZIFF: (Smiling at Fudge) And I’ll bet you’re as sweet as your name.

FUDGE: (Agreeing) I am.
PETER: (To himself) Just ask Mrs. Hildebrandt!

Characters:
Narrator
Five Birds
Parson
Old Woman
Skolinkenlot
Cat
Skohottentot
Seven Girls

Narrator
There once was an old woman who was cooking some gruel. She had some business with a neighbor woman and asked the cat if he would look after the gruel while she was gone.

Cat
I’ll be glad to.

Narrator
But when the old woman had gone, the gruel looked so good that the cat ate it all. And the pot, too. When the old woman came back she said to the cat,

Old Woman
Now what has happened to the gruel?
Cat
Oh, I ate the gruel and I ate the pot, too. And now I am going to also eat YOU!

Narrator
And he ate the old woman. He went for a walk and on the way he met Skohottentot.

Skohottentot
What have you been eating, my little cat? You are so FAT!

Cat
I ate the gruel and the pot and the old woman, too. And now I am going to also eat YOU!

Narrator
So he ate Skohottentot. Afterwards, he met Skolinkenlot.

Skolinkenlot
What have you been eating, my little cat? You are so FAT!

Cat
I ate the gruel and the pot and the old woman, too, and Skohottentot. And now I am going to also eat YOU!

Narrator
So he ate Skolinkenlot. Next, he met five birds in a flock.

Five Birds
What have you been eating, my little cat? You are so FAT!

Cat
I ate the gruel and the pot and the old woman, too, and Skohottentot and Skolinkenlot. And now I am going to also eat YOU!
Narrator  And he ate the five birds in a flock. Later, he met seven girls dancing. And they, too, said to him, Seven Girls  Gracious! What have you been eating, my little cat. You are so FAT!

Cat  I ate the gruel and the pot and the old woman, too, and Skohottentot and Skolinkenlot and five birds in a flock and seven girls dancing. And now I am going to also eat YOU!

Narrator  And he ate the lady with the pink parasol. And a little later he met a person with a crooked staff.

Parson  Dear me! What have you been eating, my little cat? You are so FAT!

Cat  Oh. I ate the gruel and the pot and the old woman, too, and Skohottentot and Skolinkenlot and five birds in a flock and seven girls dancing and the lady with the pink parasol.

And now I’m going to eat you!

THE END!
The Fox and His Friends

READER’S THEATER
(an original play)
by Debbie Mayer

Characters:
Narrator   Fox   Louise   Mom

Narrator: Fox went to the park and sat down on a bench.

Fox: This is awful! Today is Saturday, but there is no one to have fun with, no one at all!

Narrator: Fox thought long and hard.

Fox: Nothing to do here, come on Louise.

Narrator: But Louise did not answer.

Fox: She must be hiding. (as he looked around, but Louise was not there). This is serious! (then he looked all over the park...Louise was gone). Oh, Dear, this is very serious (fox left the park).

Louise: YOO-HOO!
Narrator  Fox looked up…it was Louise.

Fox   COME DOWN THIS MINUTE!

Louise   COME AND GET ME!

Fox   COME DOWN RIGHT NOW!

Louise   NO!

Fox   All right, I’m coming up. (fox took a deep breath and climbed the telephone pole). I don’t like high places.

Narrator  Fox and Louise came down the Fox! You are in trouble!

Narrator   On the way home, fox had a terrible thought. What if Louise tells? (he said to himself). I will really get it. Fox bought Louise the biggest ice cream cone he could buy.

Fox   You must not tell.

Louise   Maybe I will and maybe I won’t.

Mom   What have you two been up to?

Narrator  Fox held his breath.

Louise   We went to the park.

Mom   And?
Louise: And...fox bought me an ice cream cone.

Mom: And?

Louise: And...then we came home.

Mom: How sweet, fox.

Fox: You’re OK, Louise!

The End
Narr. Franklin could count by twos and tie his shoes.
He could zip zippers and button buttons.
But Franklin was worried about starting school.
And that was a problem because Franklin was going to school for the very first time.
Franklin woke up with the sun.

Franklin It's my first day of school!

Narr. he told Goldie, his fish.
Franklin packed his new pencil case with a ruler, a pencil, an eraser, and twelve colored pencils that he had sharpened himself.
Then he woke his parents.

Franklin Hurry,

Narr. he said to his parents.
Franklin I cannot be late for school. Franklin's mother looked at the clock.

Mother Even the teacher is not awake,

Narr. she laughed.

Mother It is too early.

Father You must be very excited,

Narr. said Franklin's father. Franklin nodded. It was so early that there was no time to make a big breakfast.

Father You'll need a full tummy to work at school,

Narr. said Franklin's father. Franklin was not hungry.

Franklin I already have a full tummy,

Narr. he said.

Franklin It feels like it is full of jumping frogs.

Narr. Franklin's mother gave him a hug.

Mother I felt that way on my first day of school. But the funny feeling went away.
Narr. Franklin ate a little. He double-checked his book bag. Finally, it was time to go school. Halfway to the bus stop, Franklin clutched his tummy.

Franklin I don't want to go,
Narr. he said. Franklin's father gave him a hug.
Father That's how I felt when I started school,
Narr. he said.
Father Look. All of your friends are waiting for the bus.
Narr. There was a big crowd at the bus stop. There were brothers and sisters and mothers and fathers. Beaver was carrying her favorite book.

Beaver I can read it,
Narr. she said.
Bear All of it?
Narr. asked Bear.
Beaver Yes,
Narr. she answered proudly. Franklin rubbed his tummy. Rabbit pulled out a brand new notebook.
Rabbit: My big sister showed me how to write my numbers,

Narr.: he said.

Fox: All of them?

Narr.: asked Fox.

Rabbit: Most of them,

Narr.: boasted Rabbit.

Franklin looked at his mother.

Franklin: I want to go home,

Narr.: he said.

Mother: We will be here after school to hear about all the things you did today,

Narr.: she said.

When the bus arrived, Rabbit grabbed his sister's hand and climbed aboard.
Bear stood on the steps and waved good-bye again and again.
Franklin hugged his mother, then his father.

Narr.: He kept hugging even after his friends had found seats.
As the bus pulled away, Franklin looked out the window.
He didn't know if he was ready for school.

Rabbit: Do you think the teacher will yell?
Narr. wondered Rabbit, who jumped at loud noises.

Beaver Do you think there is a bathroom at school?

Narr. asked Beaver, fidgeting in her seat.

Bear I hope somebody has an extra snack,

Narr. said Bear, who had already eaten his. Franklin did not say anything.
The bus ride seemed very, very long. When they arrived, their teacher was waiting.
Mr. Owl said hello in a gentle voice. He showed them where to hang their coats and where to sit.
He showed them where to find the bathroom and offered everyone a piece of fruit.
Then, Beaver and Bear went to the reading and writing center. Rabbit went to the play kitchen.

Mr. Owl What would you like to do today, Franklin?

Narr. asked Mr. Owl.

Franklin I don't know,

Narr. said Franklin, rubbing his tummy.

Franklin I cannot write all the numbers like Rabbit can.
I cannot read like Beaver can.
Mr. Owl  Rabbit and Beaver will learn new things at school, and so will you.
Narr.   Franklin started to doodle.
Mr. Owl  I can see that you are a very good artist,
Narr.   said the teacher.
           Franklin sat up taller.
Franklin  I know all my colors too,
Narr.   he said.
Mr. Owl  What color is this?
Narr.   asked Mr. Owl, holding up a colored pencil.
Franklin  It's a special blue,
Narr.   said Franklin.
Franklin  It is turquoise.
Mr. Owl  Now you have taught me something,
Narr.   said Mr. Owl.
Mr. Owl  Is there something special you would like to learn?
Narr. There were so many things Franklin wanted to learn that he had trouble deciding. Finally, he asked Mr. Owl to help him read his favorite book. Franklin made a building of blocks. He sorted the money in the classroom store and painted four pictures. One for the teacher, one for himself, and two for his parents. It was a wonderful day. Franklin sat at the back of the bus all the way home. He bumped up and down. He was so busy having fun that he almost forgot to get off at his stop. His parents were waiting.

Mother How is your tummy?

Narr. his mother asked. Franklin looked puzzled. It had been such a good day that he had forgotten all about his jumpy tummy.

Franklin My tummy is empty!

Narr. he said.

Father That's a feeling that will go away too,

Narr. said Franklin's father.

Mother I made this for you,
Narr. said Franklin's mother. She gave Franklin his favorite snack, fly pie.

Franklin And I made this for you,

Narr. said Franklin. He gave his parents two pictures and two big hugs.

The End
The princess kissed the frog. He turned into a prince. And they lived happily ever after...

Well, let’s just say they lived sort of happily for a long time. Okay, so they weren’t so happy. In fact they were miserable!

Princess (nagging) Stop sticking your tongue out like that!

Prince (whining) How come you never want to go down to the pond anymore?
Narrator  The Prince and Princess were so unhappy. They didn’t know what to do.

Princess  I would prefer that you not hop around on the furniture. And it might be nice if you got out of the castle once in a while to slay a dragon or giant or whatever.

Narrator  The Prince didn’t feel like going out and slaying anything. He just felt like running away. But then he reread his book. And it said right there at the end of his story:

Prince  They lived happily ever after... The End.

Narrator  So he stayed in the castle and drove the Princess crazy. Then one day, the Princess threw a perfectly awful fit.

Princess  First you keep me awake all night with your horrible croaking snore. Now I find a lily pad in your pocket. I can’t believe I actually kissed your slimy frog lips. Sometimes I think we would both be better off if you were still a frog.

Prince  (thinking to self) Still a frog...Yes! That’s it!
Narrator: And he ran off into the forest, looking for a witch who could turn him back into a frog. The Prince hadn’t gone far when he ran into just the person he was looking for.

Prince: Miss Witch...Miss Witch. Excuse me, Miss Witch. I wonder if you could help me?

Witch 1: Say, you’re not looking for a princess to kiss, are you?

Prince: On, no. I’ve already been kissed. I’m the Frog Prince. Actually, I was hoping you could turn me back into a frog.

Witch 1: Are you sure you’re not looking for a beautiful sleeping princess to kiss and wake up?

Prince: No, No! I’m the Frog Prince.

Witch 1: That’s funny. You don’t look like a frog. Well, no matter. If you’re a prince, you’re a prince. And I’ll have to cast a nasty spell on you. I can’t have any princes waking up Sleeping Beauty before the hundred years are up.

Narrator: The Prince didn’t stick around to see which nasty spell the witch had in mind. He ran deeper into the forest until he came to a tiny cottage where he saw another lady who might help him.
Prince: Miss Witch...Miss Witch. Excuse me, Miss Witch. I wonder if you could help me. I'm a prince and...

Witch 2: Eh? What did you say?......Prince?

Prince: No. I mean, yes. I mean, no. I'm not the prince looking for Sleeping Beauty. But yes, I'm the Frog Prince. And I'm looking for a member of your profession who can turn me back into a frog so I can live happily ever after.

Witch 2: Frog Prince, you say? That's funny. I thought frogs were little green guys with webbed feet. Well, no matter. If you're a prince, you're a prince. And I can't have any princes rescuing Snow White. Here...eat the rest of this apple.

Narrator: The Prince, who knew his fairy tales (and knew a poisoned apple when he saw one), didn't even stay to say, "No thank you!" He turned and ran deeper into the forest. Soon he came to a strange-looking house with a witch outside.

Prince: Ahem... Miss Witch...Miss Witch.....Excuse me, Miss Witch. I wonder if you could help me? I'm the frog...

Witch 3: If you're a frog, I'm the King of France!
Prince: No, I’m not a frog. I’m the Frog Prince. But I need a witch to turn me back into a frog, so I can live happily ever after...can you do it?

Witch 3: (licking lips) Why, of course, dearie. Come right in. Maybe I can fit you in for lunch.

Prince: (Walks up witch’s steps, breaks off a corner of house). I hope you don’t mind my asking, Miss Witch. But do you happen to know any children by the name of Hansel and Gretel?

Witch 3: Why yes, Prince darling, I do. I’m expecting them for dinner.

Narrator: The Prince, who, as we said before, knew his fairy tales, ran as fast as he could deeper into the forest. Soon he was completely lost. He saw someone standing next to a tree.

Prince: (cautiously) Madame. I am the Frog Prince. Could you help me?

Fairy Godmother: Gosh, do you need it! You are the worst-looking frog I’ve ever seen!

Prince: (annoyed) I am not a frog! I am the Frog Prince. And I need someone to turn me back into a frog, so I can live happily ever after.
Fairy
Well, I’m on my way to see a girl in the village Godmother, about going to a ball, but I suppose I could give it a try. I’ve never done frogs before, you know.

Narrator
And with that, the Fairy Godmother waved her magic wand, and turned the Prince into beautiful...carriage. The Prince couldn’t believe his rotten luck. The sun went down. The forest got spookier. And the Prince became more and more frightened.

Prince
Oh, what an idiot I’ve been. I could be sitting at home with the Princess, living happily ever after. But instead, I’m stuck here in the middle of this stupid forest, turned into a stupid carriage.

Prince
Now I’ll probably just rot and fall apart and live unhappily ever after!

Narrator
The Prince thought these terrible, frightening kinds of thoughts (and a few worse...too awful to tell), until far away in the village, the clock struck midnight. The carriage instantly turned back into his former Prince-self, and ran by the light of the moon until he was safe inside his own castle.
Princess: Where have you been? I’ve been worried sick! You’re seven hours late! Your dinner is cold! Your clothes are a mess!

Narrator: The Prince looked at the Princess who had believed him when no one else in the world had, the Princess who had actually kissed his slimy frog lips. The Princess who loved him.

Prince and Princess Kiss!!!

Narrator: The Prince kissed the Princess. They both turned into frogs. And they lived happily ever after!

Characters:

Narrator 1
Narrator 2
General Clay
General Gore

Narrator 1: Said General Clay to General Gore,

Clay: Oh must we fight this silly war?
To kill and die is such a bore.

Gore: I quite agree,

Narrator 2: said General Gore.

Narrator 1: Said General Gore to General Clay,

Gore: We could go to the beach today.
And have some ice cream on the way.

Clay: A grand idea,

Narrator 2: said General Clay.
Narrator 1: Said General Clay to General Gore, we'll build sand castles on the shore.

Narrator 2: Said General Gore, we'll splash and play.

Clay: Let's leave right now,

Narrator 1: said General Clay.

Narrator 2: Said General Gore to General Clay, But what if the sea is closed today? And what if the sand's been blown away?

Clay: A dreadful thought,

Narrator 1: said General Clay.

Narrator 2: Said General Gore to General Clay, I've always feared the ocean's spray, And we may drown!

Clay: It's true we may. It chills my blood,

Narrator 1: Said General Clay.

Narrator 2: Said General Clay to General Gore, My bathing suit is slightly tore. We'd better go on with our war.

Gore: I quite agree,
Narrator 1: said General Gore.

Narrator 2: Then General Clay charged General Gore. As bullets flew and cannons roared. And now, alas! there is no more. Of General Clay or General Gore.

GROUP 1 GROUP 2 PARTS FOR 16 CHILDREN

All: Geography, can you believe,
Some think we know none of it?
But we will show how much we know.
In fact, we’ll prove we love it!

Group 1: The continents! We know all seven!
(shouting)

Group 2: Let’s hear them if that’s so.

Group 1: Antarctica, Australia,

Group 2: Two down and five to go.

Group 1: North America, South America, Asia, Europe, too, Africa...that says them all!

Group 2: But wait, now we’ll show you
The states! There are fifty of them.
We’ll stand here and list them,
Count them as we say them,
To be sure we haven’t missed them.

Child 1: Alabama, Alaska, Arizona, Arkansas,

Child 2: California, Colorado, Connecticut
(rubbing (oh, my tired jaw!))
Child 3: Florida, Georgia, Hawaii,

Child 4: Idaho and Illinois
Indiana, Iowa, Kansas
(16 done, oh boy!)

Child 5: Kentucky, Tennessee, Louisiana, Maine,

Child 6: Maryland and Delaware
(pointing to temple)
(they’re all here in my brain)

Child 7: Massachusetts and Rhode Island, Michigan... and of course,

Child 8: Minnesota, Mississippi, Missouri
(rubbing throat)
(I feel hoarse!)

Child 9: Montana, Nebraska, Nevada
(19 more to go!)

Child 10: New Hampshire and Vermont,
New Jersey, New Mexico!

Child 11: New York, North Carolina, North Dakota, too, Child 12: Ohio, Oklahoma, (10 more and we’re through!).

Child 13: Oregon, Pennsylvania, South Carolina, and...

Child 14: South Dakota, Texas, Utah,
(almost to the end!)

Child 15: Virginia, Washington, and West Virginia, too..
Child 16: Wisconsin and Wyoming!

All: There! We said them all for you! Geography! Can you believe it? Some think we never learned it? But we get A’s and lots of praise. Now, clap if you think we’ve earned it!

(They all clap and pat each other on the back, ad libbing, “Good job!”, “You were great!”, etc.)

Narrator: Once upon a time there lived a little old woman and a little old man. They had no boys or girls of their own, so they lived all by themselves in a little old house. One day the little old woman said,

Old Woman: "I'm going to bake some gingerbread."

Old Man: "Good, I love Gingerbread,"
Narrator: said the old man. So the little old woman got some flour and some sugar, some ginger and some butter, and some milk. Then she got bowl and a spoon and a cup. She measured and she mixed. Then she made a Gingerbread Man. He had a head and a body, and two arms and two legs. Then she gave him eyes and a mouth of raisins and currents and stuck on a cinnamon drop for a nose. She put a row of cherries down his jacket for buttons. Then she put the Gingerbread Man in the oven to bake. Soon the little old man and the little old woman smelled the gingerbread cooking.

Old Man: "Mmmm,"

Narrator: said the little old man

Old man "That smells good. Is it ready to eat?"

Old woman: "Soon"

Narrator: But the little old man was hungry. So he opened the oven door. Out jumped the Gingerbread Man. He ran through the door and down the steps.
Old Man: "STOP!"
Old Woman: "STOP!"
Narrator: But the gingerbread man ran faster and FASTER...
As he ran he called,

Gingerbread Man: “Run, run, as fast as you can. You can't catch me I'm the Gingerbread Man.”

Narrator: The Little old man and woman both ran after him. And they couldn't catch him. The Gingerbread man ran past a boy and a girl.

Boy: "Uml um! You smell good! Stop little Gingerbread Man! I want to eat you."

Girl: "Um! um! You do smell good! I want to eat you too."

Narrator: But the little Gingerbread Boy laughed and said:

Gingerbread Man: “Run run as fast as you can. You can’t catch me I'm the Gingerbread man.”

Narrator: The little old man and woman, the boy and girl, all ran after him. The Gingerbread Man ran past a dog and a cat.
Dog: "Stop! I want to eat you!"

Narrator: Barked the dog.

Cat: "Stop! I want to eat you!"

Narrator: Meowed the cat.

But the Ginger man ran faster and said:

Gingerbread Man: “Run run as fast as you can. You can't catch me I'm the Gingerbread Man.

Narrator: The little old man and woman, the boy and the girl, the dog and the cat, all ran after him. The Gingerbread man ran on and on. Until suddenly, he came to a wide river.

Gingerbread Man: "What am I going to do?"

Narrator: The little old man and woman, the boy and the girl, the cat and the dog, all came Closer and CLOSER. Then along came a fox.

Fox: "Don't worry, I'll carry you over the river."

Gingerbread Man: "Thank you"
Narrator: He climbed on the fox's back.

Fox: Hold on tight.

Narrator: The Gingerbread man held on tightly while the fox swam and swam.

Gingerbread Man: "Help! My feet are getting wet. I'll melt."

Fox: "Climb on to my head."

Narrator: But soon the Gingerbread Man said:

Gingerbread Man: "Help! My body is getting wet. I'll melt."

Fox: "Climb onto my nose."

Narrator: So the Gingerbread Man climbed out on to the fox's nose.

ALL: SNIP SNAP!

Narrator: The fox gobbled up the Gingerbread Man in one bite.

THE SAD END
An old couple did not have any children. One day, the wife made a gingerbread man. She mixed flour and butter, treacle and sugar, and eggs.

She gave him bright currant eyes and a cheeky smile. Then she put him in the oven. A little while later, the old woman heard a tiny voice:

I'm ready, I'm ready. Let me out. Let me out!
Narrator: She opened the oven door and out jumped the gingerbread man.

Old Woman: Stop!

Narrator: called the old woman

Old Woman: Please don't leave us!

Narrator: But he laughed out loud:

Gingerbread Man: Run, run as fast as you can.
You can't catch me.
I'm the gingerbread man!

Narrator: And he jumped out of the window.
In the street, the gingerbread man met a black cat.

Black Cat: It's my lucky day,

Narrator: meowed the cat

Black Cat: stop and play with me.

Narrator: The gingerbread man just laughed:

Gingerbread Man: Run, run, as fast as you can.
You can't catch me.
I'm the gingerbread man!

Narrator: And he disappeared beneath a cart.
Next, the gingerbread man met a dog.

Dog: Stop!
Narrator: Barked the Dog.

Dog: You smell good! Let me sniff you!

Narrator: But the gingerbread man only laughed.

Gingerbread Man: Run, run, as fast as you can. You can't catch me. I'm the gingerbread man!

Narrator: And he escaped into the market. When they saw the old couple, the cat and the dog chasing the gingerbread man, all the stallholders joined in. But the gingerbread man just laughed:

Gingerbread Man: Run, run, as fast as you can. You can't catch me. I'm the gingerbread man!

Narrator: And he left them all behind. The children were coming out of school.

Children: Look! A real live gingerbread man. Let's catch him!

Narrator: But the gingerbread man laughed even louder:
Gingerbread Man: Run, run, as fast as you can.
You can't catch me.
I'm the gingerbread man!

Narrator: And he set off across the fields.
But when the gingerbread man reached the river, he couldn't swim.

Fox: Jump on my tail.
I'll take you across,

Narrator: Said a fox, who was sitting there.
The crowd came nearer and nearer,
so he did as the fox said.
Halfway across, the gingerbread man called out:

Gingerbread Man: Mr. Fox, your tail is getting wet!

Fox: Don't worry jump on my back!

Narrator: Said the fox.
And the gingerbread man did as he was told.
But the fox's back was soon wet, too.

Fox: Quick,

Narrator: Said the sly fox.

Fox: Jump on my nose, before it's too late!
Narrator: As the gingerbread man jumped, the Into the fox' s mouth went the gingerbread man.

Gingerbread Man: I'm a quarter gone, I'm a half gone,
I'm three-quarters gone!

Narrator: He cried .
Then he said no more.
And that was the end of the gingerbread man....
Or was it?

Narr. 1      Narr. 2      Narr. 3      Narr. 4      Narr. 5

Narr. 1 If you had a giraffe...
Narr. 2 and he stretched another half...
Narr. 3 you would have a giraffe and a half.
Narr. 4 If he put on a hat, and inside lived a rat...
Narr. 5 you would have a giraffe and a half with a rat in his hat.
Narr. 1 If you dressed him in a suit, and he looked really cute...
Narr. 2 you would have a giraffe and a half with a rat in his hat, looking cute in a suit.
Narr. 3 If you glued a rose, on the tip of his nose...
Narr. 4 you would have a giraffe and a half with a rat in his hat, looking cute in a suit, with a rose on his nose.

Narr. 5 If a bumbley old bee, stung him right on the knee...

Narr. 1 you would have a giraffe and a half with a rat in his hat, looking cute in a suit, with a rose on his nose, and a bee on his knee.

Narr. 2 If he put on a shoe, and then stepped in some glue...

Narr. 3 you would have a giraffe and a half with a rat in his hat, looking cute in a suit, with a rose on his nose, and a bee on his knee, and some glue on his shoe.

Narr. 4 if you gave him a flute, and he played tooty-toot...

Narr. 5 you would have a giraffe and a half with a rat in his hat, looking cute in a suit, with a rose on his nose, and a bee on his knee, and some glue on his shoe, playing toot on a flute.
Narr. 1  If he used a chair, to comb his hair...

Narr. 2  you would have a giraffe and a half with a rat in his hat, looking cute in a suit, and a bee on his knee, and some glue on his shoe, playing toot on a flute, with a chair in his hair.

Narr. 1  you would have a giraffe and a half with a rat in his hat, looking cute in his suit, with a rose on his nose, and a bee on his knee, and some glue on his shoe, playing toot on a flute, Narr. 2 with a chair in his hair, and a snake eating cake, and a skunk in a trunk.

Narr. 3 If he fell in a hole, that was dug by a mole...

Narr. 4 you would have a giraffe and a half with a rat in his hat, looking cute in a suit, with a rose on his nose, and a bee on his knee, and some glue on his shoe, playing toot on a flute, with a chair in his hair, and a snake eating cake, and a skunk in a trunk, in a hole with a mole.

Narr. 5 But...if you brought him a pole to climb out of the hole...

Narr. 1 and he gave his chair, to a tired old bear...

Narr. 2 and traded the flute, to a bird for some fruit...

Narr. 3 and he told that old snake, to go jump in the lake...

Narr. 4 and a man who bought junk, bought the trunk with the skunk...

Narr. 5 and he gave the rose, to a girl he chose...
Narr. 1 while the bee on his knee, flew away with a flea...

Narr. 2 and he put the shoe, with the glue, on you...

Narr. 3 and that silly old rat, ran away with his hat...

Narr. 4 and he put his suit, in the laundry chute...

Narr. 5 and he shrank another half...

Narr. 1 you would have a giraffe!

The End
Once there was a tree...and she loved the little boy.

And every day the boy would come and he would gather her leaves and make them into crowns and play king of the forest.

He would climb up her trunk and swing from her branches and eat apples.

And they would play hide-and-go-seek.

And when he was tired, he would sleep in her shade.

And the boy loved the tree...very much.

And the tree was very happy.

But time went by.

And the boy grew older.

And the tree was left all alone.
Then one day the boy came to the tree and the tree said.

Tree  Come, Boy, come and climb up my trunk and swing from my branches and eat apples and play in my shade and be happy.

Boy  I am too big to climb and play. I want to buy things and have fun. I want some money. Can you give me some money?

Tree  I’m sorry. But I have no money. I only have leaves and apples. Take my apples, Boy, and sell them in the city. Then you will have money and you will be happy.

And so the boy climbed up the tree and gathered her apples and carried them away.

And the tree was happy.

But the boy stayed away for a long time...and the tree was sad.

And then one day the boy came back and tree shook with joy and she said.

Tree  Come, Boy, climb up my trunk and swing from my branches and be happy.

Boy  I am too busy to climb trees. I want a house to keep me warm. I want a wife and I want children, and so I need a house. Can you give me a house?

Tree  I have no house. The forest is my house, but you can cut off my branches and build a house. Then you will be happy.
And so the boy cut off her branches and carried them away to build his house.

And the tree was happy.

But the boy stayed away for a long time.

And when he came back, the tree was so happy she could hardly speak.

Come, Boy. (whispered) Come and play.

I am too old and sad to play. I want a boat that will take me far away from here. Can you give me a boat?

Cut down my trunk and make a boat. Then you can sail away and be happy.

And so the boy cut down her trunk and made a boat and sailed away.

And the tree was happy...but not really.

And after a long time the boy came back again.

I am sorry, Boy. But I have nothing left to give you. My apples are gone.

My teeth are too weak for apples.

My branches are all gone. You cannot swing on them-

I am too old to swing on branches.

My trunk is gone, you cannot climb.
Boy: I am too tired to climb.

Tree: I am sorry. (Sigh) I wish that I could give you something...but I have nothing left. I am just an old stump. I am sorry...

Boy: I don’t need very much now, just a quiet place to sit and rest. I am very tired.

Tree: Well.

N-2: Straightening herself up as much as she could.

Tree: Well, an old stump is good for sitting and resting. Come, Boy, sit down. Sit down and rest.

N-3: And the boy did.

N-1: And the tree was happy.

- Narrator 3
- Goldilocks
- Papa Bear
- Mama Bear
- Baby Bear
Narrator 1: Through the thicket, across the river, and deep, deep, in the woods, lived a family of bears... a Papa Bear, a Mama Bear, and a Baby Bear... and they lived together anthropomorphically in a little cottage as a nuclear family.

Narrator 2: They were very sorry about this, of course, since the nuclear family has traditionally served to enslave womyn, instill a self-righteous moralism in its members, and imprint rigid notions of heterosexualist roles onto the next generation. Nevertheless, they tried to be happy and took steps to avoid these pitfalls, such as naming their offspring the non-gender-specific "Baby."

Narrator 1: One day, in their little anthropomorphomorphic cottage, they sat down to breakfast. Papa Bear had prepared big bowls of all-natural porridge for them to eat. But straight off the stove, the porridge was too thermally enhanced to eat. So they left their bowls to cool and took a walk to visit their animal neighbors.
Narrator 2: After the bears left, a melanin impoverished young woman emerged from the bushes and crept up to the cottage. Her name was Goldilocks, and she had been watching the bears for days. She was, you see, a biologist who specialized in the study of anthropomorphomorphic bears. At one time she had been a professor, but her aggressive, masculine approach to science... ripping of the thin veil of Nature, exposing its secrets, penetrating its essence, using it for her own selfish needs, and bragging about such violations in the letters columns of various magazines...had led to her dismissal.

Narrator 1: The rogue biologist had been watching the cottage for some time. Her intent was to collar the bears with radio transmitters and then follow them in their migratory and other life patterns, with an utter disregard for their personal (or rather, animal) privacy. With scientific espionage the only thing in mind, Goldilocks broke into the bears' cottage. In the kitchen, she laced the bowls of porridge with a tranquilizing potion. Then, in the bedroom, she rigged snares beneath the pillows of each bed. Her plan was to drug the bears and, when they stumbled into the bedroom to take a nap, lash radio collars to their necks as their heads hit the pillows.
Goldilocks: “These bears will be my ticket to the top!!
I’ll show those twerps at the university the kind off guts it takes to do real research!!!”

Narrator 2: She crouched in a corner of the bedroom and waited.
And waited, and waited some more.
But the bears took so long to come back from their walk that she fell asleep.

Narrator 1: When the bears finally came home, they sat down to eat breakfast.
Then they stopped.

Papa Bear: “Does your porridge smell...off, Mama?”

Mama Bear: “Yes, it does. Does yours smell off... Baby?”

Baby Bear: “Yes, it does. It smells kind of... chemical-y”

Narrator 2: Suspicious, they rose from the table and went into the living room.

Papa Bear: (Sniffing) “Do you smell something else, Mama?”

Mama Bear: “Yes, I do. Do you smell something else, Baby?”

Baby Bear: “Yes, I do. It smells musky and sweaty and not at all clean.”

Narrator 1: They moved into the bedroom with growing alarm.

Papa Bear: “Do you see a snare and a radio collar under my pillow, Mama?"

Mama Bear: “Yes I do. Do you see a snare and a radio collar under my pillow, Baby?”

Baby Bear: “Yes I do, and I see the human who put it there!”

Narrator 2: The bears growled, and Goldilocks awoke with a start. She sprang up and tried to run, but Papa Bear caught her with a swing of his paw, and Mama Bear did the same. With Goldilocks now mobility non possessor, Mama and Papa Bear set on her with fang and claw. They gobbled her up, and soon there was nothing left of the maverick biologist but a bit of yellow hair and a clipboard.

Narrator 1: Baby bear looked on with astonishment. When they were done Baby Bear asked,

Baby Bear: “Mama, Papa, what have you done? I thought we were vegetarians.”

Papa Bear: “We are but we're always ready to try new things. Flexibility is just one more benefit of being multicultural.”

The End!

Narrator 3
Narrator 4
Narrator 5
Narrator 6

Narr. 1
This famous wicked little tale
Should never have been put on sale.
It is a mystery to me
Why loving parents cannot see
That this is actually a book
About a brazen little crook.

Narr. 2
Had I the chance I wouldn’t fail
To clap young Goldilocks in jail.
Now just imagine how you’d feel
If you had cooked a lovely meal,
Delicious porridge, steaming hot,
Fresh coffee in the coffee pot.

Narr. 3
With maybe toast and marmalade,
The table beautifully laid,
One place for you and one for Dad,
Another for your little lad.
Then Dad cries, “Golly-gosh! Gee-Whiz!
Oh cripes! How hot this porridge is!”
Narr. 4  Let’s take a walk along the street
Until it’s cool enough to eat.”
He adds, “An early morning stroll
Is good for people on the whole.
It makes your appetite improve,
It also helps your bowels to move.”

Narr. 5  No proper wife would dare to question
Such a sensible suggestion,
Above all not at breakfast time
When men are seldom in their prime.
No sooner are you down the road
Than Goldilocks, that little toad,

Narr. 6  That nosey thieving little louse
Comes sneaking in your empty house.
She looks around. She quickly notes
Three bowls brimful of porridge.
And while still standing on her feet,
She grabs a spoon and starts to eat.

Narr. 1  I say again, how would you feel
If you had made this lovely meal

Narr. 2  And some delinquent little tot
Broke in and gobbled up the lot?

Narr. 3  But wait! That’s not the worst of it!
Now comes the most distressing bit.

Narr. 4  You are of course a house-proud wife,
And all your happy married life

Narr. 5  You have collected lovely things
Like gilded cherubs wearing wings,
Narr. 6  And furniture by Chippen dale
Bought at some famous auction sale.

Narr. 1  But your most special valued treasure,
The piece that gives you endless pleasure,

Narr. 2  Is one small children’s dining chair,
Elizabethan, very rare.

Narr. 3  It is in fact your joy and pride,
Passed down to you on Grandma’s side.

Narr. 4  But Goldilocks, like many freaks,
Does not appreciate antiques.

Narr. 5  She doesn’t care, she doesn’t mind,
And now she plonks her fat behind

Narr. 6  Upon this dainty precious chair,
And crunch! It busts beyond repair.

Narr. 1  A nice girl would at once exclaim,
“Oh dear! Oh heavens! What a shame!”

Narr. 2  Not Goldie. She begins to swear.
She bellows, “What a lousy chair!”

Narr. 3  And uses one disgusting word
That luckily you’ve never heard.

Narr. 4  (I dare not write it, even hint it.
Nobody would ever print it.)

Narr. 5  You’d think by now this little skunk
Would have the sense to do a bunk.
Narr. 6 But no. I very much regret
She hasn’t nearly finished yet.

Narr. 1 Deciding she would like a rest
She says, “Let’s see which bed is best.”

Narr. 2 Upstairs she goes and tries all three.
(Here comes the next catastrophe.)

Narr. 3 Most educated people choose
To rid themselves of socks and shoes.

Narr. 4 Before they clamber into bed.
But Goldie didn’t give a shred.

Narr. 5 Her filthy shoes were thick with grime,
And mud and mush and slush and slime.

Narr. 6 Worse still, upon the heel of one
Was something that a dog had done.

Narr. 1 I say one more, what would you think
If all this horrid dirt and stink

Narr. 2 Was smeared upon your eiderdown
By this revolting little clown?

Narr. 3 (The famous story has no clues
To show the girl removed her shoes.)

Narr. 4 Oh, what a tale of crime on crime!
Let’s check it for a second time.

Narr. 5 Crime One, the prosecution’s case:
She breaks and enters someone’s place.
Narr. 6 Crime Two, the prosecutor notes:
She steals a bowl of porridge-oats.

Narr. 1 Crime Three, She breaks a precious chair
Belonging to the Baby Bear.

Narr. 2 Crime Four, She smears each spotless sheet
With filthy messes from her feet.

Narr. 3 A judge would say without a blink,
“Ten years hard labor in the clink!”

Narr. 4 But in the book, as you will see,
The little beast gets off scot-free,

Narr. 5 While tiny children near and far
Shout “Goody-good! Hooray! Hurrah!”

Narr. 6 “Poor darling Goldilocks!” they say,
“Thank goodness that she got away!”

Narr. 1 Myself, I think I’d rather send Young Goldie to a sticky end.

Narr. 2 “Oh Daddy!” cried the Baby Bear,
“My porridge’s gone! It isn’t fair!”

Narr. 3 “Then go upstairs, “the Big Bear said,
“Your porridge is upon the bed.

Narr. 4 But as it’s inside mademoiselle,
You’ll have to eat her up as well.”

THE END!
One night Carmen walked up the stairs to her bedroom. There, lying on her bed was a great big purple, green and yellow FART. She ran down the stairs yelling, Mommy-Daddy!

Mommy-Daddy!
Mommy-Daddy!
There is a fart up on my bed.

Don’t be ridiculous! Good families like ours do not have farts.

Said her father. Nevertheless, he walked up the stairs to see what was going on. When he opened the door to the bedroom, the fart jumped on him. He said, Awk! Glach! Argggg!

NARRATOR and fell right down. After a while Carmen began to wonder how her father was doing. She crawled up the stairs very slowly, looked over the top step and saw her father’s feet sticking out from underneath the fart. So, Carmen ran downstairs yelling, CARMEN Mommy, Mommy, Mommy! There is a fart on top of Daddy!

MOM Don’t be ridiculous. Good families like ours do not have farts. What would the neighbors say?

NARRATOR said the mother. Nevertheless, she went upstairs to see what was going on. She opened the door and the fart jumped on her. She said,

MOM Awk! Glach! Argggg!

NARRATOR And fell right down. Carmen ran to the phone and called the police.

CARMEN Help, Help! There is a fart on top of Mommy and Daddy.

POLICE Don’t be ridiculous. Good Canadians do not have farts.

NARRATOR said the police. Nevertheless, three police drove over to see what was going on. They knocked on the door.

POLICE BLAM, BLAM, BLAM, BLAM.
NARRATOR Carmen opened the door and said,
CARMEN It’s upstairs.
NARRATOR When the police were halfway up the stairs, the fart started to jump on them. They pulled out their badges and yelled,
POLICE STOP!
NARRATOR But everyone knows that farts don’t listen to cops. It jumped on them. They went,
POLICE Awk! Glach! Argggg!
NARRATOR And fell right down. Carmen decided it was time to leave. She was going to run completely away. She ran through the living room, through the kitchen into the backyard and...crashed into her mother’s favorite rose bush. She got an idea. She picked the biggest rose and gave it a smell:
CARMEN MMMMMMM!
NARRATOR Carmen held the rose out in front and walked back through the kitchen and into the living room. She found the fart hiding behind the piano eating a can of beans. Carmen walked up and stuck the rose in the fart’s nose. It said, EVERYBODY Awk! Glach! Argggg! What a terrible smell!
NARRATOR And it ran out the front door. Then the mother got up off the floor, the father got up off the floor, and the police got up off the floor. They all looked at Carmen and yelled,

MOM, DAD THAT WAS A FART!

CARMEN Don’t be ridiculous. Good families like ours do not have farts.

NARRATOR said Carmen. And she walked up the stairs and went to bed.

N-3 Thank you!

N-4 Thank you!

ALL: Sam-I-am!

THE END
Once there was a goat named Gregory. Gregory liked to jump from rock to rock, kick his legs into the air, and butt his head against walls.

I’m an average goat.

But Gregory was not an average goat. Gregory was a terrible eater. Every time he sat down to eat with his mother and father, he knew he was in for trouble.

Would you like a tin can, Gregory?

No, thanks.
Narrator said Gregory.

Father Goat How about a nice box, a piece of rug, and a bottle cap?

Narrator asked Father Goat.

Gregory (unhappily) Baaaaaaaaaa.

Mother Goat Well, I think this is a meal fit for a goat.

Narrator said Mother Goat as she chewed on an old shoe.

Father Goat It certainly is. I don’t know why you’re such a fussy eater, Gregory.

Narrator said Father Goat, as he ate a shirt, buttons and all.

Gregory I’m not fussy. I just want fruits, vegetables, eggs, fish, bread, and butter. Good stuff like that.

Narrator Mother Goat stopped eating the shoe and asked,

Mother Goat Now what kind of food is THAT, Gregory?

Gregory It’s what I like!

Father Goat IT’S REVOLTING!

Narrator said Father Goat. He wiped his mouth with his napkin. After Gregory was excused from the table, Father Goat said, Father Goat  Gregory is such a terrible eater.

Mother Goat  I wonder what’s wrong with him.

Narrator  said Mother Goat. Mother and Father Goat ate their evening newspaper in silence. The next morning, Mother and Father Goat were enjoying a pair of pants and a coat for breakfast. Gregory came to the table. Mother and Father Goat said:

Father and Mother Goat  Good morning, Gregory!

Gregory  Good morning. May I have some orange juice, cereal, and bananas for breakfast, please?

Mother Goat  Oh, No! Do have some of this nice coat.

Narrator  said Mother Goat.

Father Goat  Take a bite out of these pants.

Narrator  said Father Goat.

Gregory  Baaaaaaa!

Narrator  said Gregory. And he left the table. Father Goat threw down his napkin and said:

Father Goat  That does it! Gregory just isn’t eating right. We must take him to the doctor.
Father and Mother Goat took Gregory to the doctor. Dr. Ram was munching on a few pieces of cardboard.

What seems to be the trouble?

Gregory is a terrible eater. We’ve offered him the best...shoes, boxes, magazines, tin cans, coats, pants. But all he wants are fruits, vegetables, eggs, fish, orange juice, and other horrible things.

What do you have to say about all this, Gregory?

I want what I like!

Makes sense.

I’ve treated picky eaters before. They have to develop a taste for good food slowly. Try giving Gregory one new food each day until he eats everything.

That night for dinner Mother Goat gave Gregory spaghetti and a shoelace in tomato sauce.

Not too bad.

The next day, she gave him string beans and a rubber heel cut into small pieces.
The meal was good and rubbery.

The next day after that Mother Goat said:

We have your favorite today. Vegetable soup. But there is one condition. You also have to eat the can.

Okay. What’s for dessert?

Ice cream. But you have to eat the box, too.

said Father Goat.

Yummy!

I’m proud of you. You’re beginning to eat like a goat.

said Father Goat.

I’m learning to like everything.

One evening Father Goat asked:

Has anyone seen my striped necktie?

Not since breakfast. Come to think of it, I haven’t seen my sewing basket today. I left it in the living room after supper last night.

said Mother Goat. Father Goat turned to Gregory:
Father Goat: Gregory, have you been eating between meals?

Gregory: Yes. I can’t help it. Now I like everything.

Mother Goat: Well, it’s all right to eat like a goat, but you shouldn’t eat like a pig.

Narrator: said Mother Goat.

Gregory: Oh.

Narrator: said Gregory. After Gregory went to bed, Mother Goat said:

Mother Goat: I’m afraid Gregory will eat my clothes hamper.

Father Goat: Yes, and then my tool kit will be next. He’s eating too much. We’ll have to do something about it.

Narrator: said Father Goat. The next evening, just before supper, Mother and Father Goat went to the town dump. They brought home eight flat tires, a three-foot piece of barber pole, a broken violin, and half a car. They piled everything in front of Gregory’s sandbox. When Gregory came home for supper he said:

Gregory: What’s all that stuff in the yard?

Father Goat: Your supper.

Narrator: Father Goat said.

Gregory: It all looks good!
Narrator said Gregory. Gregory ate all the tires and the violin. Then he slowly ate the barber pole. But when he started in on the car, he said:

Gregory I’ve got a stomach ache. I have to lie down.

Narrator Gregory went to his room. Father Goat said:

Father Goat I think Gregory ate too much junk.

Mother Goat Let’s hope so.

Narrator said Mother Goat. All night Gregory tossed and twisted and moaned and groaned. The next morning he went down for breakfast.

Father Goat asked:

Father Goat What would you like for breakfast today, Gregory?

Gregory Scrambled eggs and two pieces of waxed paper and a glass of orange juice.

Mother Goat That sounds just about right!

Narrator said Mother Goat. AND IT WAS !!!

Narrator 1: Grizzly Bear was in the park looking for honey, when a bumble-bee stung him on his paw.

Narrator 2: Grizzly Bear ran out of the park shouting:

Grizzly Bear: Help! Help! I've been stung by a grumble-bee!

Park Keeper: You mean a bumble-bee

Narrator 1: said the park keeper

Grizzly Bear: That's right, a mumble-bee.

Narrator 2: said Grizzly, who was not good at names.

Narrator 1: Down the street ran Grizzly yelling-.
Grizzly Bear: Help! Help! I've been stung by a crumble-bee!

Shop Woman: Don't you mean a bumble-bee?

Narrator 2: said the shop woman.

Grizzly Bear: That's what I said!

Narrator 1: cried Grizzly as he ran past.

Narrator 2: Home he went to Old Mother Grizzly.

Grizzly Bear: Help! Help! I’ve been stung by a grumble-rumble. Look--at my paw!

Mother: What you need is something cool.

Narrator 1: said Old Mother Grizzly.

Mother: Here, put your paw in this bucket of ice cream.

Grizzly Bear: What a good idea!

Narrator 2: said Grizzly Bear

Grizzly Bear: I'm feeling better already.

Narrator 1: When Old Mother Grizzly came back, all the ice cream was gone.

Mother: I didn't tell you to eat it!

Narrator 2: she cried.
Grizzly Bear: I needed something cool on the inside as well as the outside.

Narrator 1: said Grizzly Bear

Grizzly Bear: Ice cream is very good when you get stung by a beeble-bum!

Dogs Cats

Narr. 1: There once was a dog named Oscar who was half-a-dog tall and one-and-a half dogs long.

Narr. 2: Because of his unusual shape and size all the dogs made fun of him.

Dogs: "Wiener Dog! Wiener Dog!"

Narr. 3: They called him. And Oscar did not like it one bit.
Narr. 4: Oscar's mom was no help either. Every morning when the dogs went to obedience school, Oscar's mom stood in the front yard calling out,

Mom: "Farewell, my little Vienna Sausage!"

Narr. 1: Instead of being upset, today, all Oscar could think about was trick-or-treating and the scary costume he had hoped to wear tonight.

Narr. 2: When Oscar got home, he dashed upstairs to start working on his Halloween costume.

Narr. 3: A surprise was waiting for Oscar in his room.

Mom: "Happy Halloween, my little sausage link. I've made you a costume to wear for trick-or-treating."

Narr. 4: When Oscar saw the costume, he nearly fainted.

Narr. 1: It was a giant hot-dog bun, complete with mustard.

Narr. 2: And guess who was supposed to fit in the middle?

Narr. 3: Oscar did not want to hurt his mom's feelings, so he decided to wear the silly costume.

Narr. 4: That night all the dogs gathered to show off their costumes.
Narr. 1: Everyone was looking quite scary, while Oscar was looking quite frank.

Narr. 2: When the dogs saw Oscar in his silly costume, they howled with laughter.

Dogs: "Look at Oscar. He really is a Wiener Dog!"

Narr. 3: And off went the dogs trick-or-treating, leaving behind poor and embarrassed Oscar, without any goodies.

Narr. 4: Soon trick-or-treating was over, and the dogs walked home past a spooky graveyard.

Narr. 1: A horrible hissing sound filled the air, that stopped the dogs dead in their tracks.

Narr. 1: they yelled, and right then...
Oscar showed up.
Oscar "That's no monster!"

Narr. 2: howled Oscar.
He waddled, tugged, and chomped to the rescue.

Narr. 3: RrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrrRip!

Narr. 4: And there, standing in the moonlight were a couple of cats.

Cats: "Help! We're being attacked by a giant frankfurter!"

Narr. 1: screamed the cats as they ran through the yard.

Dogs: "We've been chased into a pond by a couple of cats!"

Narr. 2: the dogs admitted.
But Oscar was a true friend. He leaped in the water and swam out to the dogs.

Narr. 3: Oscar's silly costume made a wonderful life raft.

Narr. 4: Back on dry land, the dogs changed Oscar's nickname from "Wiener Dog" to "Hero Sandwich."

Narr. 1: Oscar was now the top dog and never to be made fun of again.

The Happy Prince
by Jane Ray
Adapted for Reader's Theater
by Katie Kilroy

Narr. 1   Narr. 2   Prince
Mayor   Eagle   Pres. of U.S.A.

Narr. 1: High above the city stood the statue of the Happy Prince. He was made of gold with two sapphires for his eyes and a ruby on his sword.

Narr. 2: One night, an Eagle flew over the city. He saw the statue and sat between the feet of the Happy Prince. The Eagle said, Eagle: I have a golden home!

Narr. 1: As the Eagle was falling asleep, a large drop of water fell on him. Another one fell. He looked up.

Narr. 2: The Happy Prince was crying. His face was so beautiful in the moonlight that the Eagle was filled with pity.

Eagle: Who are you?
Prince: I am the Happy Prince.

Eagle: Why are you weeping then? You have drenched me.

Prince: When I was alive and had a heart, I didn't know what tears were. I never cared about anything outside of my palace. Everything about me was beautiful. Now that I am dead, I am placed up here so high and can see the ugliness outside of my palace. I do not choose to weep. There is a poor, ill boy in the city. His mother has nothing to give to him. Eagle, will you please bring them the ruby from my sword?

Eagle: I am waited for in Cleveland. My friends are flying up and down the Cuyahoga River. Soon they will go sleep in the lights of Jacob's Field.

Prince: Eagle, Eagle, little Eagle, will you not stay here with me for one night and be my messenger?

Narr. 1: The Eagle took the ruby and flew across the city until he found the home of the little boy. He laid the great ruby on the table. Then he flew back to the Happy Prince.

Eagle: I feel very warm now.

Narr. 2: The night passed and the sun rose in the morning.
Eagle: I must be leaving for Cleveland now.

Prince: Eagle, Eagle, little Eagle, will you not stay here with me for one more night and be my messenger?

Eagle: My friends are waiting for me at the Rock-n-Roll Hall of Fame.

Prince: But Eagle, there is a man across the city in a garrett. He is trying to finish a play, but is too cold to write anymore. You must take him one of my sapphires that I have for eyes.

Narr. 1: So, the Eagle took the Prince's eye and flew to the garrett. The student looked up and saw the beautiful sapphire on his desk.

Eagle: I must say good-bye. I am going to Cleveland.

Prince: Eagle, Eagle, little Eagle, will you not stay here with me for one more night and be my messenger? In the square, there is a little match-girl. She has no shoes or stockings, and her little head is bare. Pluck out my other eye and give it to her.

Narr. 2: So the Eagle plucked out the other eye and slipped the jewel into the palm of the little girl's hand. The Eagle flew back to the Prince.

Eagle: You are blind now. I will stay with you always.
Narr. 1: The Eagle sat on the Prince's shoulder and told him of all the things he has seen. He told of Shaker Lakes and the brightly colored fish, of the beautiful, green trees and rolling hills of the Metro parks, and of the happy children marveling over the creatures at the Cleveland Metropolitan Zoo.

Prince: Dear Eagle, you tell me of marvelous things, but more marvelous than anything is the suffering of men and of women. Fly over my city and tell me what you see.

Narr. 2: So the Eagle flew over the city and saw the rich in their beautiful homes while the beggars were sitting at their gates. He saw white faces of starving children looking out into the black streets. Then, he flew back to the Prince to tell him what he saw.

Prince: I am covered with fine gold. Take it off of me and give it to the poor.

Narr. 1: So the Eagle took the gold off, leaf by leaf, till the Happy Prince looked dull and gray. He brought the gold leaves to the poor, and the children's faces grew rosier, and they laughed and played games in the street.

Narr. 2: When the snow came, everybody went out in furs, and little boys wore scarlet caps and skated on the ice. The poor Eagle grew colder, but wouldn't leave the Prince. He loved him too well. The Eagle knew he was going to die.
Eagle: Good-bye, dear Prince.
Narr. 1: He kissed the Happy Prince and fell down dead at his feet.

Narr. 2: At that moment, curious cracks sounded inside the statue. The leaden heart snapped in two. It was a dreadfully hard frost.

Narr. 1: The next morning, the Mayor was walking on the square below.

Mayor: Dear me! How shabby the Happy Prince looks! And here is actually a dead bird at his feet! We must really issue a proclamation that birds are not allowed to die here!

Narr. 2: So, they pulled down the Happy Prince. They melted the statue in a furnace. The broken heart would not melt, so it was thrown on a dust heap, where the dead Eagle was also lying. Then the President of the United States said to his secretary, Pres.: Bring me the two most precious things in the city.

Narr. 1: The secretary brought him the leaden heart and the dead bird.

Pres.: You have already chosen, for in my country this little bird shall sing and the Happy Prince shall live for evermore.

Harry and the Terrible Whatzit
by, Dick Gackenbach

Adapted for Reader’s Theater
by Amy Happ

Characters: Harry  Mother  Narrator  Whatzit

Harry: I knew there was something terrible down in the cellar. I just knew, because the cellar was dark and damp and it smelled. "Don’t go down there" I told my mother.

Mother: Why?

Narrator: she asked,

Harry: There is something terrible down there.

Mother: I have to go down in the cellar, we need a jar of pickles.

Narrator: she said.
Harry: She never believes me I waited and waited and waited at the cellar door. She never came back up. Someone had to do something, so I took a broom and went down the cellar steps. It was very black and gloomy. And it smelled. "I know there is something here!"

Narrator: Harry called out.

Harry: "What did you do with my mother?" Then I saw it! A double-headed, three-clawed, six-toed, long-horned Whatzit. It was hiding behind the furnace. "Where is my mother?"

Narrator: Harry asked.

Whatzit: "The last time I saw your mother, she was over by the pickle jars, Runt."

Narrator: The Whatzit said.

Whatzit: I was sure the Whatzit was lying. "What did you do with her?"

Narrator: Harry shouted and he gave the Whatzit a swat with the broom. WHAM!!! That made the Whatzit really mad and it came after Harry. Harry swung the broom again. WHAM!!! The Whatzit didn’t like that at all. It climbed up on the washer and Harry hit it... RIGHT WHERE IT SITS DOWN!
Harry: I noticed the Whatzit was getting smaller. And when I pulled its tail, it got even smaller. Now the Whatzit was down to my size. "Okay, you better tell me what you did with my mother...OR ELSE!!"

Whatzit: “Kid, you are crazy?”

Narrator: One of the Whatzit's head made a face at Harry. Just for that, Harry twisted its nose and the Whatzit shrank some more.

Harry: Whatzit, why are you getting so small?

Whatzit: Because your are not afraid of me anymore. That always happens just when I am beginning to feel at home in a closet or a cellar.

Narrator: The Whatzit looked very sad. The Whatzit got smaller and smaller and smaller. Just when it was about the size of a peanut, Harry called out..

Harry: "Try Sheldon Parker's cellar next door. He's afraid of everything."

Whatzit: "Thanks"

Narrator: Then the Whatzit was gone.

Harry: The Whatzit disappeared before it could tell me what it had done to my mother. I looked in the washer.
Narrator: She was not in there.

Harry: I looked behind some boxes.

Narrator: She was not there either.

Harry: I looked inside the wood bln.

Narrator: No mother in there.

Harry: I was very worried. Then I found her glasses beside the pickle jars. But what had happened to the rest of her? I was searching for more clues when I discovered the back cellar door was open. I looked outside and there in the bright sunlight....

Narrator: was Harry’s mother picking flowers.

Harry: "I found your glasses in the cellar."

Mother: "Thank you, Harry. But I thought you were afraid of the cellar.

Harry: "Not anymore. The terrible Whatzit is gone. I chased it away with the broom."

Mother: "Well, I never saw a Whatzit down there"

Harry: She never believes me. I helped her carry the pickles into the kitchen where she gave me some milk and cookies.

Mother: "You know what, Harry, I will never worry about a Whatzit as long as you are around."
Harry: Maybe she did believe me. Later I heard an awful yell coming from the house next door. I'll bet Sheldon looked in the cellar.

The House Cat
by Helen Cooper

Adapted for Reader's Theater
by Martha Keffer

Nar. 1 Tom Cat
Mrs. Barrister

Nar. 2 Mr. Barrister

Nar. 1 This is the house where Tom Cat lives.

Nar. 2 Two families live here, too. One lives upstairs. The other lives downstairs.

Nar. 1 But Tom Cat lives both upstairs and downstairs.

Nar. 2 He lives in all the house, because he is the House Cat.

Nar. 1 Mr. and Mrs. Barrister live downstairs. They like to think Tom Cat is theirs. They want a cat who will match their carpet.

Nar. 2 But they always shout when they find cat hair on their chairs. They are ungrateful and unfriendly.

Nar. 1 So Tom Cat lives in all the house, because he is the House Cat.

Nar. 2 Tom Cat knows it's warmer upstairs...

Nar. 1 and he's allowed on the furniture there. Jennifer strokes him, scratches his ears.
Tom Cat: "That's right!"

Nar. 2: he purrs,

Tom Cat: "because I am the House Cat!"

Nar. 1: But what's happening now?

Nar. 2: Two men are loading the downstairs furniture into a big green truck.

Nar. 1: This isn't good!

Nar. 2: Tom Cat hurries to investigate, because he is the House Cat.

Tom Cat: "I'll hiss and I'll claw!!!

Nar. 1: growls Tom Cat when he sees what's going on. But Mrs. Barrister picks him up and squashes him into a-cardboard box.

Tom Cat: "You can't do this to me!"

Nar. 2: he snarls.

Tom Cat: I am the House Cat."

Nar. 1: The Barristers are moving and they are taking Tom Cat with them.

Nar. 2: But they have not asked his permission about anything!
Tom Cat "Miawwoiieeeoooweeooowww,"

Nar. 1 he wails,

Tom Cat "What's happening?"

Nar. 2 The box is hard, his claws hurt. Then...

Nar. 1 ... he smells something good.

Nar. 2 He sees big white birds.

Nar. 1 He hears a noisy highway

Nar. 2 He senses DOGS!

Nar. 1 He knows this is not his house.

Nar. 2 Tom Cat's box is opened. He stretches, he sniffs...

Nar. 1 This is not his house, not his room, not his carpet. He sinks his claws into it.

Mr. Barrister "That bad cat will have to go!"

Nar. 2 Yells Mr. Barrister when he sees the scratched-up mess.

Nar. 1 Mrs. Barrister agrees.

Mrs. Barrister "Yes, he really doesn't match our new carpet. Perhaps we should get a poodle instead."
Nar. 2 They hurry around their new home. They have no time for cats.
Tom Cat "This is not my house!"
Nar. 1 Tom Cat says.
Tom Cat "I will go home!"
Nar. 2 And, somehow, in his mind, he knows the way
Nar. 1 Quick!
Nar. 2 Across the street.
Nar. 1 Quick!
Nar. 2 Over the wall.
Nar. 1 Cat-quick!
Nar. 2 But wait! There are no sidewalks, no path, no catwalk.
Nar. 1 And where are the big white birds?
Nar. 2 Here they come
Nar. 1 and...they don't like cats!
Nar. 2 Tom Cat must swim. He hates the water. He finds a cat raft. He sits and spins and shivers in the cold wind. He is lost.
Nar. 1 But here comes a boat. People reach over and rescue him. They love him, and wonder if he'll be their Boat Cat and live in their cabin.
Tom Cat  "But I am a House Cat, not a Boat Cat,"

Nar. 2  he says, sniffing the night air. He sniffs again, sniffs a whiff of something good. He knows that smell!

Nar. 1  Now he's off, tail up , ears back, he's Hunting Cat, he's Tracking Cat. He tracks the smell, all's well. Now he knows the way back... home!

Nar. 2  Jennifer thinks he has come back to be her cat. A new family has moved in downstairs... and they think that Tom Cat is going to be their cat.

Nar. 1  But Tom Cat lives in all the house

Nar. 2  because he is... the House Cat!
How the Grinch Stole Christmas!
by Dr. Seuss
Adapted for Reader’s Theater
by Danielle Specia

Characters:

Narrator 1  Narrator 2
The Grinch  Cindy-Lou Who

Narrator 1
Every Who down in Who-ville, liked Christmas a lot.
But the Grinch, who lived just North of Who-ville, did NOT!

Narrator 2
The Grinch hated Christmas! The whole Christmas season!
Now please don’t ask why. No one quite knows the reason.

It could be his head, wasn’t screwed on just right.
It could be, perhaps, that his shoes were too tight.

But I think that, the most likely reason of all
May have been that his heart, Was two sizes too small.
Narrator 1  But, whatever the reason, his heart or his shoes, he stood there on Christmas Eve, hating the Who’s.

Staring down from his cave, with a sour, Grinchy frown, at the warm lighted windows below, in their town.

For he knew every Who Down in Who-ville beneath, was busy now, hanging a mistletoe wreath.

Grinch  And they’re hanging their stockings!

Narrator 2  He snarled with a sneer.

Grinch  Tomorrow is Christmas! It’s practically here!

Narrator 1  Then he growled, with his Grinch fingers, nervously drumming.

Grinch  I MUST find some way, to stop Christmas from coming!
Narrator 2  For, tomorrow, he knew, all the Who girls and boys, would wake bright and early. They’d rush for their toys!

And then! Oh, the noise! Oh, the Noise! Noise! Noise! Noise! Noise! That’s the one thing he hated! The Noise! Noise! Noise! Noise! Noise!

Narrator 1  The the Whos, young and old, would sit down to a feast. AND THEY’D FEAST!
And they’d FEAST!
And they’d FEAST!
FEAST! FEAST! FEAST!

Narrator 1  They would feast on Who-pudding, and rare Who-roast-beast. Which was something the Grinch couldn’t stand in the least!

Narrator 2  And THEN they’d do something, he liked least of all! Every Who down in Who-ville, the tall and the small, would stand close together, with Christmas bells ringing. They’d stand hand-in-hand. And the Whos would start singing!

Narrator 1  They’d sing! And they’d sing! And they’d SING! SING! SING! SING! SING! And the more the Grinch thought, of this Who-Christmas-Sing, the more the Grinch thought, Grinch I must stop this whole thing!

Grinch Why for fifty-three years,
I’ve put up with it now!
I MUST stop the Christmas from coming!
But... HOW?

Narrator 2 Then he got an idea!
An awful idea!
THE GRINCH GOT A WONDERFUL,
AWFUL, IDEA!

Grinch I know just what to do!

Narrator 1 The Grinch laughed in his throat.
And he made a quick,
Santy Claus hat and a coat.
And he chuckled, and chucked,

Grinch What a great Grinchy trick!
With this coat and this hat,
I look just like Saint Nick!

All I need is a reindeer...

Narrator 2 The Grinch looked around.
But, since reindeer are scarce,
there was none to be found.
Did that stop the old Grinch?

Grinch NO!

Narrator 1 The Grinch simply said,

Grinch If I can’t find a reindeer,
I’ll make one instead!
Narrator 2  So he called his dog Max. Then he took some red thread, and he tied a big horn, on the top of his head.

Narrator 1  THEN he loaded some bags, and some old empty sacks, on a ramshackle sleigh, and he hitched up old Max.

Narrator 2  Then the Grinch said, Giddyap!

Narrator 2  And the sleigh started down, toward the homes, where the Whos lay a-snooze, in their town.

Narrator 1  All their windows were dark. Quiet snow filled the air. All the Whos were all dreaming, sweet dreams without care, when he came to the first, little house on the square.

Grinch  This is stop number one!

Narrator 1  The old Grinchy Claus hissed, and he climbed to the roof, empty bags in his fist.

Narrator 2  Then he slid down the chimney. A rather tight pinch. But, if Santa could do it, then so could the Grinch.
Narrator 2  He got stuck only once, for a moment or two. Then he stuck his head, out of the fireplace flue, where the little Who stockings, all hung in a row.

Grinch  These stockings,

Narrator 2  He grinned,

Grinch  Are the first things to go!

Narrator 1  Then he slithered and slunk, with a smile most unpleasant, around the whole room, and he took every present! Pop guns and bicycles, roller skates, drums, checkerboards, tricycles, popcorn and plums! And he stuffed them in bags. Then the Grinch, very nimbly, stuffed all the bags, one by one, up the chimbly!

Narrator 2  Then he slunk to the icebox. He took the Who’s feast! He took the Who-pudding! He took the roast beast! He cleaned out that icebox, as quick as a flash. Why that Grinch even took, their last can of Who-hash!
Narrator 1 Then he stuffed all the food, up the chimney with glee.

Grinch And NOW!

Narrator 1 Grinned the Grinch.

Grinch I will stuff up the tree!

Narrator 2 And the Grinch grabbed the tree, and he started to shove, when he heard a small sound, like the coo of a dove. He turned around fast, and he saw a small Who! Little Cindy-Lou Who, who was not more than two.

Narrator 1 The Grinch had been caught, by this tiny Who daughter, who’d got out of bed, for a cup of cold water. She stared at the Grinch and said, Cindy-Lou Santy Claus, why, Why are you taking our Christmas tree? Why?

Narrator 2 But you know that old Grinch, was so smart and so slick, he thought up a lie, and he thought it up quick!

Grinch Why, my sweet little tot.

Narrator 2 The fake Santy Claus lied.
Grinch: There’s a light on this tree, that won’t light on one side. So I’m taking it home, to my workshop, my dear. I’ll fix it up there. Then I’ll bring it back here.

Narrator 2: And his fib fooled the child. Then he patted her head, and he got her a drink, and he sent her to bed.

Narrator 2: And when Cindy-Lou Who, went to bed with her cup, HE went to the chimney, and stuffed the tree up.

Narrator 1: Then the last thing he took, was the log on the fire! Then he went up the chimney, himself, the old liar. On their walls he left nothing, but hooks and some wire.

Narrator 2: And the one speck of food, that he left in the house, was a crumb that was even, too small for a mouse.

Narrator 1: Then he did the same thing, to the other Who’s houses. Leaving crumbs much too small, for the other Who’s mouses!
Narrator 2  It was a quarter past dawn, all the Who’s still a-bed,
all the Who’s still a-snooze,
when he packed up his sled.
Packed it up with their presents,
the ribbons, the wrappings,
the tags, and the tinsel,
the trimmings, the trappings.

Narrator 1  Three thousand feet up!
Up the side of Mt. Crumpit, he rode with his load,
to the tiptop to dump it!

Grinch  Pooh-Pooh to the Who’s!

Narrator 1  He was grinch-ish-ly humming.

Grinch  They’re finding out now, that no Christmas is coming!
They’re just waking up!
I know just what they’ll do!
Their mouths will hang open,
a minute or two,
then the Who’s down in Who-ville, will all cry, “BOO-HOO!”

Narrator 2  That’s a noise, grinned the Grinch,
That I simply must hear!

Grinch  So he paused. And the Grinch, put his hand to his ear.
And he did hear a sound,
rising over the snow.
It started in low.
Then it started to grow.
Narrator 1 But the sound wasn’t sad! Why, this sound sounded merry! It couldn’t be so! Bit it WAS merry! VERY!

He stared down at Who-ville, the Grinch popped his eyes! Then he shook! What he saw, was a shocking surprise!

Narrator 2 Every Who down in Who-ville, the tall and the small, was singing! Without presents at all!

Narrator 2 He HADN’T stopped Christmas, from coming! IT CAME! Somehow or other, it came just the same!

And the Grinch, with his grinch-feet, ice-cold in the snow, stood puzzling and puzzling:

Grinch How could it be so! It came without ribbons! It came without tags! It came without packages, boxes or bags!

Narrator 1 And he puzzled three hours, till his puzzler was sore!

Grinch Maybe Christmas,
Narrator 1  He thought,

Grinch  Doesn't come from a store.

Grinch  Maybe Christmas...perhaps... means a little bit more!

Narrator 2  And what happened then? Well, in Who-ville they say, that the Grinch’s small heart, grew three sizes that day!

And the minute his head, didn’t feel quite so tight, he whizzed with his load, through the bright morning light.

And he brought back the toys! And the food for the feast! And he...HE HIMSELF... the Grinch carved the roast beast!

THE END!

Narrator 1  If you give a moose a muffin,
Narrator 2  he’ll want some jam to go with it.
Narrator 3  So you’ll bring out some of your mother’s homemade blackberry jam.
Narrator 4  When he’s finished eating the muffin, he’ll want another.
Narrator 1  And another.
Narrator 2  And another.
When they’re all gone, he’ll ask you to make more.
Narrator 3  You’ll have to go to the store to get some muffin mix. He’ll want to go with you.
Narrator 4  When he opens the door and feels how chilly it is, he'll ask to borrow a sweater.

Narrator 1  When he puts the sweater on, he'll notice one of the buttons is loose. He'll ask for a needle and thread.

Narrator 2  He'll start sewing. The button will remind him of the puppets his grandmother used to make.

Narrator 3  So he'll ask for some old socks.

Narrator 4  He'll make sock puppets.

Narrator 1  When they're done, he'll want to put on a puppet show.

Narrator 2  He'll need some cardboard and paints.

Narrator 3  Then he'll ask you to help make scenery.

Narrator 4  When the scenery is finished, he'll get behind the couch. But his antlers will stick out. So he'll ask for something to cover them up.

Narrator 1  You'll bring him a sheet from your bed.

Narrator 2  When he sees the sheet, he'll remember, he wants to be a ghost for Halloween. He'll try it on and shout, Narrator 3  BOO!
It’ll scare him so much,
he’ll knock over the paints.

Narrator 4  So he’ll use the sheet, to clean up the mess.
Then he’ll ask for some soap to wash it out.

Narrator 1  He’ll probably want to hang the sheet up to dry.

Narrator 2  He’ll go outside to put it on the clothesline.

Narrator 3  When he’s out in the yard, he’ll see your mother’s blackberry bushes.

Narrator 4  Seeing the blackberries will remind him of her jam.

Narrator 1  He’ll probably ask you for some.

Narrator 2  And chances are...

Narrator 3  if you give him the jam,

Narrator 4  he’ll want a muffin to go with it.

THE END
If you give a mouse a cookie,

1. he’s going to ask for a glass of milk.
2. When you give him the milk,
3. he’ll probably ask you for a straw.
4. When he’s finished, he’ll ask for a napkin.
5. Then he’ll want to look in the mirror

1. to make sure he doesn’t
2. have a milk mustache.
3. When he looks into the mirror,
4. he might notice his hair needs a trim.
5. So he’ll probably ask

1. for a pair of nail scissors.
2. When he’s finished giving himself a trim,
3. he’ll want a broom to sweep up.
4. He’ll start sweeping.
5. He might get carried away
1. and sweep every room in the house.
2. He may even end up washing the floors as well!
3. When he’s done.
4. he’ll probably want to take a nap.
5. You’ll have to fix up a little box for him

1. with a blanket and a pillow.
2. He’ll crawl in,
3. make himself comfortable
4. and fluff the pillow a few times.
5. He’ll probably ask you to read him a story.

1. So you’ll read to him from one of your books, and he’ll ask to see the pictures
2. When he looks at the pictures,
3. he’ll get so excited he’ll want to draw
4. one of his own.
5. He’ll ask for paper and crayons
   He’ll draw a picture.
   When the picture is finished.
   he’ll want to sign his name with a pen.

1. Then he’ll want to hang his picture on your refrigerator.
   Which means he’ll need scotch tape.

1. He’ll hang up his drawing and stand back to look at it.
2. Looking at the refrigerator
3. will remind him that
4. he’s thirsty.
1. So...
2. he’ll ask for a glass of milk.
3. And chances are if he asks for
4. a glass of milk,

All: he’s going to want a cookie to go with it !!!!!!!

THE END!
Invisible Ned:
By Bill Maynard

(Adapted by Sarah Nichols)

Characters: Narrator 1  Ned  Mom/Principal
            Narrator 2  Father
            Narrator 3  Teacher/Art Teacher

Narrator 1: Incredible Ned. You could see what he said.

Narrator 2: Every "thing" that he spoke appeared over his head,

Narrator 3: Or right next to his chair. Or a few yards away,

Narrator 1: And his friends would all shout:

All: "WE CAN SEE WHAT YOU SAY!"
Narrator 2: When Ned said,

Ned: "gorilla"

Narrator 2: the kids all jumped back,

Narrator 3: For they saw a gorilla and feared an attack.

Narrator 1: And when Ned said

Ned: "bananas"

Narrator 1: bananas were there

Narrator 2: On the stove, in the sink, in his hair, everywhere!

Narrator 3: If a word that Ned said was the name of a "thing,"

Narrator 1: Then that "thing" might float by on the end of a string!

Narrator 2: He could say "and" or "the" and have nothing to fear,

Narrator 3: It was words like "baboons" that made baboons appear.

Narrator 1: It started when Ned was a child of one.

Narrator 2: His father came home and asked,

Father: "What has Ned done?"

Narrator 2: And his mother replied,
Mother: “Well, it may sound absurd, but today was the day that I saw his first word.”

Father: "You saw his first word? You saw his first word? YOU SAW HIS FIRST WORD? Don't you really mean 'heard'?

Narrator 3: Ned's problems began on the first day of school:

Narrator 1: Every time that he spoke he felt like a fool.

Narrator 2: When the things that he said appeared over his head, or on top of his desk. Or a few rows away.

Narrator 3: Then his classmates would shout:

All: "WE CAN SEE WHAT YOU SAY!"

Narrator 1: When Ned said,

Ned: "giraffe"

Narrator 1: you could see a giraffe, and its neck was so long it made everyone laugh.

Narrator 2: When Ned said,

Ned: "parade"

Narrator 2: one appeared by the wall, and marched straight through the class and out into the hall.
Narrator 3: No wonder the children didn't get their books read:

Narrator 1: It was so much more fun just to watch what Ned said.

Narrator 2: Then his teacher complained:

Teacher: "We're not getting work done." With young Ned in the class school is much too fun. I can't get him to stop. Every day it gets worse.

Narrator 3: But she had one last hope

Narrator 1: For there was someone who wasn't the same. So, she made one call and the principal came.

Narrator 2: The Principal? Wow! That made Ned feel real sad.

Narrator 3: In your school, she's the law. In your school, she's the boss, and the last thing you want is for her to feel cross.

Principal: "Ned,"

Narrator 1: the principal said,
Principal: "I will have to be stern, for we want the class calm so the children can learn. And whenever you speak, the whole class comes apart, since you can't seem to stop what you didn't mean to start. I have made up a rule that should satisfy all: YOU'LL SAY NOTHING AT ALL. OR GO STAND IN THE HALL."

Narrator 2: Say nothing at all or go stand in the hall? Ned must never say "bat"? Never even say "ball"?

Ned: "Then that's it!"

Narrator 3: Ned decided.

Ned: "I guess I won't speak."

Narrator 3: And he sat there in silence for almost a week.

Narrator 1: 'Til the art teacher came on her usual day, and they told her why poor Ned had nothing to say.

Art Teacher: "Oh, my goodness, let me stop those complaints."
Narrator 2: And she gave Ned some pencils and paper and paints. Then she watched what Ned did, and she liked what she saw, when he picked up a pencil and started to draw.

Narrator 3: He drew fish. He drew birds. He drew flowers and trees. He drew lions and tigers and monkeys and bees.

Art Teacher: "What is that?"

Narrator 1: asked the teacher.

Ned: "A lion,"

Narrator 1: said Ned. And nothing, but nothing, showed over his head.

Art Teacher: "What is that?"

Narrator 2: asked the teacher.

Ned: "A tree,"

Narrator 2: Ned replied. And nothing, but nothing, appeared at his side. The art teacher smiled. She could understand Ned. And she knew why those things had shown over his head.
Art Teacher: "Ned's an artist, that's what Ned's all about. When your head's full of pictures, they have to come out."

Narrator 3: Now to show those great pictures that I lived in his head, Ned didn't need to use words. He could draw them instead. (Because painting and talking are equally real. They're just two different ways to show how folks feel.)

Narrator 1: And as long as Ned colored and painted and drew. He could speak just like me. He could talk just like you.

Narrator 2: And nothing he said appeared over his head, or right next to his desk or a few yards away. And his classmates complained:

All: "We can't see what you say."

Narrator 3: But, at times, when young Ned is at home late at night, When he's opened his window and turned out his light, Narrator 1: With his pens put away and his paints on the shelf, When he's sure he's alone, he'll say "moose" to himself.

Narrator 2: And a moose will appear at the foot of his bed, and he'll know that he still is Incredible Ned.

THE END
Narr. I
Bull
Princess

Narr. 1
In Ireland, in the old times, there lived a lad named Becan. His mother loved him and carried him about in her egg basket for safekeeping. Red hair flamed on his head. His skinny legs got rounder, and his tiny feet got longer until his toes poked out of the basket.

Narr. 2
Step-Mom

Narr. 2
Although the rest of him stayed small, his feet kept on growing. By the time Becan was thirteen years old, they were so large he'd splash a puddle dry just by stepping in it. Still, Becan's worries were few enough until his mother died.

Becan
Gentleman/Giant

Narr. 1
His father came home one day with a new wife and her three nearly grown daughters. They all spied on him and called him "Little Bigfoot."
Step-Mom  We'd be better off without that good-for-nothing boy.
Your big feet are always in the way!
It's time you went off to tend to the cows.

Becan  Cows are fine company, but I've heard talk of a mean speckled bull.
A kick from him can send a man sailing over the rainbow.

Step-mom  Stop fretting, not even a cow could mistake you for a man.

Narr. 2  So, Becan became a herd boy.
One misty morning, Becan heard a bellow louder than a thunderclap.
When he dared to look, it was right into the angry eyes of an enormous bull.

Narr. 1  The creature's face was white, but splashed with rusty red like the freckles on Becan's nose.
The hoofs were big and broad like Becan's feet.
He twitched his long tail and pawed the ground, ready to knock down the tree and the boy with it.
Quickly, Becan stretched out his hand and scratched him behind the ear, in the place that Cows like best.

Becan  We could be cousins, you and I, for we look to be patched together from the same odds and ends.
Narr. 2 The bull lowered his head with the wicked curved horns.
But instead of tossing Becan, he nuzzled his cheek.
From that moment, the bull and the boy were fast friends.
Becan told his troubles, while the speckled bull listened, chewing thoughtfully.

Becan The sisters tattle, the stepmother scolds.
I'm only fed scraps and will soon shrink down to nothing.

Bull Not while I am about.
Look into my left ear and pull out what you find there.

Narr. 1 Becan wasn't surprised to hear the bull talk, for he had begun to suspect that his friend was no ordinary animal.
Seeing something white poking from the animal's ear, Becan tugged on it.
Out came a tablecloth, and wrapped inside it was a whole meal.

Bull Eat what you will.

Narr. 2 Becan ate every crumb and licked his fingers clean.
Each day thereafter, Becan had a noontime meal fit for a chieftain.
Each evening, he turned down the crust of bread his stepmother set out for his supper.
Step-Mom   That boy's filling his stomach some way. Tomorrow, hie yourself up to the pasture and find out how.

Narr. 1   So the stepsisters went and did just that. At midday, the speckled bull arrived. She saw Becan Pat him, put a hand to his ear, and pull out a feast. They told their mother about the bull that night.

Step-Mom   Then we shall butcher that old speckled bull. He'll make a grand stew for us.

Narr. 2   Becan heard every word that was said. At the first light of day, he ran to warn his friend.

Bull   I'll not end in a soup pot! Get on my back, lad, and we'll soon be gone from here.

Narr. 1   With Becan holding tight to his horns, the bull trottled up the hill, over a steep mountain, and through a wood of beech trees. In a meadow, many days from home, the bull stopped.

Bull   Here we bid good-bye, for it is here that the gray bull and I must fight.

Narr. 2   Becan screamed NO and threw his arms around the bull's neck.
Bull
The gray bull shall kill me, for my fate has been foretold.
When I am dead, you are to twist off my tail.
Wear my tail as a belt.
Use it when you need my help the most.
Do as I say.

Narr. 1
Early the next morning, the gray bull came charging through the trees.
The two bulls locked horns and fought.
By evening, the speckled bull lay dead.
Becan sat beside his friend all night.
He cautiously twisted his tail, and it came off at once.
He wrapped it twice about his waist and then reached into the animal's ear.
He pulled out the tablecloth, now bare of food and carefully covered the bull.
Slan, he whispered, which is the Irish word for good-bye.

Narr. 2
Alone Becan began his journey.
A gentleman on horseback offered him a ride.

Gentleman
Where are you bound lad?

Becan
I'm going anywhere at all.

Gentleman
You could come along with me, I am in want of a cowherd.

Becan
Herding is what I do best.
Gentleman I've got to warn you.
I have a giant on my land.
My last herd boy, a lad far bigger and stronger than you...

Narr. I Although he knew quite well what was meant, Becan took the job anyway.
One day Becan climbed a tree to pick an apple and a voice bellowed...

Giant Got you !!!

Narr. 2 A sword slashed through the tree, chopping limbs into kindling and sending Becan tumbling to the ground.
He remembered the speckled bull's last words.
He pulled off his belt and flung it at the giant.
As if it were alive, the bull's tail coiled like a snake about the giant's neck.
The giant dropped his sword.

Giant Call it off!

Becan Not until you give me your boots

Narr. I The giant kicked off his boots and swore he would never come back.

Becan Just my size
Narr. 2  Becan buckled on the giant's huge boots and went home. Some time later, the gentleman told Becan to stay home because it was the Day of the Dragon. Every seven years the wicked lizard rises from the ocean and swallows the fairest maiden in the land. If she is not there the dragon will blow the sea onto the land, wash away the village, and drown all the people. This year the lass is Princess Finola, the king's daughter.

Narr. 1  Going was what Becan had in mind. While his master slept, he put on the giant's boots and thrust the sword into his bull-tail belt. He got on his donkey and rode off to Kinsale.

Narr. 2  As Becan got into town he saw the princess tied to a post at the water's edge. The scene was silent except for the princess pleading for someone to help her.

Becan  I shall help you, let me sharpen my sword on that dragon, I'll...

Princess  Look behind you!!!!

Narr. 1  The sea was bubbling, as if coming to a boil, and suddenly a monstrous dragon burst from the water. Flames flashed from its mouth. Becan raised his sword with trembling hands.
Becan

Beware Serpent!!!

Narr. 2

Becan's sword drew blood several times, but the creature acted as if the strikes from the sword were pinpricks. By afternoon, Becan was so tired he could hardly lift the blade. Grabbing his tail instead, he hurled it at the dragon. The bull's tail wrapped itself around the fiery jaws, tying them shut. With a sizzle, the monster sank beneath the waves, taking the tail of the speckled bull down with it.

Narr. 1

People cheered and rushed to Becan. He heard someone shout "Little Bigfoot" and saw his three stepsisters. He jumped on his donkey to take off.

Princess

Wait, I want to thank you.

Narr. 2

The princess grabbed him by the boot, but in a hurry Becan kicked the donkey and left the princess holding his boot. The next day, Becan took his herd to pasture, just as always. Now he had only one boot, his bull-tail was gone forever, and the tip of his sword was bent. He dug a hole and buried the sword under an apple tree.

Becan

That's the end of it all.
Narr. I  But it wasn't.
Princess Finola still had the other boot, and she was determined to find its owner.

Princess  I'll marry the one whose foot fits the boot, and none other.
It was he alone who saved me from the dragon.

Narr. 2  The king sent a royal messenger to crisscross the country from sea to mountains to find the owner of the boot. The boot was too big for everyone that was trying it on. "Tis' giant-sized" they grumbled.

Narr. I  A year passed before the messenger arrived at the gentleman's house. Of course the boot fit Becan snug as his own skin. He kicked up his heel, grinned at his master, and said to the astonished messenger...

Becan  I've the mate to it in the couched.

Narr. 2  Soon enough, Becan was on his way to Kinsale again, wearing both boots and astride the gentleman's fine horse.

Princess  How grand!!
We're just the same height, sir, so I know we'll see eye to eye on everything.

Becan  You can call me Becan, for that is what my mother named me.
Princess    You shall, be Prince Becan!
Narr. I    The princess hugged him, and the lad blushed as red as the hair on his head.

The End
It's Mine!
A fable by Leo Lionni

Adapted for Reader’s Theater
by Mary Gleason

CHARACTERS:
Narrator 1   Narrator 2
Milton       Rupert
Lydia

Narrator 1:  In the middle of Rainbow Pond there was a small island. Smooth pebbles lined its beaches, and it was covered with ferns and leafy weeds.

Narrator 2:  On the island lived three quarrelsome frogs named Milton, Rupert, and Lydia. They quarreled and quibbled from dawn to dusk.

Milton:  Stay out of the pond! The water is mine.

Rupert:  Get off the island! The earth is mine.
Lydia: The air is mine!

Narrator 2: And so it went.

Narrator 1: One day a large toad appeared before them.

Toad: I live on the other side of the island, but I can hear you shouting 'It's mine! It's mine! It's mine!' all day long. There is no peace because of your endless bickering. You can't go on like this!

Narrator 1: With that the toad slowly turned around and hopped away through the weeds.

Narrator 2: No sooner had he left than Milton ran off with a large worm. The others hopped after him.

Rupert & Lydia: Worms are for everybody!

Milton: Not this one. It's mine!

Narrator 2: Milton croaked defiantly.
Narrator 1: Suddenly the sky darkened and a rumble of distant thunder circled the island. Rain filled the air, and the water turned to mud. The island grew smaller and smaller as it was swallowed up by the rising flood.

Narrator 2: The frogs were scared. Desperately they clung to the few slippery stones that still rose above the wild, dark water.

Narrator 1: But soon these too began to disappear.

Narrator 2: There was only one rock left and there the frogs huddled, trembling from cold and fright. But they felt better now that they were together, sharing the same fears and hopes.

Narrator 1: Little by little the flood subsided. The rain fell gently and then stopped altogether. But look! The large rock that had saved them was no rock at all.

Milton & Rupert & Lydia: You saved us!

Narrator 2: shouted the frogs when they recognized the toad.
Narrator 1: The next morning the water had cleared. Sunrays chased silver minnows on the sandy bottom of the pond.

Narrator 2: Joyfully the frogs jumped in, and side by side they swam all around the island. Together they leaped after the swarms of butterflies that filled the air. And later, when they rested in the weeds, they felt happy in a way they had never been before.

Milton: Isn't it peaceful.

Rupert: And isn't it beautiful!

Lydia: And do you know what else?

Milton &Rupert: No, what?

Lydia: It's ours!

THE END!
Jack and the Beanstalk
by Roald Dahl

adapted for Reader’s Theater
by James Servis

Characters:  Jack  Jack’s Mother
            Giant  Narr.

Narr.  Jack’s mother said,
Mother  “We’re stony broke!
       Go out and find some wealthy bloke
       Who’ll buy our cow. Just say she’s sound
       And worth at least a hundred pound.
       But don’t you dare to let him know
       That she’s as old as billy-o.”

Narr.  Jack led the old brown cow away,
       And came back later in the day,
       And said,

Jack  “Oh Mumsie dear, guess what
       Your clever little boy has got.
       I got, I really don’t know how,
       A super trade-in for our cow.”

Narr.  The mother said,
Mother “You little creep,
I’ll bet you sold her much too cheap.”

Narr. When Jack produced one lousy bean,
His startled mother, turning green;
Leaped high up in the air and cried,

Mother “I’m absolutely stupefied!
You crazy boy! D’you really mean
You sold our Daisy for a bean?”

Narr. She snatched the bean. She yelled,

Mother “You chump!”

Narr. And flung it on the rubbish dump.
Then summoning up all her power,
She beat the boy for half an hour,
Using (and nothing could be meaner)
The handle of a vacuum cleaner.

At ten p.m. or thereabout,
The little bean began to sprout.
By morning it had grown so tall
You couldn’t see the top at all.
Young Jack cried,

Jack “Mum, admit it now!
It’s better than a rotten cow!”

Narr. The mother said,

Mother You lunatic!
Where are the beans that I can pick?
There’s not one bean! It’s bare as bare!”
Jack: No no!

Narr.: cried Jack.

Jack: “You look up there! Look very high and you’ll behold Each single leaf is solid gold!”

Narr.: By gollikins, the boy was right! Now, glistening in the morning light, The mother actually perceives A mass of lovely golden leaves! She yells out loud,

Mother: “My sainted souls! I’ll sell the Mini, buy a Rolls! Don’t stand and gape, you little clot! Get up up there quick and grab the lot!”

Narr.: Jack was nimble, Jack was keen. He scrambled up the mighty bean. Up up he went without a stop, But just as he was near the top, A ghastly frightening thing occurred... Not far above his head he heard A big deep voice, a rumbling thing That made the very heavens ring. It shouted loud,

Giant: “FEE FI FO FUM I SMELL THE BLOOD OF AN ENGLISH MAN!”

Narr.: Jack was frightened, Jack was quick, And down he climbed in half a tick Jack  “Oh Mum!”

Narr.  he gasped.

Jack  “Believe you me
There’s something nasty up our tree!
I saw him, Mum! My gizzard froze!
A Giant with a clever nose!”

Mother  “A clever nose!”

Narr.  His mother hissed.

Mother  “You must be going round the twist!”

Jack  “He smelled me out, I swear it, Mum!
He said he smelled an Englishman!”

Narr.  The mother said,

Mother  “And well he might!
I’ve told you every single night
To take a bath because you reek!
But would you listen to me speak?
You even made your mother shrink
Because of your unholy stink!”

Narr.  Jack answered,

Jack  “Well, if you’re so clean
Why don’t you climb the crazy bean?”

Narr.  The mother cried,

Mother  “By gad, I will!
There’s life within the old dog still!”
Narr. She hitched her skirts above her knee
And disappeared right up the tree.
Now would the Giant smell his mum?
Jack listened for the fee-fo-fum.

He gazed aloft. He wondered when
The dreaded words would come... And then...
From somewhere high above the ground
There came a frightful crunching sound.
He heard the Giant mutter twice,

Giant “By gosh, that tasted very nice.
Although,”

Narr. (and this in grumpy tones),

Giant “I wish there weren’t so many bones.”

Jack “By Christopher!”

Narr. Jack cried.

Jack By gum!”
The Giant’s eaten up my mum!
He smelled her out! She’s in his belly!
I had a hunch that she was smelly.”

Narr. Jack stood there gazing longingly
Upon the huge and golden tree.
He murmured softly,

Jack “Golly-gosh,
I’ll guess I’ll have to take a wash
If I am going to climb this tree
Without the Giant smelling me.
In fact, a bath’s my only hope…”

Narr. He rushed indoors and grabbed the soap. He scrubbed his body everywhere. He even washed and rinsed his hair. He did his teeth, he blew his nose. And went out smelling like a rose.

Once more he climbed the mighty bean. The Giant sat there, gross, obscene, muttering through his vicious teeth (While Jack sat tensely just beneath) muttering loud,

Giant “FEE FI FO FUM, RIGHT NOW I CAN’T SMELL ANYONE.”

Narr. Jack waited till the Giant slept, then out along the boughs he crept. And gathered so much gold, I swear. He was an instant millionaire.

Jack “A bath,”

Narr. He said,

Jack “does seem to pay. I’m going to have one every day!”

THE END
While Judy and Peter were out playing in the woods, they found a game under a tree named Jumanji: A Jungle Adventure Game. At home, the children spread the game out on a table. There was a board that unfolded, revealing a path of colored squares. The squares had messages written on them. The path started in the deepest jungle and ended up in Jumanji, a city of golden buildings and towers.

The directions read:

(A) Player selects piece and places it in deepest jungle.
(B) Player rolls dice and moves piece along path through the dangers of the jungle.
(C) First player to reach Jumanji and yell the city’s name aloud is the winner.
(D) Very important: Once a game of Jumanji is started it will not be over until one player reaches the Golden City.
Peter: OH, big deal!

Narrator: said Peter, who gave a bored yawn.

Judy: Peter, you go first!

Narrator: said Judy, handing her brother the dice. Peter casually dropped the dice from his hand.

Judy: Seven!

Narrator: said Judy, Peter moved his place to the seventh square.

Judy: Lion attacks, move back two spaces.

Narrator: read Judy.

Peter: (in a bored voice) Gosh, how exciting.

Narrator: said Peter, in a very exciting voice. As he reached for his piece, he looked up at his sister. She had a look of absolute horror on her face.

Judy: (whispering) Peter...turn around...very...very...slowly.
The boy could not believe his eyes. Lying on the piano was a lion, staring at Peter and licking his lips. The lion roared so loud it knocked Peter right off his chair. The big cat jumped to the floor. Peter was up on his feet, running through the house with the lion at whisker’s length behind. He ran upstairs and dove under a bed. The lion tried to squeeze under, but got his head stuck. Peter scrambled out, ran from the bedroom, and slammed the door behind him. He stood in the hall with Judy, gasping for air.

Peter I don’t think.

Narrator said Peter, in between gasps of air.

Peter that...I...want...to...play...this...game.... anymore!

Judy But we have to!

Narrator said Judy, as she helped Peter back downstairs.

Judy I think that’s what the instructions mean. That lion won’t go away until one of us wins the game.

Peter Can’t we just call the zoo and have him taken away?

Narrator From upstairs came the sounds of growling and clawing at the bedroom door.
Peter or maybe we could wait until father comes home.

Judy No one would come from the zoo because they wouldn’t believe us and you know how upset mother would be if there was a lion in the bedroom. We started the game, and now we have to finish it.

Narrator Peter looked down at the game board. What if Judy rolled a seven? Then there’d be two lions. For an instant, Peter thought he was going to cry. Then he sat firmly in his chair and said, Peter Let’s play!

Narrator Judy picked up the dice, rolled an eight, and moved her piece.

Judy Monkey steal food, miss one turn.

Narrator she read. From the kitchen came the sounds of banging pots and falling jars. The children ran in to see a dozen monkeys tearing the room apart.

Peter OH BOY!

Narrator said Peter.

Peter This would upset mother even more than the lion!

THE END!
Help! Help!

Cried the Page when the sun came.

King Bidgood’s in the bathtub, and he won't get out!
Oh!, who knows what to do?

I do!

Get out! It’s time to battle?

Come in!

Today we battle in the tub!

Help! Help!
Narrator: Cried the page when the sun got hot.

Page: King Bidgood's in the bathtub, and he won't get out! Oh!, who knows what to do?

Queen: I do!

Narrator: Cried the Queen when the sun got hot.

Queen: Get out! It's time to lunch!

King: Come in!

Narrator: Cried the King, with a yum, yum, yum.

King: Today we lunch in the tub!

Narrator: Cried the Page when the sun sank low.

Page: King Bidgood's in the bathtub, and he won't get out. Oh!, who knows what to do?

Duke: I do!

Narrator: Cried the Duke when the sun sank low.

Duke: Get out! It's time to fish!

King: Come in!

Narrator: Cried the King, with a trout, trout trout.

King: Today we fish in the tub!

Narrator: Cried the Page when the night got dark.

Page: King Bidgood's in the bathtub, and he won't get out!
    Oh!, who knows what to do?

Court: We do!

Narrator: Cried the Court when the night got dark.

Court: Get out for the Masquerade Ball!

King: Come in!

Narrator: Cried the King, with a jig, jig, jig.

King: Tonight we dance in the tub!

Court: Help! Help!

Narrator: Cried the Court when the moon shone bright.

Court: King Bidgood's in the bathtub, and he won't get out!
    Oh!, who knows what to do?
    Who knows what to do?

Page: I do!

Narrator: Said the Page when the moon shone bright, and then he pulled the plug.
    Glub...glub...glub.

THE KITTEN WHO THOUGHT HE WAS A MOUSE

CHARACTERS:

Mother        Father    Mickey    Lester
Sister (s)     Hazel     Narrator 1  Narrator 2

Narrator 1 There were five Miggeses: Mother and Father Miggs, Lester, and two sisters. They had, as field mice usually do, an outdoor nest for summer in an empty lot and an indoor nest for winter in a nearby house.

Narrator 2 They were very surprised on a summer day to find a strange bundle in their nest. They knew by its mewing that the bundle must be a kitten, a lost kitten with no family and no name.
Sisters  Poor kitty!

Lester  Let him stay with us.

Mother  But a cat?

Father  Why not?
We can bring him up to be a good mouse.
He need never find out he is really a cat.
You’ll see, he’ll be a good thing for this family.

Lester  Let’s call him Mickey.

Narrator 1  That’s how Mickey Miggs found his new family and a name.
After his eyes opened, he began to grow up just as mice do, eating all kinds of seeds and bugs and drinking from puddles and sleeping in a cozy pile of brother and sister mice.

Narrator 2  From the distance, Father Miggs showed him his first tomcat.

Father  Remember to keep away from all cats, dogs, and people.

Narrator 1  When they moved to the indoor nest that fall,
Mother Miggs showed Mickey his first mousetrap.
Mother  The most dangerous thing of all is a mousetrap.
   Be careful around them.

Narrator 2  Mickey was too clumsy to steal bait from traps himself, so Lester and the sisters had to share with him what they stole.

Narrator 1  But Mickey was useful in fooling the household cat, Hazel. He practiced up on meowing, for usually, of course, he squeaked, and became clever at what he thought was imitating a cat. He would hide in a dark corner and then...

Mickey  Meow, Meow!

Hazel  Where is that sound coming from? I have to leave this area to find the other cat.

Narrator 2  Hazel would poke around, leaving the pantry shelves unguarded while she looked for the other cat. That gave Lester and his sisters a chance to make a raid on the leftovers. Mickey feared Hazel as much as the mousiest mouse would, because he didn’t know he was a cat.
Narrator 1  Mickey Miggs grew, became very much like a mouse and enjoyed eating the same foods that mice would eat. One day, coming from a nap in the wastepaper basket, Mickey met the children of the house, Peggy and Paul. He squeaked in terror like a mouse. The children could not understand why the kitten had been so mouse-like, but they decided to try to make friends with him by placing a dish of milk for him that night.

Mickey  What is it?

Lester  I don’t know. Let me taste it. Yuk! No good! (shaking his head)

Narrator 2  Mickey tried it, tried some more, then some more, until it was all gone.

Mickey  Let me have a taste too. Mmmmmmm! What wonderful stuff!

Lester  It’s probably poison and you’ll get sick.

Narrator 1  But it wasn’t poison and Mickey had a lovely feeling in his stomach from drinking it, which was milk. And every night that week, Mickey found a saucer of milk outside that same hole. He licked up every drop.
Narrator 2  At first, Mickey would drink the milk only when he was sure Peggy and Paul were nowhere around. Soon he grew bolder and began to trust them in the room with him. He began to trust them. He didn’t feel scared when Peggy scooped him up in her arms. He felt a queer noise rumble up his back and all through him.

Narrator 1  It was Mickey’s first purr. Peggy and Paul took Mickey to the mirror and Mickey saw his reflection.

Mickey  I don’t look like my brother and sisters. I look like Hazel. I’m a cat, not a mouse! (He pouted) Meow! Meow!

Narrator 2  He made a mewing wail and not a squeak when he cried. The next morning, he crept back through his old hole straight to Mother Miggs.

Mickey  Am I really a cat?

Mother  Yes, you are! We had found you in a bundle in front of our door. We adopted you and brought you up as a mouse. We loved you and wanted you to love us. It was the only safe and fair way to bring you up.
Narrator 1After talking with Mother Miggs, Mickey decided to be a cat in all ways. He now lives with Peggy and Paul who also love him. Mickey can’t really forget his upbringing, however. He takes an old rubber mouse off of Peggy’s bed with him.

Narrator 2He often visits the Miggses in the indoor nest, where he nibbles cheese tidbits and squeaks about old times. And of course, he sees to it that Hazel no longer prowls in the pantry at night!

FatherOh, I’m so fat and stuffed from eating so much in Hazel’s pantry.

MotherI always said our Mickey would be a good thing for the family...and he is!

The End
Once upon a time there was a knee-high man. He was no taller than a person’s knees. Because he was so short, he was very unhappy. He wanted to be big like everybody else. One day he decided to ask the biggest animal he could find how he could get big. He went to see Mr. Horse.

Mr. Horse, how can I get big like you?

Well, eat a whole lot of corn. Then run around a lot. After a while, you’ll be as big as I am.

The knee-high man did just that. He ate so much corn that his stomach hurt.

(groans and hold stomach)
Then he ran and ran and ran until his legs hurt. But he didn’t get any bigger. He decided that Mr. Horse had told him wrong. He decided to ask Mr. Bull.

Mr. Bull, how can I get big like you?

Eat a whole lot of grass. Then bellow as loud as you can. The first thing you know, you’ll be as big as I am.

So the knee-high man ate a whole field of grass. That made his stomach hurt.

(groans and holds stomach)

He bellowed, and bellowed and bellowed all day and all night. That made his throat hurt. But he didn’t get any bigger. So he decided that Mr. Bull was all wrong, too. Now he didn’t know anyone else to ask. One night he heard Mr. Owl hooting, and he remembered that Mr. Owl knew everything.

Mr. Owl, how can I get big like Mr. Horse and Mr. Bull?

What do you want to be big for?

I want to be big so that when I get into a fight, I can whip everybody!

Anybody ever try to pick a fight with you?

The Knee-High Man thought a minute.
Knee-High Man  Well, now that you mention it, nobody ever did try to start a fight with me.

Mr. Owl.  Well, you don’t have a reason to fight. Therefore you don’t have any reason to be bigger than you are.

Knee-High Man  But, Mr. Owl, I want to be big so I can see far into the distance.

Mr. Owl  If you climb a tall tree, you can see into the distance from the top.

Narrator  The Knee-High Man was quiet for a minute.

Knee-High Man  Well, I hadn’t thought of that.

Narrator  Mr. Owl hooted.

Mr. Owl.  And that is what’s wrong, Mr. Knee-High Man, you haven’t done any thinking at all. I’m smaller than you are, and you don’t see me worrying about being big. Mr. Knee-High Man, you wanted something that you didn’t need.

Narrator  The moral of this story is...Knee-High Man wanted to be big like everyone else, but Mr. Owl helped him to see that he is just fine the way he is.

THE END!
Once upon a time there was a very lonely monster named Lamont. He was hairy and scary on the outside but on the inside he was good and kind. Lamont wanted a friend and upon the advice of a boy he went to Monster Mansion. He knocked but no one answered, so he opened the door and there was Sam, the Sulky Skeleton.

Hello, I’m looking for a friend.

Said Lamont.

What a bother, I’m not about to be your friend. But you can look around Monster Mansion if you want to, but you better watch out for Uriah the Heap who eats monsters like you for breakfast!
NARRATOR Said Sam. So Lamont began to explore the mansion.

LAMONT Maybe there’s a friend in here...

NARRATOR He said, when he saw what looked like a chest. But inside he found...a sleeping vampire.

LAMONT He doesn’t look friendly so I better not wake him.

NARRATOR In the next room, Lamont heard heavy breathing from a closet.

LAMONT Maybe that’s a new friend trying to get out.

NARRATOR But when he opened the door, there was...a werewolf!

MONSTER Rrrrooowwwllll!!!!!!!

LAMONT He doesn’t sound very friendly to me!

NARRATOR And he shut the door and went on his way, hoping that he wouldn’t run into Uriah the Heap.

LAMONT My, what a lot of books. Here’s an interesting one called “Open Here.”

NARRATOR Lamont pulled the book and a secret panel opened revealing a pair of ghosts.

MONSTERS It’s Uriah the Heap!
NARRATOR They screamed.

LAMONT If people confuse me with that terrible monster, I will never find a friend.

NARRATOR Lamont walked down a hall and opened a door that had smoke coming out of it.

MONSTER How dare you interrupt me when I’m mixing my potion. Be gone and may you meet Uriah the Heap before the day’s out. He’ll take care of you!

LAMONT That’s what I’m afraid of!

NARRATOR Lamont thought that he would try one more door and then give up. He reached out and threw open the door... only to find Uriah the Heap!

URIAH Aha! It looks like I’ve found another victim!

LAMONT P-p-p-please, Mr. Heap

NARRATOR Stammered Lamont.

LAMONT I’d make a terrible breakfast. Couldn’t we be friends?

URIAH Friends? Friends? You and me? Friends?

LAMONT Well, that is why I am here. I have been looking for a friend.

THE END!
There was a girl named Abigail who was taking a drive through the country with her parents when she spied a beautiful, sad-eyed gray and white pony. And next to it was a sign that said: FOR SALE--CHEAP.

Oh, may I have that pony? May I ppleaseeeeeeese? No, you may not.

But I must have that pony.
Dad  Well, you can’t have that pony, but you can have a nice butter pecan ice cream cone when we get home.

Abigail  I don’t want a butter pecan ice cream cone. I WANT THAT PONY! I MUST HAVE THAT PONY!

Mom  Be quiet and stop nagging. You’re not getting that pony.

Narrator  And Abigail began to cry and said...

Abigail  If I don’t get that pony, I’ll die!

Dad  You won’t die. No child ever died from not getting a pony.

Narrator  And Abigail felt so bad that when they got home she went to bed. And she couldn’t eat, and she couldn’t sleep, and her heart was broken. And she DID die...all because of a pony that her parents wouldn’t buy.

Dad  Oh, what fools we were!

Mom  Oh, if she were only alive I would buy her a hundred, a HUNDRED ponies!

Narrator  This is a good story to read to your folks when they won’t buy you something you want.

THE END
Narrator: One day the Little Red Hen was raking in the yard, and she found a few grains of wheat. She asked, LR Hen: Who will help me plant this wheat?

Huey: Not I.

Narr. Said Huey. He was too busy climbing a tree.

Dewey: Not I.

Narr. Said Dewey. He was too busy playing with his wagon.

Louie: Not I.

Narr. Said Louie. He was too busy lying in the sun.

LR Hen: Then I’ll do it myself.
Narr. Said the Little Red Hen. And she did. Soon the wheat had grown tall. It was ready to be cut. The Little Red Hen asked, LR Hen Who will help me cut the wheat?

Huey Not I.

Narr. Said Huey, and he rode off on his hobby horse.

Dewey Not I.

Narr. Said Dewey, and he waved from the top of a tree.

Louie Not I.

Narr. Said Louie, and he yawned.

LR Hen Then I’ll do it myself.

Narr. Said the Little Red Hen. And she did. Now the wheat was ready to be ground into flour. Again the Little Red Hen went to Huey, Dewey, and Louie. She asked, LR Hen Who will help me carry the wheat to the mill to be ground?

Huey Not I!

Dewey Not I!

Louie Not I!

LR Hen Then I’ll do it myself.
Said the Little Red Hen. And she did. When the Little Red Hen came back from the mill, she asked,

Who will help me back this flour into bread?

Not I!!

Said Huey, half asleep, as he was busy taking a nap.

Not I!!

Said Dewey, who was busy playing with the pump.

Not I!!

Said Louie, who was busy playing with a toy cart.

Then I’ll do it myself.

Said the Little Red Hen. And she did. When the bread came out of the oven, it smelled SO GOOD! The Little Red Hen asked,

Who will help me eat this bread?

I will!!!

I will!!!

I will!!!

Oh, no you won’t!
LR Hen I planted the grain and cut it. I carried it to the mill, and I baked it too. Not one of you would help me do the work. I did it all myself, and now I'll eat the bread myself.

Narr. And she did!

Mr. Servis

Characters: Stepmother  Robber
            Narrator       Grandmother
            Undercover cop
            Little Red Riding Hood: a.k.a. “Harley Queen”

Narrator: Once upon a time, there was a spoiled little girl who was disliked by all those who knew her; all, that is, except her grandmother, who didn’t know what to make of her.

Once, her grandmother gave her a cute little black leather jacket. It was becoming and she liked it so much that she never took it off, leading to the name, “Harley Queen.”

One day her stepmother said to her:
Stepmother
Come here, Harley. Take this soup and bread to your grandmother. She is weak and ill, and they will do her good. Go quickly before the soup gets cold. Remember not to talk to any strangers, and if someone approaches you, run and tell someone.

Harley
Yeah, Edith...whatever.

Narrator
Harley then left and began to head towards her grandmother’s house. She lived about half of an hour away in the inner city in a not-so-good neighborhood. As she turned the corner, she was approached by a suspicious looking man.

Robber:
Good morning, little girl.

Narrator
Harley, being the bold girl that she was, was not afraid and moved closer.

Harley
Good morning, mister!

Robber
So what is a cute girl like you doing in this part of town at this hour?

Harley
I’m goings to my grandmother’s house. Wait, what’s it to you?

Robber
So what do you have in that bag, anything that I would like?

Harley
No, nothing I’m willing to give you. I just have some soup and bread for my sick grandmother.
Robber: Where does she live?

Harley Huh?

Narrator Saying it sarcastically:

Harley It's none of your business!

Narrator Harley begins to walk to her grandmother's house and the Robber stayed behind, watching her closely out of the corner of his eye. He said to himself:

Robber Hmmm. The house this girl is going to would be a prime house to hit.

Narrator His eyes continued to follow Harley, and once she reached the house and entered, he snuck around back trying to find the best entrance. Harley began to yell for her grandmother.

Harley Grandma, I'm here! Where are you?

Narrator Her grandmother shouted:

Grandma Oh, my sweet Harley. I'm upstairs in my room.

Narrator Harley went upstairs and gave her bag of treats to her grandmother.

Harley Good morning, grandma! How are you feeling? I brought you some soup and bread. Hopefully you're feeling well enough to eat them.
Narrator  In a low thankful voice . . .

Grandma   Oh, darling. How thoughtful that was of you. I'm feeling much better than yesterday. Your soup should hit the spot.

Narrator  In a sweet voice

Harley    Anything for you, grandma. I was worried about you. Thanksgiving is coming soon and I'd hate to see you be sick for that.

Narrator  All of a sudden, there was a loud crash, and the sound of glass breaking. Harley and her grandmother froze. Before they even had time to dial 911, the robber burst into her grandmother's room and pulled out a gun. The robber yelled:

Robber    Nobody move! Hands up! If you cooperate no one will get hurt!

Narrator  Harley and her grandmother cooperated, trying not to look too scared. In the meantime, there was an undercover cop who saw the robber approach Harley and follow her to her grandmother's house. The cop burst open the door, ran downstairs, and caught the robber stealing grandmother's jewels. The cop yells:
Cop

Freeze!
Drop the gun and put your hands on your head!

Narrator

The robber did what the cop said and the cop handcuffed him and read him his rights. Harley and her grandmother hug after regaining their composure, and sat down to enjoy the soup and bread.

THE END
Narr. As soon as Wolf began to feel
That he would like a decent meal,
He went and knocked on Grandma’s door.
When Grandma opened it, she saw
The sharp white teeth, the horrid grin,
And Wolfie said,

Wolf “May I come in?”

Narr. Poor Grand mamma was terrified,

Grandma “He’s going to eat me up!”

Narr. She cried.
And she was absolutely right.
He ate her up in one big bite.
But Grand mamma was small and tough,
And Wolfie wailed,
Wolf “That’s not enough! I haven’t yet begun to feel that I have had a decent meal!”

Narr. He ran around the kitchen yelping,

Wolf I’ve got to have a second helping!”

Narr. Then added with a frightful leer,

Wolf “I’m therefore going to wait right here Till Little Miss Red Riding Hood Comes home from walking in the wood.”

Narr. He quickly put on Grandma’s clothes, (Of course he hadn’t eaten those). He dressed himself in coat and hat. He put on shoes and after that He even brushed and curled his hair, Then sat himself in Grandma’s chair. In came the little girl in red. She stopped. She stared. And then she said,

Red “What great big ears you have, Grandma.”

Wolf All the better to hear you with,”

Narr. The Wolf replied.

Red “What great big eyes you have, Grandma,”

Wolf “All the better to see you with,”

Narr. The Wolf replied.
Narr.  He sat there watching her and smiled. He thought, I’m going to eat this child. Compared with her old Grand mamma She’s going to taste like caviar. Then Little Red Riding Hood said,

Red  “But Grandma, what a lovely great big furry coat you have on.”

Wolf That’s wrong!”

Narr.  Cried Wolf.

Wolf “Have you forgot To tell me what BIG TEETH I’ve got? Ah well, no matter what you say, I’m going to eat you anyway.”

Narr.  The small girl smiles. One eyelid flickers. She whips a pistol from her knickers. She aims it at the creature’s head And bang bang bang, she shoots him dead.

A few weeks later, in the wood, I came across Miss Riding Hood. But what a change! No cloak of red, No silly hood upon her head. She said,

Red  “Hello, and do please note My lovely furry wolfskin coat.”

THE END!
Narrator: It was the first day of school. George was excited. Suddenly an enormous sixth grader jumped out of the bushes. George had never seen him before, but he knew right away that this must be Big Mike, the new kid in town.

Big Mike: Hi-ya, squirt! Gimme all your money or I won’t let you by!

George: I don’t have any money.

Big Mike: Then gimme your lunch....(pause)....You call this a lunch? You better have something better than this tomorrow! Now get out of here!

Narrator: George ran faster than he ever had before. That day George had nothing to eat for lunch.

Harriet: Forget your lunch? Here, you can have half of my peanut butter sandwich.
Narrator: After school George raced home. He was afraid that Big Mike would be waiting for him. That night he ate an enormous dinner.

Mom: Goodness, you’re hungry this evening.

George: Maybe you’d better pack me a bigger lunch tomorrow.

Narrator: The next morning Big Mike took George’s lunch again.

Big Mike: Listen, Big Ears, you’d better have more cookies tomorrow!

Narrator: That day George had nothing to eat for lunch again. Meanwhile, back in the lunch room.

Harriet: Golly, George, I already ate my sandwich. You’re sure getting forgetful.

Narrator: The next morning George sneaked some extra cookies into his lunch box. Then he took the long way to school, but Big Mike caught him anyway.

Big Mike: Don’t get tricky with me, Twitch Nose! Gimme your lunch!

Narrator: By the end of the week George was a nervous wreck. He couldn’t pay attention in class, he jumped when anyone called his name, and he was hungry all the time. On Friday in the lunch room George saw Harriet again.

Harriet: Something fishy is going on here. You’d better tell me what it is, George.
Narrator  So George told Harriet the whole story. He felt a little better then, but not much.

Harriet  We should tell the principal.

George  It wouldn’t do any good. Big Mike doesn’t go to this school.

Harriet  Hmmm, I think I have an idea. Meet me at my house tomorrow morning.

Narrator  Saturday morning, George walked over to Harriet’s. He shook all the way there.

Harriet  Here’s the plan. Come into the kitchen.

Narrator  The two of them set to work making a lunch. First, they made two tuna fish sandwiches. They poured half a jar of garlic powder into the tuna fish. Then, they filled a thermos halfway with vegetable soup. They filled it the rest of the way with vinegar. Finally, they mixed hot pepper into some fruit cocktail and put it in a jar.

Narrator  On Monday morning George hid his real lunch in his school bag and carried the lunch he and Harriet made. Then he set off for school. Sure enough, Big Mike stole George’s lunch again.

George  Won’t he be surprised! I sure taught Big Mike a big lesson!

Ideas for Usage:

This reader's theater is a funny ironic tale for children to enjoy. It targets students at the second or third grade. The pictures in the book help aid the story's humor. Things that can be discussed along with the book are irony, humor, how pictures are important to some text, etc. Students can easily rewrite this story to a more traditional and predictable book, or be just as creative. The Bunny family is careless, silly, and foolish, students will enjoy the upside down tale.

Characters:
Narrator 1  Poppa Bunny
Narrator 2  Mamma Bunny
Narrator 3  Baby Bunny
Narrator 1: Early one morning, the dumb bunnies were spending some quality time apart.

Narrator 2: Poppa Bunny was watching the Super Bowl. Momma Bunny was watching the Orange Bowl. And Baby Bunny was watching the Toilet Bowl.

Poppa Bunny: “That's my boy!”

Narrator 3: said Poppa Bunny.

Narrator 1: Soon it started to rain. Dark clouds rolled in, and thunder flashed brightly all around.

Poppa Bunny: “It looks like a perfect day to go to the beach,”

Narrator 2: said Poppa Bunny.

Narrator 3: So they packed three sack lunches, loaded up the car with everything they needed, and headed off for the beach.

Narrator 1: When they got to the beach, the Dumb Bunnies went in for a swim.

Narrator 2: Baby Bunny took his umbrella, because he didn't want to get wet.
Afterwards, Momma Bunny combed the beach, Poppa Bunny went fishing in a boat, and Baby Bunny blew up an inflatable raft.

"KA-BOOM!!!"

"That's my boy!"

"Looks like bad weather,"

"Duh, look!"

"A free car! Let's take it!"

So the Dumb Bunnies headed back to town. On their way, they came across the deal of the century!

"A free car! Let's take it!"

So they did.

When the Dumb Bunnies got to town, they parked their new car and went to see a movie. Inside the lobby, they bought a tub of popcorn.

But the Dumb Bunnies didn't enjoy the movie very much.
Poppa Bunny: "The screen is too small,"

Narrator 3: said Poppa Bunny.

Momma Bunny: "And it's too bright,"

Narrator 1: said Momma Bunny.

Narrator 2: After the movie, the Dumb Bunnies could hardly see a thing. They looked all over for their new car.

Poppa Bunny: "Duh, I think I found it,"

Narrator 3: said Poppa Bunny.

Narrator 1: So they all climbed in and drove toward home. It was a very bumpy ride.

Narrator 2: At last, the Dumb Bunnies arrived home safe and sound. It was getting late and was almost time for bed.

Baby Bunny: "Can I watch TV in my pajamas?"

Narrator 3: asked Baby Bunny.

Momma Bunny and Poppa Bunny: "Dokey-Okey,"

Narrator 1: said Momma and Poppa Bunny.
Narrator 2: So Baby Bunny put the TV in his pajamas and watched it all night long.

Poppa Bunny: “That's my boy,”

Narrator 3: said Poppa Bunny.

Elna Why I never!

Voice The delivery men are on their way.

Narrator Meanwhile...(yawn)...back in Sleepy Gulch...Rancher Hicks strolled on over to the barber shop for a whisker trim and to hear the latest gossip.

Hicks So...what’s new, Bob?

Voice Well...back in the spring of ‘49 we had a rainstorm you wouldn’t believe. Why’ it rained for pretty near a whole five minutes. Folks thought it’d never stop. Nothin’ much been happening since.
Meanwhile...back at the ranch...the dog had just had puppies when the postman came up the drive with a special delivery. Elna opened it. It was her Great Aunt Edith’s will.

My dear Elna,

I am leaving you my entire estate which is worth a bundle.

Your loving Great Aunt Edith

P.S. Enclosed is a winning lottery ticket. I didn’t have time to cash it in.

So Elna cashed in the lottery and put new siding on the house. Then she added a new wing for the wall-to-wall refrigerator and a new den for all the puppies and kittens. Meanwhile...(snore)...back in Sleepy Gulch...Rancher Hicks mosied on over to Millie’s Mildew Luncheonette.

What’s on the menu for today, Millie?

Well, we got potatoes mashed and potatoes fried, potatoes boiled and potatoes baked, potatoes roasted and potatoes stewed, potatoes scalloped and potatoes steamed, and one egg.

Sounds great. I’ll have one of each and a side order of fries.
Narrator Meanwhile...back at the ranch...after all the pigs had had piglets, Elna finally started to dig potatoes. She struck oil! The oilmen came and gave her lots of money. They started eight new oil wells and an oil refinery that day! Elna took the money and had a very stylish sty built for all the pigs and piglets. Meanwhile...(sigh)...back in Sleepy Gulch...Rancher Hicks headed on over to the general store to check out the checker game.

Hicks Howdy, boys. What’s new?

Voice Well, Bernie here just got a king and it only took him two weeks.

Narrator said Kurt.

Voice And I just jumped two of Kurt’s men in a little over two hours!

Narrator said Bernie.

Hicks Wow! What a game! I can’t wait to tell Elna!

Narrator Meanwhile...back at the ranch...all the cows had calves when a silver limo swung into the driveway. Out jumped a Hollywood movie producer and his hairdresser.

Voice Elna Hicks, I’m going to make you a movie star!
So Elna went on a diet and lost twenty pounds. The hairdresser dyed her hair blond and painted her lips red. The movie producer gave her a script, a bikini, and a large stack of dollar bills! So Elna had a glamorous cow palace built for all the cows and calves, and she studied her script. Meanwhile...(ho hum)...back in Sleepy Gulch...Rancher Hicks started to cross Main Street when he saw it!

Amazing!

Folks ran to see it.

Incredible!!!

A crowd gathered.

This is big news, really big!

Said the newspaper editor.

We’d better wake up the mayor.

Said the sheriff. The mayor came.

Why, I’ve never seen anything like it!

Said the mayor. So he declared it a town holiday. The whole town watched it for hours and hours until finally...a turtle crossed Main Street! Meanwhile...back at the ranch...all the horses had colts when the President’s helicopter landed in Elna’s yard.
Voice Elna Hicks, you’ve got the finest horses west of Washington. I’m making you a diplomat. Please deliver two of your finest horses to the Queen of England!

Narrator The President paid Elna for the horses and gave her a diplomat’s diploma and an autographed picture of himself.

Voice Don’t forget to vote for me!

Narrator Elna took the money and had a very stately stable built for all the horses and colts. Meanwhile...(zzzzzzzzz)...back in Sleepy Gulch...the sun began to sink slowly in the west. Rancher Hicks felt bad that Elna had missed all the excitement so he stopped and bought her a box of Cracker Jacks.

Hicks This will make her day.

Narrator Then he climbed into his truck and drove eighty-four miles back to the ranch. Elna met Rancher Hicks down by the mailbox. He gave her the box of Cracker Jacks and told her about all the excitement.

Elna Shoot! I miss everything!

Narrator Then Rancher Hicks turned around.

Hicks What the hay?!?!?!?!?!?

Narrator Meanwhile...Elna opened her box of Cracker Jacks and inside she found...a real diamond ring!!!!!

Miss Spider  Narrator  Holley  Hop
MOM writes that we should come to tea. Let's go!
Miss Spider cried.
We'll hire a frog to cross the bog down to the river side.
Among the mice, we might entice a fuzzy woodland guide.
Those mice could bite you!
Holley howled.
The river's full of snakes.
To think of you atop a frog gives me the quiver shakes.
It's much too far.
Let's buy a car instead for heaven's sakes!
You're brilliant, dear
Miss Spider cheered.

Miss Snider A car would be divine.
With sky blue shells and silver bells and chiming bits that shine.
Look over there!
I do declare that one would suit us fine!

Miss Spider grinned,

we'll take it home!

But Holley only frowned.

Would it be wise to buy the first jalopy that we’ve found?
I'll ask the bee to wait 'til three so we can shop around.

Mik Mantis crooned,

this honey runs on nectar from a flower.
Its two-stem engine is equipped with turbo-bumble power,
and capable of reaching speeds near ninety yards per hour.

Poor Holley shrieked,

it's much too fast!
Please look out where you're going.
There might be hungry rats down there.
We have no way of knowing.

How fine it is,

Miss Spider laughed,
Miss Spider to feel my toppy blowing!

Holley Slick-tail the snail,

Narrator said Holley,

Holley Calls this gem the Escargot. It looks all sleek and spirally, but rides so nice and slow.

Miss Spider That sales snail,

Narrator said Miss Spider,

Miss Spider Looks familiar, don't you know?

Hop The wheel is out of date,

Narrator whooped Hop,

Hop just like a dino saur. Our flexo-flea spring loaded legs are what you're looking for. Just pull the round brown throttle down and hear that engine roar!

Me May Fly Why travel on the public roads? Such trouble that it brings: the bumps and holes, the toads and moles, the snakes and rats and things. It's only sense,

Narrator Meg May Fly bragged,

Me May Fly to buy this car with wings.
Holley It's almost three now,

Narrator Holley coughed.

Holley We really ought to run. I'm certain, dear, the first car was by far the nicest one.

Skid Skipper Just try this dream,

Narrator Sid Skipper schemed,

Sid Skipper and then you shall be done.

Miss Spider The springs are shot,

Narrator Miss Spider moaned.

Miss Spider I bounce with every bump. The steering's locked. The brakes won't work, no matter how I pump. That tree is getting awfully close... I think we'd better jump!

Narrator Miss Spider wailed,

Miss Spider they'll sell my car. It's nearly half past three!

Narrator Then Holley spied a dozing moth and whispered secretly,

Holley Excuse me, Sue, but could you do a courtesy for me?

Miss Spider Oh, where's my car? My lovely car!
Narrator  She blew her nose and cried.

Bub Bumble Bee  A moth paid cash and drove it home,

Narrator  Bub Bumble Bee replied.

Bub Bumble Bee  I'm sorry ma'am. Indeed I am.

Miss Spider  Me too,

Narrator  Miss Spider sighed,
  But then upon Miss Spider's lawn. . .
  Oh, what a dazzling sight
  Proud Holley beamed,

Holley  Moth Sue came through, the way I hoped she might.
  You knew it from the first my love, that little car's just right!

Narrator  Beneath the door,
  upon the floor,
  Miss Spider found a note.

Miss Spider  Another message from my mom, I wonder what she wrote. . .

What fun!
She wants to take us both out shopping for a boat!

THE END
Narrator: It was the coldest day of the winter and a little boy was gathering firewood for his grandmother. As the grandmother sat knitting a pair of mittens she said, Grandmother: Bring back all the wood you can.

Narrator: All morning the boy worked picking up sticks, until his sled was well loaded. Then a very strange thing happened......he dropped one of his mittens in the snow. Now, how a boy could do this on the coldest day of winter, I’ll never know, but that’s the way my grandfather tells the story.

Off he went with his load of wood and the mitten was left lying on a snowdrift. Soon a little mouse came scurrying through the woods. She was very cold and when she spied the little boy’s mitten with it’s feathery fur cuff she said,

Mouse: It looks so warm and just the right size for a little mouse.

Narrator (continued) shouldn’t have been so generous, but with the winter wind outside, what else could she do? And now...as if things weren’t bad enough, the next visitor was a big gray wolf who asked,

Wolf May I come in too?

Narrator Everyone moved around a bit and finally the wolf was squeezed into the mitten too. It was very, very, very crowded by now...but it was warm. Everyone had just gotten comfortable when they heard a great snorting. It was a wild boar and he was anxious to get in out of the wind. The mouse cried, Mouse Oh dear! We have no more room!

Boar I’ll be very careful.

Narrator And with that he squinched himself into the mitten with the rest of the animals. I know this is so because my grandfather told me. But the worst was yet to come for who should appear but a bear.

ALL NO ROOM !!! NO ROOM !!!

Narrator The bear said,

Bear Nonsense! There’s always room for one more.

Narrator And without so much as a please or thank-you, he squizzed into the mitten. Now while all this was going on, along came a little black cricket. She was very old and her creaky legs ached with cold. When she saw the mitten she said to herself,
Narrator (continued)

Cricket
That looks like a nice warm place. I’ll just hop over and see if I can squeeze in, too.

Narrator
But, ah me! That’s all that was needed to finish off the poor old mitten. The cricket had no more than put her first scratchy foot inside when with a rip, and a snap, the stitches came apart. The old leather cracked and the soft red lining split in half popping all the animals into the snow. Well, at this very moment the little boy discovered that he had only one mitten, so he went back to look for it. But all he could find were the ripped apart pieces. He thought he saw a little mouse scurrying away with a little red hat perched on her head that looked just like the thumb of his mitten. As the boy snuggled his cold hand inside his coat he said,

Boy
Oh well, my grandma will have my new mittens all done by now.

Narrator
Then he hurried home with the north wind nipping at his cheeks. And my grandfather says he never did know what really happened to his mittens.

MISS NELSON IS MISSING!
by Harry Allard

Adapted for Reader’s Theater
by Lori Lake

Narrator    Miss Nelson    Viola Swamp       Kid 1        Kid 2

Narrator The kids in Room 207 have been misbehaving all day, as usual, for they are the worst-behaved class in the whole school. Paper planes are flying through the air and spit balls are stuck to the ceiling.

Miss Nelson Please, settle down.

Kid 1 No, we don’t want to!

Narrator He said, while making faces and getting laughed at by the rest of the class.

Miss Nelson Everyone gather around for story hour.

Kid 2 No, we want to go outside for recess!

Narrator She said, while standing on her head.

Miss Nelson They refuse to cooperate for everything. Something will have to be done!
Narrator  The next morning, Miss Nelson did not come to school.

Kid 1  Wow! Now we can really act up!

Kid 2  Yeah, today let’s be just terrible!

Viola Swamp  Not so fast!

Narrator  Hissed an unpleasant voice. A woman in an ugly black dress stood before them.

Viola Swamp  I am your new teacher, Miss Viola Swamp.

Narrator  She said, as she rapped on the desk with her ruler.

Kid 1  Where is Miss Nelson?

Viola Swamp  Never mind that! Open those arithmetic books!

Narrator  The kids did as they were told. They could see that Miss Swamp was a real witch. She meant business! Right away she put them to work. And she loaded them down with homework.

Viola Swamp  We’ll have no story hour today. Keep your mouths shut. Sit perfectly still, and if you misbehave, you’ll be sorry!

Narrator  The kids in 207 had never worked so hard. Days went by and there was no sign of Miss Nelson. The kids missed Miss Nelson.

Kid 2  Maybe we should try to find her.
Narrator Some of them went to the police station where Detective McSmogg, who was assigned to the case, was of no help. Other kids went to her house, where the shades were tightly drawn and no one answered the door. While they were there at the door, however, they spotted someone...

Kid 1 It’s Miss Swamp! If she sees us, she’ll give us more homework.  RUN!

Kid 2 Maybe something terrible happened to Miss Nelson! Maybe she was gobbled up by a shark!

Kid 1 Maybe Miss Nelson went to Mars!

Kid 2 I know! Maybe Miss Nelson’s car was carried off by a swarm of angry butterflies!

Narrator None of their answers seemed likely. The kids in Room 207 became very discouraged. It seemed as if Miss Nelson was never coming back. And they would be stuck with Miss Viola Swamp forever. They sat disappointed in class as they heard footsteps coming down the hall Kid 1 Here comes the witch!

Miss Nelson Hello, children.

Narrator Someone said in a sweet voice. It was Miss Nelson.

Miss Nelson Did you miss me?

Kid 2 We certainly did!
Miss Nelson  That’s my little secret. How about story hour?
Kid 2  Oh, yes!
Narrator  Miss Nelson noticed that during story hour no one was silly or rude.
Miss Nelson  What brought about this lovely change?
Both Kids  That’s our little secret!
Narrator  Back home, Miss Nelson took off her coat and hung it in the closet right next to an ugly black dress.
Miss Nelson  I’ll never tell.
Narrator  She said to herself with a smile.

The 90210 Princess

An ‘original’ dramatization for Reader’s Theater, adapted from The Paper Bag Princess, by Robert Munsch

Characters:

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Kelly</th>
<th>Val</th>

<tbody>
<tr>
<td>Brandon</td>
<td>Narrator</td>

</tbody>

Narrator: Kelly was a beautiful princess. She lived in a beach house and had expensive clothes from Rodeo Drive. She was going to marry the Journalist extraordinaire, Brandon Walsh. Unfortunately, Val Malone threw all of Kelly’s designer clothes over the balcony of her beach house and they were carried off into the ocean. Val also stole Kelly’s boyfriend, Brandon, and locked him in the basement of the After Dark. Kelly decided to stalk Val and get her boyfriend, Brandon, back.
She looked everywhere for something to wear, but the only thing she could find was a burnt paper bag. So she put on the paper bag and followed Val. Val was easy to follow because she left a trail of old boyfriends wherever she went. Finally, Kelly came to the Peach Pit. She went in and sauntered right up to Val. Val stuck out her nose and said,

“Well...a princess! I love to ruin princess's lives. But I have already ruined somebody else's today. I'm a very busy girl...come back tomorrow.”

She slammed the door so fast that Kelly almost broke her nail on it. Kelly reached out for the door and banged again. Val stuck her nose out the door and said, “Go away! I love to ruin princess’s lives, but I have already ruined somebody else's today. I'm a very busy girl... come back tomorrow.”

“Wait, is it true that you are the smartest, most conniving person in all of Beverly Hills?”

“Yes.”
Kelly: “Is it true that you have the power to steal every girl’s boyfriend in all of Beverly Hills?”

Val: “Why, yes.”

Narrator: And she walked over to David Silver and asked him out. While Val was putting the moves on David, Kelly heard screams coming from the basement of the After Dark, so she busted in.

Narrator: There was Brandon Walsh. He looked at her and said, Brandon: Kelly, you are a mess. You smell like cheap perfume. Your hair is all tangled, and you are wearing a dirty old paper bag. Come back when you look like a real California princess.

Kelly: Brandon, your clothes are really pretty and your hair is very neat. You look like a real prince, but you are a bum.

Narrator: They didn't get married after all.

THE END
Narrator 1: Officer Buckle knew more safety tips than anyone else in Napville. Every time he thought of a new safety tip, he would thumbtack it to his bulletin board.

Officer Buckle: "Safety Tip #77 - NEVER stand on a SWIVEL CHAIR."

Narrator 1: Officer Buckle shared his safety tips with the students at Napville School. Nobody ever listened. The kids would make paper airplanes, do their homework or sleep. After one of Officer Buckle’s presentations, he was walking through the school and saw the principal, Mrs. Toppel taking down a banner.

Officer Buckle: "NEVER stand on a SWIVEL CHAIR," Narrator 1: but she did not hear him.

Narrator 2: Then one day the police department bought a police dog named Gloria for Officer Buckle. When it was time for Officer Buckle to give the safety speech he took Gloria along with him.

Officer Buckle: "Children, this is Gloria. She obeys my commands. Gloria, SIT!"

Narrator 2: And Gloria sat. Officer Buckle gave Safety Tip Number One:

Officer Buckle: "KEEP your SHOELACES tied!"

Student 1: (whispering) "That dog is standing up and making a number one with his finger, just like Officer Buckle"

Narrator 2: The children sat up and stared. When Officer Buckle checked to see if Gloria was sitting at attention, she was.

Officer Buckle: "Safety Tip Number Two: ALWAYS wipe up spills BEFORE someone SLIPS AND FALLS!"

Student 2: (whispering) "Look at that dog standing on his head!"

Narrator 1: All the children's eyes popped. Officer Buckle checked on Gloria again.
Officer Buckle: "GOOD DOG!
The next tip is NEVER leave a THUMBTACK where you might SIT on it!"

Narrator 2: Gloria jumped up in the air as if she had just sat on a thumbtack.

Narrator 1: The audience roared with laughter. This pleased Officer Buckle and he recited the rest of the safety tips with much expression. The children clapped, cheered and some laughed so hard that they cried. Officer Buckle was surprised. He did not think that safety tips could be so much fun. After this safety speech, there was not a single accident. The next day, a huge envelope arrived at the police station with thank you letters from the students. Each letter had a drawing of Gloria on it.

Officer Buckle: "These kids certainly have good imaginations!"

Narrator 1: Officer Buckle hung up his favorite letter which was in the shape of a star. It said, "You and Gloria make a good team.
Your friend, Claire...

Narrator 1: P.S. I always wear a crash helmet (Safety Tip #7)."
The phone began ringing. Grade schools, high schools and day-care centers were calling asking Officer
Narrator 1: Buckle to come and give his safety speech and they wanted him to bring the dog with him.

Narrator 3: Officer Buckle went to 313 different schools.
Everywhere Gloria and him went, the children sat and listened.
After every speech, Officer Buckle would take Gloria out for ice cream.
They were buddies.
Then one day, a television news team videotaped Officer Buckle in the state-college auditorium.
When he finished Safety Tip Number Ninety-nine...

Officer Buckle: "DO NOT GO SWIMMING DURING ELECTRICAL STORMS!"

Narrator 1: Gloria pretended she was being electrocuted.

Narrator 2: The students jumped to their feet and applauded.
Officer Buckle bowed again and again.
That night, Officer Buckle watched himself on the 10 o'clock news.

Narrator 1: The next day, the principal of Napville School telephoned the police station.

Mrs. Toppel: "Good Morning, Officer Buckle It's time for our safety speech!"

Narrator 2: Officer Buckle frowned.
Officer Buckle: "I'm not giving anymore speeches! Nobody looks at me, anyway!"

Mrs. Toppel: "Oh, well how about Gloria? Could she come?"

Narrator 1: Another police officer drove Gloria to Napville. Gloria sat on stage by herself looking very lonely. Then she fell asleep. So did the audience.

Narrator 2: After Gloria left, Napville School had its biggest accident ever... It started with a puddle of banana pudding...SPLAT, SPLATTER, SPLOOSH! Everyone slid smack into Mrs. Toppel, who screamed and let go of her hammer.

Narrator 1: The next morning, a pile of letters arrived for Officer Buckle at the police station. Every letter had a picture of the accident. Officer Buckle was shocked. At the bottom of the pile there was another letter in the shape of a star from Claire. It said, "Gloria missed you yesterday! Your friend, Claire."

Narrator 1: P.S. Don't worry, I was wearing my helmet! (Safety Tip #7)."
Narrator 2: Gloria gave Officer Buckle a big kiss on the nose. Officer Buckle gave Gloria a nice pat on the back. Then, Officer Buckle thought of his best safety tip yet...

Officer Buckle: "Safety Tip # 101 "ALWAYS STICK WITH YOUR BUDDY!"

THE END
N-1 Congratulations!
Today is your day.
You’re off to Great Places!
You’re off and away!

N-2 You have brains in your head.
You have feet in your shoes.
You can steer yourself,
any direction you choose.
You’re on your own. And you know what you know.
And YOU are the guy who’ll decide where to go.

N-3 You’ll look up and down streets.
Look ‘em over with care.
About some you will say,

N-4 I don’t choose to go there.
With your head full of brains, and your shoes full of feet, you’re too smart to go down, any not-so-good street.

And you may not find any, you’ll want to go down. In that case, of course, you’ll head straight out of town.

It’s opener there, in the wide open air.

Out there things can happen, and frequently do. To people as brainy, and footsy as you.

And when things start to happen, don’t worry. Don’t stew. Just go right along. YOU’LL start happening too.

OH! THE PLACES YOU’LL GO!!

You’ll be on your way up! You’ll be seeing great sights! You’ll join the high fliers, who soar to high heights.

You won’t lag behind, because you’ll have the speed. You’ll pass the whole gang and you’ll soon take the lead. Wherever you fly, you’ll be best of the best. Wherever you go, you will top all the rest.
Oh, the places you’ll go!
There is fun to be done!
There are points to be scored.
There are games to be won.
And the magical things you can do with that ball.
Will make you the winning-est winner of all.

Fame! You’ll be famous as famous can be, with the whole wide world watching you win on TV!

Except when they don’t,
because sometimes they won’t.

I’m afraid that some times, you’ll play lonely games too.
Games you can’t win,
‘cause you’ll play against you.

All alone!
Whether you like it or not.
Alone will be something,
you’ll be quite a lot.

And when you’re alone,
there’s a very good chance,
you’ll meet things that scare you,
right out of your pants!

There are some, down the road, between hither and yon,
that can scare you so much you won’t want to go on.

But on you will go,
though the weather be foul.
N-2 On you will go, though your enemies prowl.
N-3 On you will go, though the Hakken-Kraks howl.

N-4 Onward up many a frightening creek, though your arms may get sore, and your sneakers may leak.

N-1 On and on you will hike, And I know you’ll hike far, and face up to your problems, whatever they are.

N-2 And will you succeed?

N-3 Yes! You will indeed!

N-4 98 and three-quarter percent guaranteed!

N-1 KID, YOU’LL MOVE MOUNTAINS!

N-2 Sooo... be your name Buxbaum or Bixby or Bray, or Mordicai Ali Van Allen O’Shea, You’re off to Great Places!

N-4 Today is your day!

N-1 Your mountain is waiting.

N-2 So... get on your way!

THE END!
You can think up some birds.
That's what you can do.
You can think about yellow or think about blue. . .

You can think about red.
You can think about pink.
You can think up a horse.
Oh, the thinks you can think!

Oh, the thinks you can think up if only you try!
If you try, you can think up a guff going by.
Narrator 4: And you don't have to stop. You can think about schlopp. Schlopp. Schlopp. Beautiful schlopp. Beautiful schlopp with a cherry on top.

Narrator 1: You can think about gloves. You can think about snuvs. You can think a long time about snuvs and their gloves.

Narrator 2: You can think about Kitty O'Sullivan Krauss in her big balloon swimming pool over her house.

Narrator 3: Think of black water. Think up a white shy. Think up a boat. Think of bloogs blowing by.

Narrator 4: You can think about night, a night in Na-Nupp. The birds are asleep and the three moons are up.

Narrator 1: You can think about day, a day in Da-Dake. The water is blue and the birds are awake.

Narrator 2: Think! Think and wonder. Wonder and think. How much water can fifty-five elephants drink?
Narrator 3: You can wonder. . . How long is the tail of a zong?

Narrator 4: There are so many thinks that a Thinker can think! Would you dare yank a tooth of the Rink-Rinker-Fink?

Narrator 1: And what would you do if you met a jibboo?

Narrator 2: Oh the thinks you can think!

Narrator 3: Think of Peter the Postman who crosses the ice. Once everyday - and on Saturdays, twice.

Narrator 4: Think! You can think any think that you wish. . . Think a race on a horse on a ball, with a fish!

Narrator 1: Think of light. Think of bright. Think of stairs in the night.

Narrator 2: Think! Think a ship. Think up a long trip. Go visit the Vipper, the Vipper of Vipp.

Narrator 3: And left! Think of left! And think about beft. Why is it that beft always go to the left?
Narrator 4: And why is so many things go to the right?
You can think about that until Saturday night.

Narrator 1: Think left and think right and think low and think high.
Oh, the thinks you can think up if only you try!

THE END
Narr. One fine day a fox traveled through a great forest. When he reached the other side he was very thirsty. He saw a pail of milk that an old woman had set down while she gathered wood for her fire. Before she noticed the fox, he had lapped up most of the milk. The woman became so angry that she grabbed her knife and chopped off his tail, and the fox began to cry.

Fox Please, old woman, give me back my tail. Sew it in place or all my friends will laugh at me.

Old W. Give me my milk, and I’ll give you back your tail.

Narr. So the fox dried his tears and went to find a cow.

Fox Dear cow, please give me some milk so I can give it to the old woman so she will sew my tail in place.

Cow I’ll give you some milk if you bring me some grass.
Narr. The fox called to the field,

Fox Oh beautiful field, give me some grass. I’ll take it to the cow and she’ll give me some milk. Then I’ll take the milk to the old woman so she will sew my tail in place and I can return to my friends.

Narr. The field called back,

Field Bring me some water.

Narr. The fox ran to the stream and begged for some water and the stream answered,

Stream Bring me a jug.

Narr. The fox found a fair maiden.

Fox Sweet maiden, please give me your jug so I can fetch some water to give the field to get some grass to feed the cow to get some milk to give the old woman to sew my tail in place so I can return to my friends.

Maiden If you find a blue bead for me, I will give you my jug.

Narr. So the fox found a peddler and said,

Fox There is a pretty maiden down the road and if you give me one blue bead for her she’ll be pleased with you and pleased with me. Then she’ll give me her jug so I can fetch some water to give the field to get some grass to feed the cow to get some milk to give the old woman to sew my tail in place.
Narr. But the peddler was not taken in by the promise of a pretty smile or the cleverness of the fox and he replied, Pedd. Pay me an egg and I'll give you a bead.

Narr. The fox went off and found a hen.

Fox Hen, dear hen, please give me an egg to give to the peddler in payment for the bead to get the jug to fetch the water to give the field to get some grass to feed the cows to get the milk that I must give the old woman in return for my tail.

Narr. The hen clucked,

Hen I'll trade you an egg for some grain.

Narr. The fox was getting desperate, and when he found the miller he began to cry.

Fox Oh kind miller, please give me a little grain. I have to trade it for the egg to pay the peddler to get the blue bead to give the maiden in return for her jug to fetch the water to give the field to get the grass to feed the cow to get the milk to give the old woman so she'll sew my tail in place, or all my friends will laugh at me.

Narr. The miller was a good man and felt sorry for the fox.

(Narrator takes a long, loud, deep breath!)
Narr. So he gave him the grain to give to the hen to get the egg to pay the peddler to get the bead to give the maiden to get the jug to fetch the water to give the field to get the grass to feed the cow to get the milk to give the old woman to get his tail back.

(Narrator takes another long, loud, deep breath!)

Narr. Speaking slowly in a regular narrative voice)

The fox returned to the old woman and gave her the milk. Then she carefully sewed his tail in place, and off he ran to join his friends on the other side of the forest.

Characters:
Narrator         Mr. Brown        Mrs. Brown        Paddington

Narrator: Mr. Brown is waiting for Mrs. Brown to return to the platform at Paddington station. While he is standing there, from behind the parcels, he sees something pop up like a jack-in-the-box and quickly down again. When Mrs. Brown returns...

Mr. Brown: Mary, you won’t believe this, but I’ve just seen a bear.

Mrs. Brown: A what?

Mr. Brown: A bear.

Mrs. Brown: A bear? On Paddington Station? Don’t be silly, Henry. There can’t be!

Mrs. Brown: A stowaway?

Paddington: Yes. I emigrated you know. I used to live with my Aunt Lucy in Peru, but she had to go into a Home for Retired Bears.

Mrs. Brown: You don’t mean to say that you’ve come all the way from South America by yourself?

Paddington: Yes. Aunt Lucy always said she wanted me to emigrate when I was old enough. That’s why she taught me to speak English.

Mr. Brown: But whatever did you do for food? You must be starving.

Narrator: Paddington opens his suitcase and takes out an almost empty jar.

Paddington: I ate marmalade. Bears like marmalade. And I hid in a lifeboat.

Mr. Brown: But what are you going to do now? You can’t just sit in Paddington Station waiting for something to happen.

Paddington: Oh, I shall be all right...I expect.

Mrs. Brown: What does it say on your label?

Narrator: Reading it.

Mr. Brown: Please look after this bear. Thank you.
Mrs. Brown: That must be from his Aunt Lucy. Oh, Henry, what shall we do? We can’t just leave him here. There’s no knowing what might happen to him. Can’t he come and stay with us for a few days?

Mr. Brown: But Mary, dear, we can’t take him...not just like that. After all...

Mrs. Brown: After all, what? He’d be good company for Jonathan and Judy. Even if it’s only for a little while. They’d never forgive us if they knew you’d left him here.

Mr. Brown: It all seems highly irregular. I’m sure there’s a law against it.

Narrator: Mr. Brown turns to Paddington.

Mr. Brown: Would you like to come and stay with us? That is, if you’ve nothing else planned.

Paddington: Ooooh, yes, please. I should like that very much. I’ve nowhere to go and everyone seems in such a hurry.

Mrs. Brown: Well, that’s settled then. And you can have marmalade for breakfast every morning...

Paddington: Every morning? I only had it on special occasions at home. Marmalade’s very expensive in Darkest Peru.
Mrs. Brown: Then you shall have it every morning starting tomorrow.

Paddington: Will it cost a lot? You see, I haven’t very much money.

Mrs. Brown: Of course not. We wouldn’t dream of charging you anything. We shall expect you to be one of the family, shan’t we, Henry?

Mr. Brown: Of course. By the way, if you are coming home with us you’d better know our names. This is Mrs. Brown and I’m Mr. Brown.

Paddington: I haven’t really got a name, only a Peruvian one which no one can understand.

Mrs. Brown: Then we’d better give you an English one. It’ll make things much easier. It ought to be something special. Now what shall we call you? I know! We found you on Paddington Station so that’s what we’ll call you...Paddington!

Mr. Brown: It’s quite distinguished. Yes, I like Paddington as a name. Paddington it shall be.
Mrs. Brown: Good. Now Paddington, I have to meet our young daughter Judy off the train. I’m sure you must be thirsty after your long journey, so while I’m away Mr. Brown will get you something to drink.

Paddington: Thank you.

Mrs. Brown: And for goodness sake, Henry, when you get a moment, take that label off his neck. It makes him look like a parcel. I’m sure he’ll get put in a luggage van if a porter sees him.
Narr. Elizabeth was a beautiful princess. She lived in a beautiful castle and had expensive princess clothes. She was going to marry a prince named Ronald.

Narr. Unfortunately, a dragon smashed her castle, burned all her clothes with his fiery breath, and carried off Prince Ronald.

Narr. Elizabeth decided to chase the dragon and get Ronald back. She looked everywhere for something to wear but the only thing she could find that was not burnt was a paper bag. So she put on the paper bag and followed the dragon. He was so easy to follow because he left a trail of burnt forests and horses’ bones.
Finally, Elizabeth came to a cave with a large door that had a huge knocker on it. She took hold of the knocker and banged on the door.

The dragon stuck his nose out of the door and said,

“Well, a princess! I love to eat princesses, but I have already eaten a whole castle today. I am a very busy dragon. Come back tomorrow.”

He slammed the door so fast that Elizabeth almost got her nose caught. Elizabeth grabbed the knocker and banged on the door again. The dragon stuck his nose out of the door and said, “Go away. I love to eat princesses, but I have already eaten a whole castle today. I am a very busy dragon. Come back tomorrow.”

Wait, Is it true that you are the smartest and fiercest dragon in the whole world?”

“Yes”

“Is it true, that you can burn up ten forests with your fiery breath?”

“Oh, yes!”

And he took a huge, deep breath and breathed out so much fire that he burnt up fifty forests.
Elizabeth  “Fantastic!”

Narr.  At this, the dragon took another huge breath and breathed out so much fire that he burnt up one hundred forests.

Elizabeth  “Magnificent!”

Narr.  And the dragon took another huge breath, but this time nothing came out. The dragon didn’t even have enough fire left to cook a meat ball.

Elizabeth  “Dragon, is it true that you can fly around the world in just ten seconds?”

Dragon  “Why, yes!”

Narr.  And he jumped up and flew all the way around the world in just ten seconds. He was very tired when he got back, but Elizabeth shouted,

Elizabeth  “Fantastic, do it again!”

Narr.  So the dragon jumped up and flew around the whole world in just twenty seconds. When he got back he was too tired to talk and he lay down and went straight to sleep. Elizabeth whispered very softly,

Elizabeth  “Hey, dragon.”

Narr.  The dragon didn’t move at all. She lifted up the dragon’s ear and put her head right inside. She shouted as loud as she could,
Elizabeth    “Hey, dragon!”

Narr.        The dragon was so tired he didn’t even move.
Elizabeth walked right over the dragon and opened the door to the cave.
There was Prince Ronald.
He looked at her and said,

Ronald      “Elizabeth, you are a mess! You smell like ashes, your hair is all tangled and you are wearing a dirty old paper bag. Come back when you are dressed like a real princess.”

Elizabeth   “Ronald, your clothes are really pretty and your hair is very neat. You look like a real prince, but you are a bum.”

Narr.        They didn’t get married after all.

THE END
The Paradox

Adapted for Reader’s Theater
by J. Servis

Narr. #1 Three students on the door did knock;
With their Professor they would talk.
He welcomed them most cordially;

Narr. #2 Asked, “What could the problem be?”

Narr. #3 And in the office of that Saint,
They laid before him this complaint:
Your course falls short, you can’t deny,
Since lecture notes you don’t supply,
So all we do while in your class,
Is take dictation, notes amass.

Narr. #4 Preoccupied with pen and ink,
We have no time to learn nor think.
Your pearls of wisdom, priceless quotes,
Slip by while we sit taking notes.

Narr. #2 The good Professor promised this,
That they’d have lecture notes forthwith.
Six days he toiled and evenings too,
And when his task was finally through.
Then all his lectures without fail,
Were written up in great detail,
And basic concepts were defined,
Because they were all underlined.
Narr. #1  Next year came students as before
       To knock upon that good man’s door;
       To tell him how he was remiss,
       And now their grievance read like this:
       In lecture, everything you say
       Is in the course notes anyway.

Narr. #3  And since we all know how to read,
       Of hearing you there’s little need.
       We could as well remain at home
       And learn the subject on our own.
       Could you not tell us something new,
       That isn’t in the handouts too?

Narr. #2  The good Professor promised this:
       To remedy the flaw forthwith.
       Three days he toiled and evenings too,
       And when his task was finally through,
       He’d added data and more quotes,
       And minor points and anecdotes
       To supplement and underscore
       The topic that he’d taught before.

Narr. #4  Next year the students came to bleat:
       His lecture notes were incomplete.
       For much of what he did expound,
       Could nowhere in the notes be found.

Narr. #2  Although this caused him much chagrin,
       Soon to their braying he gave in,
       And once again without delay,
       He wrote down all that he would say.
Narr. #1 And to the old notes this was added—
His outline now was quite well padded.
When yet another year had passed,
And he thought he’d found peace at last,
There welled a cry from student throats,
That all he did was read his notes.

Narr. #2 The poor Professor paced the hall,
Feeling like a ping-pong ball.
Thus year by year his lectures grew,
And longer were his outlines too.

Narr. #3 And students found to their distress,
They had to master an excess
Of obscure facts, minute detail;
Of information dry and stale.

Narr. #4 A situation that attained
All because they had complained.

All: The moral is easy to observe:
Students get what they deserve!

PARTNERS
By Betty Baker
Adapted for Reader’s Theater by:
Anna Berardinelli, Judy Housel & Brenda Stanley
Characters:

Narrator   Badger   Coyote

Narrator: Long ago when all was new, everyone helped to make the world. Some dug rivers and canyons. Some pushed up dirt to make mountains and hills. Others made rocks and bright stones and sand, or planted trees and rolled out grass. Birds dropped seeds for plants and flowers. Badger was putting the stars in the sky. The bag of stars was big and lumpy. The ladder was long. But badger was strong. He was also neat and very careful. He put out the stars in the right order...

Everyone was helping to make the world. Everyone but Coyote. Coyote was singing to the new moon.

Coyote: Howl! Howl! Howl!

Narrator: Badger went by, pulling the bag and the long ladder.

Coyote: Is there something to eat in that bag?
Badger  No! I do not eat now. There will be a dance when the world is finished. I will eat then.

Coyote  I will go to the dance with you.

Badger  Only those who help make the world will go to the dance.

Narrator  Coyote did not like to dig or push dirt, but he wanted to go to the dance.

Coyote  You need a partner. You need a partner to move the ladder and hold it for you.

Badger  I can do that myself.

Coyote  Yes, but if I do it, you can just think about the stars and how to put them.

Badger  All right, you will be my partner.

Narrator  He took some stars and went up the ladder. He put out the stars - one by one. Then he came down.

Coyote  Very pretty, but make it bigger.

Narrator  He moved up the ladder. Up went Badger. Up went the stars - one by one.

Coyote  That is bigger, but use more stars.

Narrator  Badger went up the ladder again. He was up there a long time. He used a lot of stars, and he put them out - one by one.

Coyote  Can’t you do it faster?
Badger No! The sky must be neat. The stars must go up in the right order.

Narrator Again and again, Coyote moved the ladder. Again and again, Badger went up and put the stars out - one by one. The digging was finished. The mountains and hills had trees and flowers. But Badger was still putting up stars. Coyote could smell the food cooking.

Coyote Hurry! We’ll miss the dance.

Narrator But Badger put the stars out - one by one. The bag of stars was still almost full. Coyote took the bag.

Coyote A partner should make things easy for you. I will show you a better way.

Narrator And he threw the stars all over the sky.

Badger The sky is a mess.

Coyote But we are finished, now we can go to the dance.

Narrator And to the dance they went. Coyote told everyone, Coyote Badger and I were partners. We put up the stars. Badger put up the pretty ones, but I put up the most.

Narrator Then he ate and sang and danced and ate. But Badger dug a hole in the ground so he would not see the messy sky.

Pierre’s father
the lion

Narrator:  There once was a boy named Pierre, who only would say, I don’t care! Read his story, my friend, for you’ll find at the end that a suitable moral lies there.

Mother:  Good morning darling boy, you are my only joy!

Narrator:  Peter’s mother said, as he climbed out of bed.

Pierre:  I don’t care!
Mother: What would you like to eat?
Pierre: I don’t care!
Mother: Some lovely cream of wheat?
Pierre: I don’t care!
Narrator: Pierre said as he turned around in his chair.
Mother: Don’t sit backwards in your chair!
Pierre: I don’t care!
Mother: Or pour syrup in your hair.
Pierre: I don’t care!
Mother: You are acting like a clown.
Pierre: I don’t care!
Mother: And we have to go to town.
Pierre: I don’t care!
Mother: Don’t you want to come my dear?
Pierre: I don’t care!
Mother: Would you rather stay right here?
Pierre: I don’t care!
Narrator: So she left him there.
Father: Get off your head or I will march you to bed!

Pierre: I don’t care!

Father: I would think that you could see!

Pierre: I don’t care!

Father: Your head is where your feet should be!

Pierre: I don’t care!

Father: If you keep standing upside down-

Pierre: I don’t care!

Father: We’ll never get to town.

Pierre: I don’t care!

Father: If only you would say I CARE.

Pierre: I don’t care!

Father: I’d let you fold the folding chair.

Pierre: I don’t care!

Narrator: So his parents left him there.
They didn’t take him anywhere.

Narrator: As the night began to fall
a hungry lion paid a call.
He looked Pierre right in the eye and asked him if he’d like to die.
To that Pierre said.
Pierre:       I don’t care!
Lion:        I can eat you, don’t you see?
Pierre:       I don’t care!
Lion:        And you will be inside of me.
Pierre:       I don’t care!
Lion:        Then you’ll never have to bother!
Pierre:       I don’t care!
Lion:        With a mother and a father.
Pierre:       I don’t care!
Lion:        Is that all you have to say?
Pierre:       I don’t care!
Lion:        Then I’ll eat you, if I may.
Pierre:       I don’t care!

Narrator:    So the lion ate Pierre.

Narrator:    Arriving home at six o’clock, his parents had a dreadful shock! They found the lion sick in bed, and cried....

Mother and Father: Pierre is surely dead!
Narrator: They pulled the lion by the hair. They hit him with the folding chair. His mother asked, Mother: Where is Pierre?

Narrator: The lion answered...

Lion: I don’t care!

Narrator: His father said,

Father: Pierre’s in there!

Narrator: They rushed the lion into town. The doctor shook him up and down, and when the lion gave a roar! Pierre fell out upon the floor.

Narrator: He rubbed his eyes and scratched his head, and laughed because he wasn’t dead. His mother cried and held him tight. His father asked...

Father: are you all right?

Pierre: I am feeling fine, please take me home, it’s half-past nine.

Lion: If you would care to climb on me, I will take you there happily.

Narrator: Everyone looked at Pierre who shouted quite loudly...

Pierre: Yes, indeed I care!
Narrator: The lion took them home to rest, and stayed on as a weekend guest.

Narrator: The moral of Pierre you say?

The moral is that... YOU MUST CARE!

The End
Amelia Bedelia walks by the baseball team. The Grizzlies team is there.

Amelia Bedelia: I never saw such gloomy faces. Did something terrible happen?

Jimmy: We play the Tornados today, and Donny has the measles.

Tom: There is no one to take his place.

Amelia Bedelia: What about me?

Grizzlies: You! Great!

Amelia Bedelia: But I do not know much about the game.
Tom: I will explain it to you. The idea of the game is to hit the ball and to run to each of the bases. The other team tries to get the ball and tag you out.

Amelia Bedelia: That is easy enough.

Bob: Maybe we should warm her up at bat.

Tom: Good idea. Amelia Bedelia, you hit the ball when Bob throws it.

Amelia Bedelia: All right.

Narrator: Bob pitches the ball, but Amelia Bedelia misses it.

Tom: No, no, you must step in to meet the ball.

Narrator: Bob pitches the ball again. And Amelia Bedelia steps in to meet it.

Amelia Bedelia: Ouch! This game hurts!

Narrator: The boys taught Amelia Bedelia how to bat.

Amelia Bedelia: All right, I'm warmed up. In fact, I am hot.

Jimmy: Then be here at two o'clock. The game starts then.
Amelia Bedelia goes home and right up to the attic.

I know there is a uniform here.

There was one. She takes a nip here and a tuck there. Soon that uniform was just right.

That's done, now what should I do until it is time to go? The cookie jar is empty! Well, I will soon fix that.

Amelia Bedelia put some of this and a bit of that into a bowl. Amelia Bedelia mixed and she rolled. Soon her cookies were all baked.

There now, that's done. My goodness! I better be on my way.

Amelia Bedelia gets her things and goes to the ball park.

Here she is! Here's Amelia Bedelia!

Then let's play ball.

The Tornados are up first. Amelia Bedelia, you stand here. Catch the ball if it comes your way.
Bob
Batter up!

Narrator
Bob pitches the ball.
The batter hits it.
He runs to first base.

Tom
Get the ball, Amelia Bedelia.
Tag Jack before he gets to second base.

Amelia Bedelia
I must have a tag in here somewhere.

Narrator
She tags Jack.
Another boy comes up to bat.
He hits the ball.
The ball lands near Amelia Bedelia.

Grizzlies
Throw it to first base.
Put Matt out.

Narrator
Amelia Bedelia throws the ball to first base.
Then she ran and grabbed Matt.

Amelia Bedelia
How far out do you want him?

Grizzlies
Amelia Bedelia! Put him down.

Amelia Bedelia
You sure do change your minds fast.
You told me to put him out!
Narrator  Matt gets back on first base.
And the game goes on.
The next batter misses the ball.
The catcher throws the ball to the pitcher.
The pitcher misses it.
But Amelia Bedelia catches it.

Grizzlies  Hurry, Amelia Bedelia!
Throw the ball!
Matt is trying to steal second base.

Amelia Bedelia  Steal second base! That's not nice.

Narrator  Amelia Bedelia runs and picks up second base.

Amelia Bedelia  It's all right now, fellows.
Second base is safe.

Grizzlies  For gosh sakes, Amelia Bedelia!
Put that back.

Amelia Bedelia  But he was going to steal it.

Tom  It's all right to steal bases.
That is part of the game.
The Tornados had made two runs. It is the Grizzlies' turn at bat. Jimmy has his turn. He hits that ball hard. He makes it to third base. Now it is Amelia Bedelia's turn.

Bob Come on, Amelia Bedelia. Make a base hit so Jimmy can come in.

Amelia Bedelia Which base should I hit?

Tom Just hit the ball and run to first base!

Amelia Bedelia All right.

Narrator That is just what she did. Jimmy scores for the Grizzlies. The team cheers. The next player strikes out. The Tornados are at bat again. The score is Tornados 2, Grizzlies 1. The Grizzlies call a time-out.

Jimmy Amelia Bedelia is not very good in the field.

Tom She gets all mixed-up.

Bob Maybe she could be catcher.

Narrator The boys turn to Amelia Bedelia
Jimmy: You be the catcher.
Amelia Bedelia: What do I do?
Jimmy: Stand behind the batter and catch the ball then throw it back to the pitcher.

Narrator: Amelia Bedelia stands behind the batter. The pitcher throws the ball. The batter was about to hit it. But Amelia Bedelia pushes him out of the way. And Amelia Bedelia caught the ball.

Amelia Bedelia: I got it, fellows!

Narrator: The whole team groans. The Tornados are very angry.

Tornados: Put her someplace else. Put her way out.

Narrator: The Grizzlies put Amelia Bedelia way out in the field. But the game is not going well for the Grizzlies. The score is Tornados 8, Grizzlies 5. Bases are loaded. Two outs. The Grizzlies are worried.

Grizzlies: Please, Amelia Bedelia. Please hit that ball hard.
Narrator: Amelia Bedelia swings at the ball. And oh, how she hits that ball!

Grizzlies: Run, Amelia Bedelia, run! Run to first base.

Narrator: Amelia Bedelia ran.

Amelia Bedelia: Tom says stealing is all right, so I'll just steal all the bases. I will make sure the Grizzlies win. Amelia Bedelia scoops up first base, and second base, and third base. Home! Run home, Amelia Bedelia!

Narrator: Amelia Bedelia looks puzzled, but she did not stop running. And on her way she scoops up home plate too. The boys were too surprised to say a thing.

Tom: We won! We won the game! Amelia Bedelia, come back! We won!

Narrator: Amelia Bedelia was running too fast to hear. She did not stop until she reached home.

Amelia Bedelia: That is a silly game. Having me run all the way home!
Grizzlies: Hurray! Hurray! Hurray for Amelia Bedelia!

Jimmy: We won! The score was Grizzlies 9, Tornados 8. You saved the game.

Amelia Bedelia: I'm glad I could help you boys out.

Bob: Maybe we should keep Amelia Bedelia on our team. She could be our scorekeeper.

Amelia Bedelia: I would be happy to keep your score. I have a nice box with a lock on it. Your score would be safe with me.

Tom: You will never learn baseball. Now can we please have our bases and home plate back?

Amelia Bedelia: You sure can.

Narrator: Amelia Bedelia goes inside. She looks at home plate.

Amelia Bedelia: Now what kind of a home would use a plate like that? But it isn't polite to return an empty plate. I will have to do something. That's it!
Narrator  Amelia Bedelia piles home plate with cookies

Amelia Bedelia  Here you are fellows.

Narrator  The boys quickly empty home plate.

Jimmy  Those are the best cookies I ever ate.

Tom  Maybe Amelia Bedelia will never learn baseball, but she sure can cook.

Grizzlies  Hurray for Amelia Bedelia! Hurray for her cookies!

Narrator  The boys go on their way. And Amelia Bedelia goes in to bake. The cookie jar is empty again!

Once upon a time there was a teeny tiny woman who lived in a teeny tiny house.

One day the teeny tiny woman put on her teeny tiny bonnet and went out of her teeny tiny house to take a teeny tiny walk.

The teeny tiny woman had only gone a teeny tiny way when she came to a teeny tiny gate.

The teeny tiny woman opened the teeny tiny gate and went into a teeny tiny graveyard.

Now in this teeny tiny graveyard, the teeny tiny woman found a teeny tiny bone.

The teeny tiny woman put the teeny tiny bone into her teeny tiny pocket and ran home.

Narrator   Owl   Pussy-Cat

Narrator   The owl and the Pussy-Cat went to sea
In a beautiful pea-green boat:
They took some honey, and plenty of money
Wrapped up in a five-pound note.
The owl looked up to the stars above,
And sang to a small guitar,

Owl       O lovely Pussy, O Pussy, my love,
What a beautiful Pussy you are,
You are,
You are,
What a beautiful pussy you are!

Narrator   Pussy said to the owl,

Pussy      You elegant fowl,
How charmingly sweet you sing!
Oh! Let us be married; too long we have tarried:
But what shall we do for a ring?

Narrator   They sailed away, for a year and a day,
To the land where the bong-tree grows:
Narrator And there in a wood a Piggy-wig stood,
With a ring at the end of his nose,
His nose,
With a ring at the end of his nose.

Pussy Dear Pig, are you willing to sell for one shilling
Your ring?

Narrator said the Piggy,

Piggy I will.

Narrator So they took it away,
and were married next day
By the turkey who lives on the hill.

They dined on mince and slices of quince,
While they ate with a runcible spoon;
And hand in hand, on the edge of the sand,
They danced by the light of the moon.

ALL They danced by the light of the moon.
The moon,
The moon,
They danced by the light of the moon.

Jonathan Blake ate too much cake,
He isn’t himself today;
He’s tucked up in bed
With a feverish head,
And he doesn’t much care to play.

Reader #2
Jonathan Blake ate too much cake,
And three kinds of ice cream too—
From latest reports
He’s quite out of sorts,
And I’m sure the reports are true.
Reader #3  I’m sorry to state that he also ate
Six pickles, a pie, and a pear;
In fact, I confess,
It’s a reasonable guess
he ate practically everything there.

ALL READERS:  YES,

Reader #4  Jonathan Blake ate too much cake.
So he’s not at his best today;
But there’s no need for sorrow—
If you come back tomorrow,
I’m sure he’ll be out to play.

Reader #1  My name is Tommy.
I am not very big.

Reader #2  I am not as big as a goat.
A goat is bigger than I am.

Reader #3  I am not as big as a horse.
A horse is bigger than I am.

Reader #4  I am not as big as a whale.
A whale is bigger than I am.

Reader #5  I am not as big as a dinosaur.

A dinosaur is the biggest thing I know!
Narr. 1    Narr. 2    Narr. 3    Narr. 4

Narr. 1    Something in the earth is digging upward, digging upward,
            moving and lifting,
            lifting and pushing,
            pressing outward,
            pressing upward and downward.

Narr. 2    Who is it that is digging, that seems to be stuck
            in the ground?
            It is Mool, the mole.
Narr. 3 He is small and black, with tiny eyes that scarcely see, and two giant flippers that are good for digging. He has a snout and a long beard. His body is covered with velvety fur. Mool, the mole, crafty and shy, constantly hungry.

Narr. 4 Mool is a digger. He digs and rummages deep in the earth. He digs a tunnel to the sweet ivy roots.

Narr. 1 He digs a hole to cool the water. He digs a pipeline, to the bed of young turnips. Wherever he goes, he digs a hole, a tunnel, a pipeline. Mool, the mole, is a digger.

Narr. 2 But where does the earth go, when Mool is digging a hole? Up, up, out of the hole. He pushes the dirt out of his tunnel. Up with it! Out with it! He leaves a mountain of dirt, at the mouth of his tunnel. Mool is a perky animal, if he digs in your yard.
Narr. 3  Now Mool is playing.
He is playing with a centipede, caught in his passageways.
He is playing with a worm,
and a cricket and a snail.
They, too, are caught in the tunnel.

Narr. 4  Smack!  Crackle!  Slurp.
Mool has eaten them.
He has filled his stomach,
and now he is drowsy.
The mole is going to sleep.

Narr. 1  From far at the end of his passageways, came the sounds
of crawling and puffing, puffing and scratching.

Narr. 2  Mool hears it.
He’s on his feet.
   After them!
   Out with them!

Narr. 3  The fur tousles!
  They squeal!
  They squeak!

Narr. 4  He chases the mouse sisters out of his tunnel.
Mool wants to be alone.
Smack!  Slap!
Mool is digging upward.
Suddenly he is out of the ground.
Narr. 1  Oh, how light it is!
The sun blinds him,
but it is warm on his fur.
He lies down to sleep,
at the mouth of his tunnel.

Narr. 2  High above him, high in the clouds,
there is a black spot,
that Mool does not see.

Narr. 3  The spot has keen eyes, and sharp, pointed claws.
It dives from the sky,
like a big shadow,
...getting bigger
...bigger
...gigantic!

Narr. 1  A fierce, hungry buzzard, is diving down at Mool!
Mool squeals!
He scuttles back into the ground.
The buzzard flies away,
with only a stone in its claws.

Narr. 2  Mool digs deeper and wider.
He is hungry again.
His stomach can bear something tasty!
Narr. 3   And what has he found?
         A fat turnip.
             Crunch, crunch!
         A beautiful cabbage.
             Crunch, crunch!
         A garden filled with tasty, fresh vegetables.
             Crunch, crunch!

Narr. 1   And here comes the farmer,
the angry farmer.
Here he comes with a frown,
waving his shovel.

Narr. 2   But Mool escapes.
He scuttles deep in his burrows.
No one can catch Mool with a shovel.

Narr. 3   “If I can’t catch him,” says the farmer,
“then I will drive him away.
I’ll stick oily rags
in his burrows,
to make a terrible smell.
And I’ll put empty bottles
in his burrows,
to whistle in the wind.”

Narr. 4   Mool stops.
“What do I smell”
What is that noise?
Oh, what a foul smell!
Oh, what a dreadful racket!
Narr. 1  Away from here, as fast as possible! My delicate ears, my sensitive ears, my sensitive nose cannot bear this!"

Narr. 2  Mool runs out of his burrow. He swims across the lake, his head above the water. On the other shore, Mool starts burrowing a new hole in the ground, with passageways all around, and a mountain of dirt on the grass.

Narr. 3  This is the way it is with Mool, mole in the ground.

Leopold was a prince who lived in a castle with his mother, the queen, and his father, the king. He dreamed of adventure, travel, and love.

Queen: Farewell, then.

Queen: But remember, Leopold, no one but a genuine princess can have the honor of marrying my son.

Nar 3: She handed him a list of certified genuine princesses and said, Queen: Be careful. Each of them is guarded by an evil monster who must be vanquished before the princess will be free to marry.

Nar I: Then she kissed him and sent him on his way.

Nar 1: The first princess on the list was Marisa Ping. Full of ardor, the prince made his way to her castle. He was greeted by a horrible videopteryx, spitting fire and flames.

Leopold: This should be easy,

Nar 2: said Leopold. ZIP! He unsheathed his sword. ZAP! Off came the monster's head.

Leopold: Marisa Ping, will you marry me?

Nar 3: asked Leopold. But the princess was too busy watching television to answer.

Leopold: I wonder what I would have done if she had said yes,

Nar 3: thought Leopold.

Leopold: This princess is not for me.

Nar. 1: He continued on to the next castle on the list. It was guarded by a ferocious antiseptyx. Leopold Stunned the antiseptyx with one blow and went into the castle.

Nar 2: The princess appeared, waving a dishcloth and duster.
Princess#1: Don't step on my clean floor with your dirty feet!

Nar 2: she said crossly.

Princess#1: Here is a pair of slippers to put over your shoes.

Leopold: No, thank you,

Nar 3: said the prince, and he turned his horse around.

Leopold: Not my type at all,

Nar 3: he said sadly.

Nar 1: At the castle of the third princess, a threatening bombachyderm blocked the way. Leopold chopped it into slices.

Princess#2: Bravo!
Long live my hero!
Long live violence!
Long live everything horrible!
Kill 'em dead!

Nar 2: shouted the princess.

Leopold: Oh dear, she's too bloodthirsty for me,

Nar 2: said Leopold with a sigh, and rode away.
The castle of Jubelle, the fourth princess on the list, was nearby, so the prince decided to try again.
But the three-headed narcissyx wouldn't let him past the gate.
Leopold: This is getting tedious,

Nar 3: said the prince as he prepared to fight.
WHAM!
In no time the terrifying beast was all tied up. While that was going on, Jubelle was staring into her mirror, saying over and over,
Jubelle: Oh, but I am beautiful. How beautiful I am. I can't get over my own beauty.

Leopold: This beauty is not for me,

Nar 1: said Leopold.

Leopold: I don't like any of these princesses. I guess I will have to go home without a wife.

Nar 1: On his way back it started to rain. Leopold took cover in a shed.
He was not alone.

Leopold: How do you do?
I am Prince Leopold

"Princess: My father calls me Princess,

Nar 1: said the stranger

"Princess: I am a shepardess.
I have been traveling through the land, looking for a nice shepard to marry.
I haven't found him, so I am going back to my parents and sheep.
Nar 2: The prince told her about his own adventures and they discovered that they had a lot in common. They looked at each other in wonder.

Leopold & "Princess" You are exactly the one I have been looking for!

Nar 2: each said to the other. And the prince put Princess on his horse and started home.

Leopold: Mother, I would like you to meet Princess.

Nar 3: The queen looked at the girl.

Queen: A princess?

Nar 3: she said to herself.

Queen: That raggedy girl? I'll soon find out if she is a genuine princess. I'll put her to the pea test. If she is really a princess, she shall marry my son. If she is not, that will be the end of her.

Nar 1: The queen took the smallest pea she could find. She put it at the bottom of a tall stack of feather mattresses in Princess's bedroom. Only the skin of a genuine princess would be delicate enough to feel the pea and be bruised by it.
Princess climbed up the ladder and into the bed. But during the night, forgetting how high she was, she started to get up for a drink of water... and fell all the way to the floor. She was bruised and miserable and had a hard time falling asleep again.

In the morning the queen came running into the bedroom. She saw at once that the Princess had not slept well.

And when the girl got out of bed, the queen saw black-and-blue all over her body.

Queen: Princess!

she cried.

And the wedding was arranged at once. Princess and Leopold set out to live happily ever after...

He's a nice boy,

Princess's parents agreed later.

But where did she find herself a shepherd who knows so little about sheep?

Nar. I
Queen
Nar. 2
Princess

Nar. I There once was a prince who wanted to marry a princess.
Nar. 2 According to his mother, the queen, she had to be a real princess, very much like herself.
Nar. I So they traveled all over the world to find one.
Queen "They just don't make princesses like they used to,"
Nar. 2 said the queen. So at last the prince and his mother returned home.
Nar. I The prince was sad that they were unable to find a real princess.
Nar. 2 The queen was mad and disgusted.
Nar. I One evening, there was a terrible thunderstorm.
Rain poured down, and a great wind whistled through the town. When the storm was at its worst, there was a knock at the palace door.

The old king went to open it. Standing there was a princess.

She was soaked, and water spilled out of her shoes and sleeves.

"I am a real princess," she said.

"You are?" asked the king. "Then you must meet the queen!"

When the king introduced them, the queen started to laugh.

"How can you be a real princess when you look like that?"

she asked.

"But I am," said the visitor.

"Well, my dear, it is very late. Stay for the night, and we can discuss it in the morning."

said the queen.
Nar. 2  The queen had a plan.
She hurried to a guest room and stripped the mattress from the bed.
She laid a single pea on the bed.

Nar. 1  Then she took twenty mattresses and piled them on top of the pea.
She piled twenty feather beds on top of the mattresses.
Now the bed was ready for the princess.

Queen  "This is where you are to sleep tonight,"

Nar. 2  said the queen. The princess was very tired.

Princess  “I’m sure I’ll sleep well on so many mattresses and beds,"

Nar. 1  she said.

Nar. 2  She climbed slowly up to the top and lay down.

Queen  "Good night,"

Nar. 1  said the queen,

Queen  "I do hope you sleep well."

Nar. 1  The princess settled down into the bed.

Nar. 2  She rolled to the right, and she rolled to the left.

Nar. 1  She lay on her stomach, and she lay on her back.
No matter how hard she tried, she could not find a comfortable position on such a rocky bed.

In the morning the queen asked, "Did you sleep well?"

"No!"

said the princess.

"I tossed and turned all night. My body is covered with bruises this morning!"

the queen gasped.

"You didn't sleep? You must have felt the pea! Then you are a real princess. Only a real princess would have such delicate skin. She could feel a pea through twenty mattresses and twenty feather beds."

So the prince married the princess. The entire kingdom was invited to the wedding.

Even the queen was satisfied. She was so pleased to find a real princess. She put the famous pea in a museum where it can still be seen...

if ...no one has stolen it!

the end
Once there was a prince named Mickey. Since he was prince, he wanted to marry a princess.

But she must be a real princess.

He said. He spent many years searching for a real princess. But he was never able to find one he liked, so he came home to his parents’ castle. One night, a terrible storm was raging. Rain poured down, and lightning flashed. Suddenly, there was a knock at the door. Mickey’s father went to open it. There stood a stranger, dripping wet.

May I come in?

Asked the stranger.

Of course.
Minnie  My name is Princess Minnie. I was out riding and I got caught in the storm.

Narrator 2  Prince Mickey heard the word, “princess,” and he came in to see who was there. Minnie smiled at the prince.

Minnie  How handsome he is.

Narrator 1  Minnie thought. Mickey smiled back at her.

Mickey  How pretty she is.

Narrator 2  Mickey thought.

Mickey  Did you say your name is Princess Minnie?

Minnie  Yes.

Mickey  Are you a real princess?

Minnie  Of course.

Narrator 1  Said Minnie, nodding her head and spraying the king with water.

Mickey  I hope she is a real princess.

Narrator 2  Meanwhile Mickey’s mother, the queen, was listening at the door.

Queen  That wet dishrag doesn’t look like a princess to me, but we’ll soon find out.
Narrator 1 The queen went to make up a bed for the princess. First, she put a tiny pea under a thick mattress. Then, she put four more mattresses on top of the first one. She kept adding more and more mattresses to the bed.

Queen. Good. Now the pea is under twenty mattresses. Only a real princess will be able to feel it.

Narrator 2 Later that night, Princess Minnie climbed on top of the twenty mattresses. She was very tired after riding so far in the storm. But somehow, the bed did not feel comfortable. But she could not fall asleep. Then she turned on her left side. Still she could not fall asleep.

Minnie Maybe flat on my back will be better.

Narrator 1 But still, Minnie stayed awake. The next morning; Minnie ate breakfast with the king, the queen, and the prince.

Mickey Did you sleep well?

Narrator 2 Asked Mickey.

Minnie No, I did not sleep a wink! I was lying on something hard, and it kept me awake all night. I’m quite black and blue all over.

Queen Then you must be a real princess!

Narrator 1 Cried the Queen.

THE END
Narr. 1 Brigid

Narr. 1 Brigid went to her mother and said,
I need some coloring markers.
All my friends have coloring markers.
They draw wonderful pictures.
Mummy, I need some coloring markers.

Mother Oh No!

Narr. 2 said her mother.

Mother I’ve heard about those coloring markers.
Kids draw on walls,
they draw on the floor,
they draw on themselves.
You can’t have any coloring markers.

Brigid Well,

Narr. 3 said Brigid.
Brigid: There are these new coloring markers. They wash off with just water. I can’t get into any trouble with coloring markers that wash off. Get me some of those.

Mother: Well,

Narr. 1: said her mother.

Mother: Alright.

Narr. 2: So her mother went out and got Brigid 500 washable coloring markers. Brigid went up to her room, and drew wonderful pictures. She drew lemons, that were yellower than lemons, And roses, that were redder than roses, And oranges, that were oranger than oranges.

Narr. 3: Her mother was amazed. She said,

Mother: Wow! My kid is an artist.

Narr. 1: But after a week Brigid got bored. She went to her mother and said, Brigid: Mom, did I draw on the wall?

Mother: Nnnnoooo,

Narr. 2: said her Mother.

Brigid: Did I draw on the floor?

Mother: Nnnnooo,
Narr. 3 said her Mother.

Brigid Did I draw on myself?

Mother Nnnooo,
Narr. 1 said her Mother.

Brigid Well,

Narr. 2 said Brigid.

Brigid I didn’t get into any trouble, and I need some new coloring markers. All my friends have them. Mommy, there are coloring markers that smell. They have ones that smell like roses, and lemons and oranges, and even ones that smell like cow plops. Mom, they have coloring markers, that smell like anything you want! Mom, I need those coloring markers.

Narr. 3 Her Mother went out and got 500 coloring markers that smelled. Then Brigid went upstairs and she drew pictures. She drew lemons that smelled like lemons, and roses that smelled like roses, and oranges that smelled like oranges, and cow plops that smelled like cow plops.

Narr. 1 Her mother said,

Mother Wow! My kid is an artist.

Narr. 2 But after a week Brigid got bored. She said,
Brigid           Mom, did I draw on the floor?
Mother           Nnnooo,
Narr. 3          said her mother.
Brigid           Did I draw on the walls?
Mother           Nnnooo,
Narr. 1          said her Mother.
Brigid           Did I draw on myself?
Mother           Nnnooo,
Narr. 2          said her mother.
Brigid           Well,
Narr. 3          said Brigid.
Brigid           I need some new coloring markers. These are the best kind. All my friends have them. They are super-indelible-never-come-off-till-you’re-dead-and-maybe-even-later coloring markers. Mom, I need them.
Narr. 1 So her mother went out and got 500 super-indelible-never-come-off-till-you’re-dead-and-maybe-even-later coloring markers. Brigid took them and drew pictures for three weeks. She drew lemons and roses that looked better than roses, and oranges that looked better than oranges, and sunsets that looked better than sunsets.

Narr. 2 And that was so pretty, she colored her face, purple, green, yellow and blue.

Narr. 3 And that was so pretty, she colored her belly-button blue.

Narr. 1 And that was so pretty, she colored herself all sorts of colors almost entirely all over.

Narr. 2 Then Brigid looked in the mirror and said,

Brigid What have I done! My mother is going to kill me!

Narr. 3 So she ran into the bathroom, and washed her hands for half an hour.

Narr. 1 Nothing came off. Her hands still looked like mixed-up rainbows.
Narr. 2 Then she had a wonderful idea.

Narr. 3 She reached way down into the bottom of the coloring markers and got a special-colored marker. It was the same color she was. She took the marker and colored herself all over until she was her regular color again.

Narr. 1 In fact, she looked even better than before... almost too good to be true.

Narr. 2 She went downstairs, and her mother said,

Mother Why Brigid, you’re looking really good today.

Brigid Right,

Narr. 2 said Brigid.

Narr. 3 Then her mother said,

Mother It’s time to wash your hands for dinner.

Narr. 1 But Brigid was afraid that the special color would not stick to the colors underneath, so she said,

Brigid I already washed my hands.

Narr. 2 But her mother smelled her hands and said,
Mother: Ahhh. No soap!

Narr. 3: She took Brigid into the bathroom and washed her hands and face. All the special color came off and Brigid looked like mixed-up rainbows.

Mother: Oh No!

Narr. 1: said her mother.

Mother: Brigid, did you color your hands with the coloring markers that wash off?

Brigid: Nnnnooo.

Mother: Brigid, did you color your hands with the coloring markers that smell?

Brigid: Nnnnnnooo.

Mother: Did you use the super-indelible-never-come-off-till-you’re-dead-and-maybe-even-later, coloring markers!

Brigid: Yes!

Mother: Yikes!

Narr. 2: yelled her mother.

Narr. 3: She called the doctor and said,
Mother  HELP! HELP! HELP!
My daughter has colored herself with super-indelible-never-come-off-till-you’re-dead-and-maybe-even-later coloring markers.

Doctor  Oh dear,

Narr. 1  said the doctor.

Doctor  Sometimes they never come off.

Narr. 2  The doctor came over and gave Brigid a large orange pill. She said,

Doctor  Take this pill, wait five minutes,
and then take a bath.

Narr. 3  So Brigid took the pill, waited five minutes,
and jumped into the bathtub.

Narr. 1  Her mother stood outside the door and yelled,

Mother  Is it working?  Is it working?

Brigid  Yes,

Narr. 2  said Brigid.

Brigid  Everything is coming off.

Narr. 3  And Brigid was right, everything had come off.
Narr. 1 When Brigid walked out of the bathroom, she was invisible.

Mother Oh! No!

Narr. 2 yelled her mother.

Mother You can’t go to school if you’re invisible. You can’t go to university if you’re invisible. You’ll never get a job if you’re invisible.

Mother Brigid, you’ve wrecked your life!

Brigid Don’t worry,

Narr. 3 said Brigid.

Narr. 1 She ran into her room, got the special-colored marker, and colored herself entirely all over, until you couldn’t tell the difference.

Narr. 2 In fact,

Narr. 3 she looked even better than before... almost too good to be true.

Narr. 1 But her mother said,

Mother Brigid, you can’t go through life like that. You’re just a picture. Everyone will know there is something wrong!
Brigid
No they won’t

Narr. 3 said Brigid.

Mother
Yes they will,

Narr. 1 said her mother.

Brigid
No they won’t!

Narr. 2 said Brigid.

Brigid I colored daddy while he was taking a nap, and you haven’t noticed anything yet!

Mother
Good heavens!

Narr. 3 yelled her mother,

Narr. 1 and she ran into the living room and looked at daddy.

Narr. 2 He looked even better than before...

Narr. 3 almost too good to be true.

Brigid Doesn’t he look great?

Narr. 1 asked Brigid.

Mother I couldn’t even tell the difference,

Narr. 2 said her mother.

Brigid Right,
Narr. 3 said Brigid,

Brigid And neither will he...
As long as he doesn’t get wet!

THE END
Mrs. Griggs handed each member of Room One a long sealed envelope.

Mrs. Griggs: These are your progress reports for you to take home to your parents.

Narrator: Ramona made up her mind then and there that she was not going to show any progress report to her mother and father, if she could get out of it. As soon as she reached home, she hid her envelope at the bottom of a drawer under her summer playclothes.
Beezus  Mr. Cardoza gave us our progress reports today.

Narrator  Beezus leaned across the dinner table and proudly handed her father her progress report. Mr. Quimby tore open the envelope and pulled out the yellow sheet of paper.

Mr. Quimby  M-m-m-m. Very good, Beezus. I’m proud of you.

Beezus  What did my teacher say about me?

Mr. Quimby  He said, “Beatrice has shown marked improvement in math. She is willing and a conscientious pupil, who gets along well with her peers. She is a pleasure to have in the classroom.”

Ramona  May I please be excused?

Mr. Quimby  Just a minute young lady.

Mrs. Quimby  Yes, what about your progress report?

Ramona  Oh...that old thing.

Mr. Quimby  Yes, that old thing. Bring it here.

Ramona  I don’t want to.

Narrator  Ramona turned and walked slowly to her room and slowly returned with the envelope.

Ramona  Does Beezus have to hear?
Mrs. Quimby Beezus, you may be excused. Run along and do your homework.

Narrator Ramona scowled more ferociously as her father pulled out the sheet of yellow paper.

Mr. Quimby If you don’t look out, your face might freeze that way.

Narrator He studied the yellow paper and frowned. He then handed the paper to Mrs. Quimby.

Ramona Well, what does it say?

Mrs. Quimby “Ramona’s letter formation is excellent, and she is developing good word-attacking skills. She is learning her numbers readily. However, Ramona sometimes shows more interest in the seat work of others than in her own. She needs to learn to keep her hand to herself. She also needs to work on self-control.”

Mrs. Quimby Now Ramona, you must try to grow up.

Ramona What do you think I’m doing?

Mr. Quimby You don’t have to be so noisy about it.

Narrator Beezus comes butting in to see what all the fuss is about.

Beezus What did Mrs. Griggs say?

Ramona You mind your own business.
Mr. Quimby  Ramona, don’t talk that way.

Ramona  I will too talk that way, I’ll talk any way I want!

Mr. Quimby  Ramona!!!

Ramona  Well, I will!!!

Mr. Quimby  Now you see here, young lady.

Ramona  I’m going to say a bad word!

Narrator  That silenced her family.

Mrs. Quimby  Go ahead Ramona and say the bad word if it will make you feel better.

Narrator  Ramona clenches her fists and yells...

Ramona  GUTS! GUTS! GUTS! GUTS!

Mrs. Quimby: Ha, ha, ha, ha...

Mr. Quimby: Ha, ha, ha, ha...

Beezus: Ha, ha, ha, ha...

Ramona  It isn’t funny. Don’t you dare laugh at me!

Narrator  In tears, Ramona threw herself face down on the couch. She kicked and she pounded the cushions with her fists.

Mrs. Quimby  Ramona, what are we going to do with you?

Ramona  Love me!
Mrs. Quimby  Dear heart. We DO love you.

Ramona  You do not, you love Beezus.

Mrs. Quimby  Of course we love Beezus. We love you both.

Ramona  You love her more. A whole lot more.

Mrs. Quimby  Love isn’t like a cup of sugar that gets used up. There is enough love to go around. Loving Beezus doesn’t mean we don’t have enough love left for you.

Ramona  You don’t laugh at Beezus all the time.

Beezus  They used to. They always laughed at the funny things I did, and it used to make me mad. Like the time I was about your age and thought frankincense and myrrh were something the three Wise Men were bringing to the baby Jesus to put on his rash like that stuff Mom used on you when you were a baby. Mom and Dad laughed, and Mom told her friends, and they laughed too.

Mrs. Quimby  Oh dear, I had no idea I upset you that much.

Beezus  Well, you did. And there was the time I though toilet water was water out of the toilet. You practically had hysterics.

Mrs. Quimby  Now you’re exaggerating.
Ramona  Mama, if you really love me, why do I have to go to school?

Mrs. Quimby  Ramona, everyone has to go to school. Loving you has nothing to do with it.

Ramona  Then why can’t I be in the other first grade, the one in Room Two? Mrs. Griggs doesn’t like me.

Mrs. Quimby  Of course she likes you.

Ramona  No she doesn’t. If she liked me, she wouldn’t make me tell Susan in front of the whole class that I was sorry I scrunched her owl and she would ask me to lead the Pledge of Allegiance.

Beezus  She’ll get around to asking you to lead the flag salute. She asks everybody.

Mrs. Quimby  Beezus, you got along with Mrs. Griggs when you had her.

Beezus  I guess so. She wasn’t my favorite teacher, though.

Ramona  Why can’t I change to Room Two?

Mr. Quimby  Because Mrs. Griggs is teaching you to read and do arithmetic and because the things she said about you are fair. Maybe Mrs. Griggs doesn’t understand how you feel, but you aren’t always easy to understand. Did you ever think of that?

Ramona  Please, Daddy. Please don’t make me go back to Room One.
Mr. Quimby  Buck up, Ramona. Show us your spunk!

Narrator  Mrs. Quimby led Ramona out of the room and helped her into bed.

Ramona  Stay with me, Mama.

Narrator  Mrs. Quimby turned off the light and sat on the bed.

Ramona  Mama?

Mrs. Quimby  Yes, Ramona.

Ramona  Isn’t GUTS a bad word?

Mrs. Quimby  I wouldn’t say it’s exactly a bad word. It isn’t the nicest word in the world, but there are much worse. Now go to sleep.

THE END
Ramona Quimby is an ordinary third-grade student.
The fad of the week in her classroom is bringing in hard-boiled eggs to eat at lunch.

Did you remember to give me a hard-boiled egg in my lunch like I asked?

Yes, I remembered the hard-boiled egg, you little rabbit.
I’m glad you have finally learned to like them.
Narrator  Ramona did not feel it was necessary to explain to her mother that she still did not like hard-boiled eggs, and she only wanted one because it was the fad of the week. When lunchtime came, Ramona collected her lunch box and went to the cafeteria and sat with the other third-grade girls. She opened her lunch box and there, tucked in a paper napkin, snug between her sandwich and an orange, was her hard-boiled egg, smooth and perfect, the right size to fit her hand.

Ramona  Oh good, now it is time to eat our eggs. Watch me crack mine against my head!

Narrator  Ramona took a firm hold of her egg and waited until everyone at her table was watching and WHACK! - she found herself with a handful of crumbled shell and something cool and slimy running down her face.

Ramona  “Gasp, gasp!” as she angrily tries to brush egg out of her hair.

Marsha  It’s all right Ramona. I’ll take you to the bathroom and help you wash off the egg.

Ramona  (rudely) No, you go away!

Marsha  (pulling Ramona) Come on Ramona, I’ll take you to the office and Mrs. Larson will help you.

Ramona  (jerking away) I can go by myself!
Narrator Ramona ran out of the cafeteria. She was so angry she was able to ignore the giggles and a few sympathetic looks of the other children. Ramona was mad at herself for following a fad. Most of all, she was furious at her mother for not boiling the egg.

Mrs. Larson Well, you need a little help, don’t you?

Narrator Ramona nods gratefully.

Mrs. Larson Let’s see. How shall we go about this? I guess the best way is to wash your hands, then dunk your head. You’ve heard of egg shampoos, haven’t you? They are supposed to be wonderful for the hair.

Ramona (yelping) Yow! The water’s cold!

Mrs. Larson It’s probably a good thing we don’t have warmer water. You wouldn’t want to cook the egg in your hair, would you?

Narrator She rubbed and Ramona snuffled. She rinsed and Ramona sniffled. Finally, Mrs. Larson said:

Mrs. Larson That’s the best I can do. Dry yourself off the best you can with these towels. You can wash your hair when you get home.
Narrator  Ramona accepted the towels and began to calm down.
Toward the end of the lunch period, Ramona heard teachers drift into the office to leave papers or pick up messages from their boxes. Then, Ramona heard her teacher, Mrs. Whaley, say to Mrs. Larson:

Mrs. Whaley  I hear my little show-off came in with egg in her hair.
(laughing)  What a nuisance!

The End
WITCH Once upon a time I lived a life of peace and quiet. I know witches have a bad reputation, but I never bothered anyone until these idiots came into my life. Other than an occasional flight during the full moon with my pet frog, Frieda, I spend most of my time puttering around my garden. I grow prize-winning vegetables. They’re known all over the kingdom.

It all started one day when I was tending my tomatoes. I saw an intruder skulking around my garden. Of course, my first reaction was to cast a spell and turn the man to stone.

MAN Please, madam, forgive me. I just came to borrow some rampion, and everyone knows you grow the best.
FRIEDA: I don’t believe the word is borrow. I think it’s time to call the cops.

MAN: It’s not for me. It’s for my wife. Rampion, rampion, that is all I hear. Night and day! She hasn’t given me any peace in weeks! If I don’t come home with some rampion my life will be torture!

WITCH: Torture!...I like the sound of that. You’ve trampled on three rows of rue and ruined next year’s crop of coriander. Torture!...hhmmm. No, I’d better call the police.

MAN: No, No, please don’t call the police! It will ruin me. Just give me a minute to think here...I know! I’ll give you my golden goose.

WITCH: What do I need with another golden goose? I’ve already got 6!

MAN: Well, how about some magic boots so you can travel anywhere?

FRIEDA: Excuse me, she’s a witch remember? She does have her broom.

MAN: The only thing I have left is my daughter. She could cook and clean for you. She could help you in your garden, too.

WITCH: Well, I’m not getting any younger and bending down to weed the garden is getting difficult. It might be nice to have someone to wash the pots and pans for me.
TWO WEEKS LATER:

WITCH I can’t believe it! That girl didn’t do the dishes again. Some big help she is. Rapunzel, Rapunzel, where are you?

RAPUNZEL What is it this time? This place is the pits! Why don’t you get someone in here to clean up this house?

WITCH YOU were supposed to do the dishes!

RAPUNZEL I had to wash my hair, and it takes forever to dry in this cold, drafty place.

WITCH Why don’t you work in the garden, the sun will dry your hair in no time.

RAPUNZEL THE SUN? Do you know what the sun will do to my complexion? Plus, the ultraviolet light isn’t good for my hair. Just look what all those years of working in that yucky garden has done for you!

WITCH I give up, let’s see if the mail has come. Another letter has been returned from your parents. My eyes aren’t so good anymore. What’s this note on the envelope say?

RAPUNZEL Moved with no forwarding address. Why were you writing to my parents?

WITCH I thought it was time for you to go on a long visit.
RAPUNZEL  Visit? I couldn’t leave here, especially after you build my tower. It will be a perfect place for me. No drafts, plenty of mirrors, and lots of room for my exquisite hair!

FRIEDA  You might as well build her a tower. At least we won’t be able to hear her complain from up there.

LATER

WITCH  Frieda, I’m too old to climb that hair three times a day to take that girl’s meals and laundry to her. She won’t let me put in stairs, because the door would create a draft. We’ve got to do something!

FRIEDA  Why don’t you marry her off?

WITCH  Great idea, but where will we find a husband?

FRIEDA  Let’s do what everyone does...run an ad in the personals.

WITCH  How does this sound? S W F seeking adventurous prince-type who is looking for new heights in a relationship. Send photo to Ivory Tower in the deep, dark, woods.
TWO WEEKS LATER

WITCH Frieda, I think we’ve found our victim. I’ve seen a lot of princes in my time, but even I’m impressed by this guy!

FRIEDA You know, I’ve always had a special affection for princes. I don’t know why, but I do. Let’s have him come tomorrow.

THE NEXT NIGHT

PRINCE Hallooo, anyone here? No one seems to be here. What a pity! I look especially handsome tonight. The moon is the perfect lighting for my hair. Speaking of hair, this hair is resplendent! So strong...with no split ends! I wonder who is at the other end? Well, there appears to be only one way to find out..... I hope this doesn’t muss my clothes!

FRIEDA Well, he’s been up there for hours now. Do you think with all those mirrors they’ve noticed each other yet?

WITCH I have a feeling those two will be perfect for each other if they can stop looking at themselves.
RAPUNZEL  Witch, Witch, where are you? I have wonderful news! I’ve met this prince and we’re getting married and I know we’ll live happily ever after.

SIX MONTHS LATER

FRIEDA  Life is peaceful and quiet again. That world cruise was a great wedding gift!

THE END!
Once, long ago there was a woman who lived alone in the country with her three children, Shang, Tao, and Paotze. On the day of their grandmother’s birthday, the good mother set off to see her, leaving the three children at home. Before she left she said,

Be good while I am away, my heart-loving children; I will not return tonight. Remember to close the door tight at sunset and latch it well.
NARRATOR But an old wolf lived nearby and saw the good mother leave. At dusk, disguised as an old woman, he came up to the house of the children and knocked on the door twice. Shang, who was the eldest, said through the latched door.

SHANG Who is it?

WOLF My little jewels, this is your grandmother, your Po Po.

SHANG Po Po, Our mother has gone to visit you!

WOLF To visit me? I have not met her along the way. She must have taken a different route.

SHANG Po Po! How is it that you come so late?

WOLF The journey is long, my children, and the day is short.

SHANG Po Po, why is your voice so low?

WOLF Your grandmother has caught a cold, good children, and it is dark and windy out here. Quickly open up, and let your Po Po come in.

NARRATOR Tao and Paotze could not wait. One unlatched the door and the other opened it.

TAO AND PAOTZE Po Po, Po Po, come in!

NARRATOR At the moment he entered the door, the wolf blew out the candle.
SHANG  Po Po, why did you blow out the candle? The room is now dark.

NARRATOR  The wolf did not answer. Tao and Paotze rushed to their Po Po and wished to be hugged. The old wolf held Tao.

WOLF  Good child, you are so plump.

NARRATOR  He embraced Paotze.

WOLF  Good child, you have grown to be so sweet.

NARRATOR  Soon the old wolf pretended to be sleepy. He yawned.

WOLF  All the chicks are in the coop. Po Po is sleepy too.

NARRATOR  When he climbed into the big bed, Taotze climbed in at one end with the wolf, and Shang and Tao climbed in at the other. When Shang stretched, she touched the wolf’s tail.

SHANG  Po Po, Po Po, your foot has a bush on it.

WOLF  Po Po has brought hemp strings to weave you a basket.

NARRATOR  Shang touched grandmother’s sharp claws.

SHANG  Po Po, Po Po, your hand has thorns on it.

WOLF  Po Po has brought an awl to make shoes for you.
NARRATOR  At once Shang lit the light and the wolf blew it out again, but Shang had seen the wolf’s hairy face.

SHANG  Po Po, Po Po, you must be hungry. Have you eaten ginkgo nuts?

WOLF  What is ginkgo?

SHANG  Ginkgo is soft and tender, like the skin of a baby. One taste and you will live forever. The nuts grow on the top of the tree just outside the door.

WOLF  Oh, dear. Po Po is old, her bones have become brittle. No longer can she climb trees.

SHANG  Good Po Po, we can pick some for you.

NARRATOR  The wolf was delighted. Shang jumped out of bed and Tao and Paotze came with her to the ginkgo tree. There, Shang told her sisters about the wolf and all three climbed up the tall tree. The wolf waited and waited. Plump Tao did not come back. Sweet Paotze did not come back, and no one brought any nuts from the ginkgo tree. At last the wolf shouted.

WOLF  Where are you, children?

PAOTZE  Po Po, we are on the top of the tree eating ginkgo nuts.

WOLF  Good children, pluck some for me.
TAO But Po Po, ginkgo is magic only when it is plucked directly from the tree. You must come and pluck it from the tree yourself.

NARRATOR The wolf came outside and paced back and forth under the tree where he heard the three children eating the ginkgo nuts at the top.

PAOTZE Oh, Po Po, these nuts are so tasty! The skin is so tender.

NARRATOR The wolf’s mouth began to water. Finally, Shang, the eldest and most clever child, said, SHANG Po Po, Po Po, I have a plan. At the door there is a big basket. Behind it is a rope. Tie the rope to the basket, sit in the basket and throw the other end to me. I can pull you up.

NARRATOR The wolf was overjoyed and fetched the basket and the rope, then threw one end of the rope to the top of the tree. Shang caught the rope and began to pull the basket up and up. Halfway she let go of the rope, and the basket and the wolf fell to the ground.

SHANG I am so small and weak Po Po, I could not hold the rope alone.

TAO This time I will help. Let’s do it again.
The wolf had only one thought in mind, to taste a ginkgo nut. He climbed into the basket again. Now Shang and Tao pulled the rope on the basket together, higher and higher. Again, they let go, and again the wolf tumbled down, down, and bumped his head. The wolf was furious. He grumbled and cursed.

We could not hold the rope, Po Po. But only one ginkgo nut and you will be well again.

I shall give a hand to my sisters this time. This time we shall not fail!

Now the children pulled the rope with all of their strength. The basket rose straight up, higher than the first time, higher than the second time, higher and higher and higher until it nearly reached the top of the tree. When the wolf reached out, he could almost touch the highest branch. At that moment Shang coughed and they all let go of the rope. The basket fell down and down and down. Not only did the wolf bump his head, but he broke his heart to pieces.

Po Po?

There was no answer.

Po Po?

There was no answer.

Po Po?
NARRATOR There was still no answer. The children climbed to the branches just above the wolf and saw that he was truly dead. Then, they climbed down, went into the house, closed the door, locked the door with the latch and fell peacefully asleep.

On the next day, their mother returned with baskets of food from their real Po Po and the three sisters told her the story of the Po Po who had come.

THE END!
Narr. 1 Teddy found Rikki-Tikki-Tavi in a ditch one summer morning after a heavy rain. The rising water had washed the little mongoose from its burrow, and Teddy had carried it home inside his shirt. Teddy and his father and his mother were English.
Narr. 2  They were living in India where Teddy's father was doing business for the King. Teddy begged to keep the little mongoose for a pet, but Teddy's mother was fearful about having a mongoose in the house.

Narr. 3  When Teddy's father came home that evening, he reassured his wife that a mongoose would be good protection against the danger of snakes in the garden, and so Teddy was given permission to keep the homeless little mongoose.
Episode Two:
Rikki-tikki meets Nag.

Narr. 1  Every morning
after his breakfast of bits of banana and boiled egg, Rikki-tikki-tavi
scuttled around the bushes in the garden
just to see what was to be seen.
He was rather like a little cat in his fur and tail, but quite like a weasel
in his head and habits.

Narr. 2  His eyes and the end of his restless nose were pink;
he could scratch himself anywhere he pleased with any leg, front or back;
and his war cry
as he scuttled through the long grass
was:

Rikki- Rikk-tikk-tikki-tikki-tchk!
One morning when Rikki-tikki-tavi was in the garden, he heard Darzee, the tailor bird, sitting on her nest in the pine tree, crying. A tailor-bird looks and sounds something like a catbird. Rikki-tikki stood up on his hind legs and asked,

“What’s the matter with you?”

“Oh, Rikki, a terrible thing has happened.

One of my babies fell out of the nest yesterday and Nag ate him.”

“Hm-m! That is very sad - but I am a stranger here. Who is Nag?”

Just then the little mongoose heard a cold, horrid sound behind him that made him jump two feet into the air and whirl around.
Inch by inch out of the grass rose up the head and spread hood of Nag, the black king cobra, who was five feet long from tongue to tail.

When he had lifted one third of himself clear of the ground, he stayed balancing to and fro exactly as a dandelion tuft balances in the wind, and he looked at Rikki-tikki with wicked eyes that never changed expression, whatever the snake might have been thinking.

“Who is Nag? I am Nag. Look, and be afraid!”

It is true that Rikki-tikki was afraid for a moment; but it was impossible for him to stay frightened for any length of time.
Narr. 2  Though Rikki-tikki had never met a live cobra before, his mother had fed him on dead ones, and he knew that a grown mongoose's business in life was to fight and eat snakes.

Narr. 3  Nag knew that, too, and at the bottom of his cold heart, he, too, was afraid. Suddenly Darzee, the tailor-bird, who was sitting on her nest in the pine tree watching the two below, cried out:

Darzee  “Behind you, Rikki! Look behind you!”

Narr. 1  Fortunately Rikki-tikki knew better than to waste time in looking. He jumped up into the air as high as he could go, and just under him whizzed the black blur of another snake.
Narr. 2  It was another cobra,
Nagaina,
Nag’s wicked mate.
She had crept up behind Ricki as he was talking to make an end of him;
and he heard her savage hiss
as the stroke missed.

Narr. 3  Rikki-tikki came down almost across her back.
If he had been a wise, full-grown mongoose, he would have known that then was the time to scramble up the snake’s back and to break her neck
by biting sharply
just above her spread hood.
He bit, indeed,
in the middle of her back where it did little damage.

Narr. 1  Then he jumped clear of the snake to avoid the terrible lashing return-stroke
of the cobra,
which sometimes can be just as deadly to a mongoose as the cobra’s bite.
Nagaina was left torn and angry.
Narr. 2  Now it is said that when a cobra misses its stroke, it never says anything or gives any sign of what it means to do next. Without a word Nagaina slithered off through the tall grass to reconnoiter, and Nag followed her.
Episode Three:
Nag and Nagaina plan their attack

Narr. 3 That night
Teddy carried Rikki-tikki off to bed with him.
Rikki-tikki was too well bred to bite or scratch, but as soon as Teddy was asleep, he went off for his night walk around the house.

Narr. 1 Instantly Rikki-tikki knew that something was strange about this night.
The house was as still as still,
but he thought he could hear the faintest scratch-scratch in the world,
a noise as faint as that of a fly walking on a windowpane.

Narr. 2 He listened.
Then he recognized the sound as that of snake scales scratching on brickwork.
He knew immediately that it was Nag or Nagaina trying to enter the house.
But where?
Narr. 3  He remembered a loose brick at the back of the bathroom; the brick could be pulled out to drain the bath water from the tub to the creek near the house. Plumbing facilities in India are not always the same as ours.

Narr. 1  Rikki-tikki crept down the dark hall and turned into the bathroom. Pressing his lithe body against the plastered wall, he listened.

Narr. 1  and heard Nag and Nagaina whispering together outside in the moonlight. Nag was saying,
Nag

“You go back to our nest in the melon patch
at the back of the garden,
Nagaina.
Take care of our eggs.
They have been left alone too long.
I will creep into the bathroom and wait until the master comes in for his bath in the morning.
Then I’ll kill him
and his wife and his child.
When the family is dead,
the bungalow will be empty,
and Rikki-tikki will leave here.
And once again
the garden will belong to us.’
Episode Four
(Nag is killed in a battle with the little mongoose)

Narr. 2  Rikki-tikki heard
         Nagaina slither off

Narr. 2  toward the melon patch
         at the back of the garden.
         Then he saw,
         or thought he saw,
         the black beady eyes
         of the cobra.
         as Nag pushed his head around the loose brick and pulled the cold five feet of his body into the room after him.

Narr. 3  Rikki-tikki heard the cobra rise up and lap water from the water jar.
         Then he heard the cobra wrap himself, coil by coil, around the bulge
         at the bottom of the water jar.
         After an hour
         Rikki-tikki began to move, muscle by muscle,
         towards the jar.
Narr. 1 Nag was asleep, and Rikki-tikki looked at his big back, wondering which would be the best place for a good hold.

Nikki “If I don’t break his back at the first jump, he can still fight; and if he fights—O Rikki!”

Narr. 2 He looked at the thickness of the neck below the hood, but that was too much for him; and a bite near the tail would only make Nag savage.

Nikki “It must be the head,” The head above the hood: and, when I am once there, I must not let go.”

Narr. 3 Then he jumped and sank his teeth deep into Nag’s head which was lying a little clear of the water jar.
Narr 1  It took Nag only a moment to uncoil. Then he battered Rikki-tikki to and fro, as a rat is shaken by a dog, to and fro on the floor, up and down, and around in great circles.

Narr. 2  Rikki-tikki thought he would surely be killed in the encounter, but he was certain of one thing, when the family found him, he would still be clinging to the snake’s head, Narr. 3  Then Rikki-tikki saw a ball of fire shoot past him, and he felt its hot breath... When he regained consciousness, Teddy was holding the little mongoose in his arms, showering him with praise and affection.

Narr. 1 He was saying that Rikki-tikki had saved the family. Teddy’s father had been awakened by the fight in the bathroom, and he had fired two shots into the cobra’s hood. Nag, the black king cobra was dead.
Episode Five:
Rikki-tikki finds Nagaina’s nest in the garden

Narr. 1  Without waiting for breakfast, Rikki-tikki escaped to the veranda and nursed his tired and bruised body in the warm sunshine. He stretched out on the brickwork and was almost asleep when he heard Darzee singing,

Darzee  “Nag is dead—is dead—is dead!”

Narr. 2  The news of Nag’s death was all over the garden, and the frogs and birds joined in the chorus,

Frogs & Birds  “Nag is dead—is dead—is dead!”
Darzee  “Yes!
The maid has thrown Nag’s lifeless body out on the rubbish heap.
Nag will never eat my babies again.”

Rikki  “Oh, you stupid
tuft of feathers,
Is this the time to sing?
Where is Nagaina?”

Darzee  “Nag is dead—is dead—is dead!”

Narr. 3  Darzee went on, singing at the top of her voice.

Darzee  “The valiant Rikki-tikki caught Nag by the head and held fast.
The big man brought the bang-stick,
and Nag fell in two pieces.”

Rikki  “Stop singing a minute, Darzee,
Where is Nagaina?”
Darzee  “What is it,
O killer of the terrible Nag?”

Rikki  “Where is Nagaina?”

Darzee  “On the rubbish heap by the stables,
mourning for Nag.
Great is Rikki-tikki with the white teeth.”

Rikki  “Bother my white teeth!
Have you ever heard where she keeps her eggs?”

Darzee  “In the melon bed, on the end nearest the wall,
where the sun strikes
nearly all day,
She hid them there
three weeks ago.”
Narr. 1  Rikki-tikki turned and flew down the garden path, past the stable and the tool shed, on to the melon patch near the wall. There, underneath the melon leaves, he found Nagaina’s nest very cunningly concealed. In it were twenty-six cobra eggs.

Narr. 2  A cobra’s nest is nothing more than a hole scooped out in the soft earth. The cobra eggs looked not unlike the eggs that we keep in our refrigerator at home, except that cobra eggs were encased in a soft, white, transparent skin instead of in a hard shell.

Narr. 3  Inside of each egg Rikki-tikki could see a baby cobra curled up, and he knew that the eggs would hatch within the day.
Narr. 1  The little mongoose chuckled to himself as he clipped the end of the first egg and killed the little snake within it. He remembered that his mother had told him that a baby cobra can kill a man or a mongoose.

Narr. 2  Methodically, Rikki-tikki fished egg after egg from the nest and destroyed them. All the while he was keeping a sharp watch lest Nagaina should return. At last there was but one egg left.

Narr. 3  As Rikki-tikki pulled it from the nest, Darzee, the tailor-bird, flew to him from her nest in the pine tree, screaming, Darzee  “Rikki-tikki!
   Come! Come!
   Nagaina has gone
   onto the veranda!
   Oh, come quickly!
   She means killing!”

Narr. 1  Rikki-tikki grasped the last egg in his mouth and scuttled up the garden path as hard as he could put foot to ground. He bounded up the veranda steps two at a time.
Narr. 2  What he saw cause him to stop so short that he skidded halfway across the brickwork.
Teddy, his father and mother were seated there
at early breakfast, but Rikki-tikki saw that they were not eating.
They sat stone-still,
and their faces were white.

Narr. 3  Coiled at the foot of Teddy’s chair
within easy striking distance of Teddy’s bare leg was Nagaina.
She was swaying to and fro,
singing a song of triumph.
Nagaina “Son of the big man that killed Nag!
Wait a little.
Keep very still,
all you three!
If you move
I strike,
and if you do not move
I strike.
Oh, foolish people who killed my Nag!”

Narr. 1 Teddy’s eyes were fixed on his father, and all his father could do was to whisper, “Sit still, Teddy.
You mustn’t move.
Teddy, you mustn’t move.”

Narr. 2 Rikki-tikki bounded out onto the veranda behind Nagaina and spit the last egg from his mouth.

Rikki “Turn around, Nagaina.
Turn and fight!
Look at the last of your eggs.
I found your nest in the melon patch and destroyed all of the eggs but this one.”
Narr. 3  Nagaina spun clear around, forgetting everything for the sake of her one egg. At the same moment Teddy’s father shot out a big hand, caught Teddy by the shoulder, and dragged him across the table, spilling the dishes and the food to the floor with a clatter.

Rikki  “Tricked! Tricked!  _Rikki-tch-tch!_” The boy is safe now, and it was I-I-I that caught Nag by the hood last night in the bathroom.’

Narr. 1  The little mongoose began to jump up and down, all four feet together, his head close to the floor.

Nikki  “Nag threw me to and fro, but he couldn’t shake me off. He was dead before the big man blew him in two. I did it! _Rikki-tikki-tck-tck!_ Come, then, Nagaina. Come and fight with me. You shall not be a widow long.”
Narr. 2 Now the family drew back against the porch railing, watching the battle of life and death that was taking place before them. Nagaina was striking again and again. After each strike she would recoil as quickly as a watch-spring, ready to strike again.

Narr. 3 Rikki-tikki was bounding all around Nagaina, keeping just out of reach of her stroke. His little pink eyes had turned red, like hot coals. He was standing up on his hind feet like a little kangaroo, ready to spring at the snake’s neck whenever he found the opening. All the while he was sounding his battle cry, “Rikki-tikki-tch-tch!”
Narr. 1  Again and again and again she struck. Each time her head came with a whack on the brickwork of the veranda, she gathered herself together to strike again.

Narr. 2  Rikki-tikki danced in a circle to get behind her, and Nagaina spun round to keep her head to his head. Rikki had forgotten the egg. He had moved so far from it, that Nagaina came nearer and nearer to it.

Narr. 3  At last, she caught the egg in her mouth, turned to the veranda steps, and flew like an arrow down the path—with Rikki-tikki right behind.

Narr. 1  It is said that when the cobra runs for its life, it goes like the whiplash flicked across the horse’s neck. But Rikki-tikki was even faster. He caught Nagaina by the tail so she plunged into the rat hole where she and Nag used to live.
Narr. 2  Rikki-tikki tried to pull her back, but Nagaina was the stronger of the two, and inch by inch, she pulled the little mongoose into the hole with her. And Darzee, the tailor-bird, who was sitting in the pine tree watching the battle taking place below, set up a mournful chant:

Darzee  “It’s all over with Rikki-tikki-tavi! Brave Rikki-tikki-tavi! Even a wise, full-grown mongoose would not follow a cobra into its own hole.”
Episode Seven:
Rikki’s triumph is complete

Narr. 3 Presently the grass
that grew around the rat hole quivered,
and Rikki-tikki-tavi,
covered with dirt,
dragged himself out of the hole
leg by leg.

Narr. 4 He stopped to shake the dust
from his whiskers;
then he looked up at Darzee,
the tailor-bird,
and said:

Nikki “It’s all over.
Nagaina is dead.”

Narr. 1 And the red ants that lived between the grass stems heard him
and began trooping down one after another to see if what Rikki-tikki-tavi had said was true.
Narr. 2 And as for Rikki-tikki-tavi, he lay down in the sunshine beside the rat hole and went to sleep.

Narr. 3 He slept all of that morning and half of the afternoon, because for a little mongoose he had done a hard day’s work.

THE END
Once there were two princesses, the First Princess and the Second Princess. The First Princess liked being first, but the Second Princess did not like being second. So the Second Princess ran into the woods to find the Gray Wolf.

2nd Princess

Gray Wolf, Gray Wolf, you must come to the palace in the dead of night and gobble up my sister so that I can be first.

Gray Wolf

Goodness gracious,
Narrator said the Gray Wolf.

Gray Wolf what a wicked thought. I would never do a thing like that. Never!

Narrator So the Second Princess went to find the Brown Bear.

2nd Princess Brown Bear, Brown Bear, you must come to the palace and marry my sister so she’ll have to move away from home and I can be first...

Brown Bear Oh, must I, indeed?

Narrator said the Brown Bear.

Brown Bear Well, let me tell you, I wouldn’t marry your sister if she were the last person on earth. Besides, as you can see, I’m already happily married.

Narrator So the Second Princess stomped into the palace kitchen.

2nd Princess Cook, Cook!

Narrator she said,

2nd Princess Bake her in a pie or flip her like a pancake, I don’t care. I want my sister out of the way so I can be first--and that’s an order!

Cook Very well,

Narrator said the Cook.
Cook

but I shall want something in return.

2nd Princess

Like what?

Cook

Jewels.

Narrator

she said with a greedy grin.

Cook

I want your mother’s jewels. All of them. Jewels, jewels, and more jewels!

2nd Princess

I’ll try.

Narrator

said the Second Princess. So the Second Princess crept into her mother’s bedroom and took what she could...cramming and stuffing and pocketing glittering gorgeous things...and though her heart was beating like a loud clock and her knees were trembling like jelly, she grew so busy with all her mother’s jewels she did not notice the Maid, the Queen, two Ladies-in Waiting, two Guards, the Lord High Chamberlain, and the King come into the room.

In fact, only when the Maid sobbed, the Queen gasped, the Ladies-in-Waiting fainted, the Guards shouted, “Who goes there?” and the King marched her off to the Throne Room did the Second Princess realize she was caught...red-handed!
King
Well, I am waiting, I am waiting, I am waiting.

Narrator
But of course, the one thing in the world the Second Princess could NEVER DO WAS TELL what she had been doing with the Queen’s jewels.

Queen
If you cannot tell us what you were doing with the jewels, then we shall have to guess. Was it to polish them?

Narrator
The Second Princess shook her head.

King
Was it to play Kings and Queens with your sister?

Narrator
The Second Princess shook her head.

Queen
Did you want to give the jewels to someone in return for something you wanted very, very much?

2nd Princess
(soft whisper) Yes..to..be..first.

Narrator
And to her surprise the sky did not fall in and the world did not come to an end. Instead the Queen sighed gratefully and the King said,

King
Thank goodness we know. Now run along and help Mother put away her tiaras, and from now on you will be first on Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays.
And the First Princess will be first on Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays.
And on Sundays we’ll all be first!

They all lived happily ever after, except for the greedy cook, who stormed off in a huff because all she wanted was jewels, jewels, and more jewels, and because she never knew which day of the week it was anyway.

The Seven Chinese Brothers
by Margaret Mahy

by Stacy Bongini

Narrator 1st Brother 2nd Brother
3rd Brother 4th Brother 5th Brother
6th Brother 7th Brother Emperor

Narrator
Once upon a time, when Ch’in Shih Huang was emperor of all China, seven remarkable brothers lived together.
The brothers looked exactly alike except each brother had one amazing power that was all his own.
First Brother could hear a fly sneeze from a hundred miles away, while Second Brother could look right across the hundred miles and see the fly sitting on the Great Wall of China.
Third brother was a man of unusual strength.
Fourth Brother was strong, too, for he had bones of iron.
Fifth Brother had legs that could grow as tall and thick as tree trunks, while Sixth Brother never, ever, became too hot, no matter how hard he worked under the sun.
The Seventh Brother was always happy, and when he was unhappy he wept great big warm salt-water tears, and each tear was large enough to drown an entire village.
One day when the brothers were working, First Brother lifted his head and...

Emperor  A man as powerful as that is more trouble than he is worth.
Strong men can be very useful to an emperor, but this one is too strong.
One army may not be enough to catch him.
I had better send two.

Narrator  When the Third Brother woke up two armies surrounded him.
The armies told him in the morning he was to be executed.
When he heard this he burst into tears.

First Brother  Third Brother must be in trouble!
I can hear him crying.

Second Brother  Ai ya! Third Brother has been taken to the palace!
He’s surrounded by two armies!
They are going to execute him in the morning.
No wonder he is crying.

Fourth Brother  Don’t worry! I will change places with him.
The Celestial Emperor can try cutting my head as many times as he likes.
Perhaps that will make him feel better.
Narrator  He got there in no time at all and sneaked past the two armies and traded places with the Third Brother. The next day the officers tried over and over to behead the Fourth Brother. They had to report to the emperor that they had no luck.

Emperor  A man with bones of iron! Drown him in the deep sea!

Fourth Brother  Bones of iron won’t bend or buckle or break, but they will sink.

Narrator  He began to cry.

First Brother  Fourth Brother is crying!

Second Brother  Ai ya! Tomorrow morning they are going to drown Fourth Brother. No wonder he is crying!

Fifth Brother  Don’t worry! I will change places with him. The mighty emperor can try and drown me as many times as he likes. Perhaps that might make him feel better.
Narrator  Off he went. He was there in no time at all.
The brothers switched places.
The next day the two armies threw him in the sea.
However, his legs began to grow.
They tried throwing him in deeper waters but this didn’t work either.
Finally, they threw him in the deepest part of the sea.
The water only came up to his neck.

Fifth Brother  Ahhhhh!  How lovely and cool is the deepest sea water of all.

Emperor  He is more dangerous than I imagined.
He won’t drown, but he might burn.
Into the fire with him, tomorrow morning.

Narrator  When he was told his fate, he burst into tears.

First Brother  Fifth Brother is crying.

Second Brother  Ai ya!  Tomorrow morning they are going to burn Fifth Brother alive.
No wonder he is crying.

Sixth Brother  Don’t worry! I will take his place.
The splendid emperor can bake me all day long if he likes.
Perhaps that will make him feel better.
Narrator: He got there in no time at all. Sixth Brother took his place. The next day the two armies tried everything possible to burn the Sixth Brother. They built such a big fire that the smoke from it drifted from one end of China to the other. However, Sixth Brother was not bothered by it.

Sixth Brother: How kind of the noble emperor to let me warm myself in his very own fire.

Emperor: Send for the royal archers! In the morning, we will shoot this man full of arrows.

First Brother: Sixth Brother is crying. Second Brother, what do you see?

Second Brother: Ai ya! Tomorrow morning they are going to shoot Sixth Brother full of arrows.

First Brother: There is nothing for it. We cannot leave Sixth Brother to die alone. We will all go to the noble emperor. He can shoot arrows through all of us. At least we will be together.
The brothers started their journey to the palace, but poor Seventh Brother was so upset, that he couldn’t help crying just a little. His first tear was as big as the longest river in China. His second tear was as big as the second longest river. Both tears were as salty as the sea. The two huge tears swept down the road ahead of the brothers. It swept on for a hundred miles. Seventh Brother’s first tear swept out army north. His second tear swept out army south. The emperor was tossed so high and so far that he is still trying to return to his palace. The flood of tears swept over the Great Wall of China, flowed all the way out into the Yellow Sea, and all the way back again. Sixth Brother was free! All seven brothers were reunited at the Great Wall.

Fifth Brother

Fish!

Third Brother

Wood!

Narrator

The wave had washed up hundreds of fish.

Fourth Brother snapped his iron finger and his iron thumb to start the fire.
Brother

Oh, I’m so hungry.
Now that we are together again, we can have dinner and forget about our troubles.
I promise never to cry again, unless I absolutely must.

Narrator

The seven Chinese brothers sat themselves down around the warm fire and feasted on delicious fried fish...for after such a worrying week they were all very, very hungry!

Narrator 2 Welcome to our presentation of “The Skipping Pot.”

Narrator 1 There was once a poor farmer...

Narrator 2 who had a wife

Narrator 1 They had a cow...

Cow Moo

Wife Husband, we must sell the cow. We need money for food.

Farmer You are right, Wife. Come along Cow.

Cow Moo

Stranger Good morning, sir. What a fine cow you have there.

Farmer He is for sale for only ten golden.
Stranger I have no money to give you but I have this pot.

Farmer No thank you. We need money.

Pot Please take me. You'll not be sorry.

Farmer A talking pot. If you can talk, you must be able to do other things too.

Narrator 1 The farmer exchanged the pot for the cow and said goodbye to his cow.

Farmer Bye, cow

Cow Moo

Narrator 1 The farmer brought the pot home to his wife.

Farmer Look wife, I have traded our cow for this pot.

Wife Silly man, what good is a pot?

Pot I'm very useful. You shall see.

Wife A talking pot?

Pot I skip! I skip!

Wife Where do you skip?

Pot I skip to the rich man's house.

Narrator 2 The pot skipped out of the door and up the path to the rich man's house. The cook was preparing a plum pudding.
Cook: What have we here? The perfect pot for my pudding.

Narrator 2: The cook put the pudding into the pot.

Pot: I skip! I skip!

Cook: Where do you skip?

Pot: Home, home to my friends.

Narrator 2: The cook just had time to say,

Cook: Wait!

Narrator 2: before the pot skipped back to the farmer's house. The farmer and his wife were overjoyed to see the pot.

Wife: Welcome, pot. What a fine pudding you have brought.

Farmer: What a fine meal we will have.

Narrator 2: The farmer and his wife ate the pudding and cleaned the pot.

Pot: I skip! I skip!

Wife: Where do you skip?

Pot: To the rich man's house.

Narrator 1: The pot skipped to the rich man's barn. The field hand was getting ready to store a wagon load of grain.
Field Hand  What have we here?
              The perfect pot for this grain.

Narrator 1  The field hand put some grain into the pot.

Pot          I skip! I skip!

Field Hand  Where do you skip?

Pot          Home, home to my friends.

Narrator 1  The field hand just had time to say...

Field Hand  Wait!

Narrator    before the pot skipped back to the farmer's house.

Farmer      Welcome, Pot. What a fine load of grain you have brought.

Wife        Enough grain to make bread for a long time.

Narrator 1  The farmer and his wife stored the grain and cleaned the pot.

Pot          I skip! I skip!

Wife        Where do you skip?

Pot          To the rich man's house.

Narrator 2  The pot skipped to the rich man's house and right into the treasure room.
Rich Man  What have we here?
The perfect pot for money.

Narrator 2  The rich man filled the pot with gold coins.

Pot  I skip! I skip!

Rich Man  Where do you skip?

Pot  Home, home to my friends.

Narrator 2  The rich man just had time to say...

Rich Man  Wait!

Narrator 2  before the pot skipped back home to the farmer’s house.

Wife  Welcome Pot.
What a big load of gold you have brought.

Farmer  That is a lot of gold. Thank you, Pot.

Narrator 2  The farmer and his wife lived happily for many years, and the pot stayed in a corner and slept.

Pot  My skipping days are over.

Everyone:  THE END!
SCENE 1:

(Narrator reads the following poem as characters act out the motions):
My dad gave me one dollar bill
‘Cause I’m his smartest son,
And I traded Mom for two shiny quarters ‘Cause two is more than one!

I took the two quarters to the school lunchroom
And traded them to Betty Lou for three dimes...I guess she don’t know
That three is more than two!

And then, I swapped them with “Fool-Around” Fred
In math he got a “D!”
He gave me four nickels for my three dimes,
And four is more than three!

Then I took the four nickels to Billy Bob Boy, is he a bore!
That fool gave me five pennies for them,
And five is more than four!

And than I went and showed my math teacher
And she got red in the face,
Then closed her eyes and shook her head,
And said, “This is a disgrace!”
So the next day in the lunchroom
I got red in the face!
I marched up to my lunch table and said,
Yesterday’s transactions we must retrace!

I started in on Billy Bob,
Agreeing that five is more than four
But five cents is less than four nickels
So he owed me three nickels more!

I then confronted “Fool-Around” Fred,
And agreed that compared to three, four is more
But four nickels is less than three dimes,
So he owed me ten cents more!
I then lazed into Betty Lou, saying, “Your trick was the worst of crimes!” although it’s true that three is more than two, You owe me two dimes!

I went home to my mother, and We agreed that two is more than one But two quarters is much less than one dollar so another two quarters she owed her son!

At bedtime I admitted to my dad, That my mistakes were more than one. But since I corrected all of them I’m still his smartest son!

THE END
Narr. I  Now, the Star-Belly Sneetches had bellies with stars.
The Plain-Belly Sneetches had none upon thars.

Narr. 2  Those stars weren't so big. They were really quite small, you might think such a thing wouldn't matter at all.

Narr. 3  But, because they had stars, all the Star-Belly Sneetches would brag.
We're the best kind of Sneetch on the beaches.
We'll have nothing to do with the Plain-Belly sorts.
Narr. I  And whenever they met some, when they were out walking, they'd hike right on past them without even talking. When the Star-Belly children went out to play ball, could a plain belly get out in the game..? Not at all.

Narr.3  You only could play if your bellies had stars and the Plain-Belly children had none upon thars.

Narr. I  When the Star-Belly Sneetches had frankfurter roasts or picnics or parties or marshmallow toasts, they never invited the Plain-Belly Sneetches.

Narr.2  They left them out cold, in the dark of the beaches. They kept them away. Never let them come near. And that's how they treated them year after year. Then one day, it seems while the Plain-Belly Sneetches were moping and doping alone on the beaches, Narr. I  Just sitting they're wishing their bellies had stars... A stranger zipped up in the strangest of cars!

McBean  My friends, my name is Sylvester McMonkey,  And I've heard of your troubles.  I've heard you're unhappy.  But I can fix that.  I'm the Fix-it-Up Chappie.  I've come here to help you.  I have what you need.  And my prices are low.  And I work at great speed.  And my work is one hundred per cent guaranteed!

Narr.2  Then, quickly, Sylvester McMonkey McBean put together a very peculiar machine.

McBean  You want stars like a Star-Belly Sneetch.  My friends, you can have them for three dollars each!  Just pay me your money and hop right aboard!

Narr.3  So they clambered inside.  Then the big machine roared, and it klonked, and it bonked and it jerked and it berked.

Narr. 1  And it bopped them about.  But the thing really worked!  When the Plain-Belly Sneetches popped out, they had stars!

Narr.2  They actually did, they had stars upon thars!  Then they yelled at the ones who had stars at the start.
PBS  We’re all just the same, now, you snooty old smarties! And now we can go to your frankfurter parties.

SBS  Good grief.
We're still the best Sneetches and they are the worst.
But now, how in the world will we know, if which kind is what, or the other way round?

Narr.3  Then up came McBean with a very sly wink.

McBean  Things are not quite as bad as you think.
So you don't know who's who.
That is perfectly true.
But come with. me, friends.
Do you know what I'll do?
I'll make you, again, the best Sneetches on beaches and it will only cost you ten dollars eaches.
Belly stars are no longer in style.
What you need is a trip through my Star-Off Machine.
This wondrous contraption will take off your stars.
So you won't took like Sneetches who them on thars.

Narr. I  And that hand machine working very precisely removed all the stars from their tummies quite nicely.

Narr.2  Then, with snoots in the air, they paraded about and they opened their beaks and they let out a shout.
SBS  We know who is who! Now there isn't a doubt.
The best kind of Sneetches are Sneetches without!

Narr. 3 Then, of course, those with stars all got frightfully mad.
To be wearing -a star now was frightfully bad.

Narr. 1 Then, of course, old Sylvester McMonkey McBean invited them into his Star-Off Machine.

Narr. 2 Then, of course from then on, as you probably guess, things really got into a horrible mess.

Narr. 3 All the rest of that day, on those wild screaming beaches,
The Fix-it-Up Chappie kept fixing up Sneetches.

Narr. 1 Off again! On again! In again! Out again!
Through the machine they raced round and about again, changing their stars every minute or two.

Narr. 2 They kept paying money. They kept running through, until neither the Plain nor the Star Bellies knew

Narr. 3 Whether this one was that one...or that one was this one...or which one was what one ... or what one was who.
Narr. I Then, when every last cent of their money was spent, the Fix-it-Up Chappie packed up and he went.

Narr.3 And he laughed as he drove in his car up the beach.

McBean They never will learn. No. You can't teach a Sneetch.

Narr. I But McBean was quite wrong. I'm quite happy to say that the Sneetches got really quite smart on that day.

Narr.2 The day they decided that Sneetches are Sneetches, and no kind of Sneetch is the best on the beaches.

Narr.3 That day, all the Sneetches forgot about stars and whether they had one, or not, upon thars.

The End
The Snopp On the Sidewalk
by: Jack Prelutsky

Adapted for Reader’s Theater
by Kathleen King

Characters:

Narrator 1   Narrator 3
Narrator 2   Narrator 4

Narrator 1: It was lying on the sidewalk
Narrator 2: Like a gray old ragged mop,
Narrator 3: But the second that I saw it,
Narrator 4: I was sure I'd found the snopp.

Narrator 1: It did not move a fiber
Narrator 2: Of its long and shaggy hair,
Narrator 3: As if seeming not to notice
Narrator 4: That I stood and watched it there.

Narrator 1: At first I thought, "I'll touch it," Narrator 2: And then I thought, "I won't," Narrator 3: But when again I thought, "I will,"
Narrator 4: The snopp said softly, "Don't."
Narrator 1: This startled me so greatly
Narrator 2: That I turned to run away,
Narrator 3: But as I started down the street,
Narrator 4: The snopp called after, "Stay."

Narrator 1: I asked, "What do you want of me, Narrator 2: Poor snopp, I cannot guess?"
Narrator 3: The snopp, still never stirring,
Narrator 4: Only answered me with, "Yes."

Narrator 1: I did not understand this Narrator 2: So I tried once more to go
Narrator 3: But I'd barely started homeward
Narrator 4: When the snopp said sweetly, "No."

Narrator 1: And so I stayed that day and night,
Narrator 2: And yes, I stayed a week,
Narrator 3: And nevermore in all that time
Narrator 4: Did either of us speak.

Narrator 1: At last I said, "Oh snopp, dear snopp, Narrator 2: I really have to go."
Narrator 3: The snopp showed no emotion
Narrator 4: As it whispered only, "Oh."

Narrator 1: I headed home, not looking back,
Narrator 2: Afraid to ever stop.
Narrator 3: I knew that if I paused but once
Narrator 4: I'd never leave the snopp.
Narrator 1: But the snopp remains within my mind,
Narrator 2: I'm sure it always will...
Narrator 3: That strange thing on the sidewalk
Narrator 4: Just sitting there so still.

THE END
When little Snow White’s mother died,
The king, her father, up and cried,

“Oh, what a nuisance! What a life!
Now I must find another wife!”

(It’s never easy for a king
To find himself that sort of thing.)
He wrote to every magazine.
And said,

“I’m looking for a Queen.”

At least ten thousand girls replied
And begged to be the royal bride.
Nar. 4  The king said with a shifty smile,

King    I’d like to give each one a trial.”

Nar.1   However, in the end he chose
         A lady called Miss Maclabose,
         Who brought along a curious toy
         That seemed to give her endless joy...

Nar. 2  This was a mirror framed in brass,
         A MAGIC TALKING LOOKING GLASS.
         Ask it something day or night,
         It always got the answer right.

Nar. 3  “Oh Mirror, what’s for lunch today?”

Nar. 4  The thing would answer in a trice,

Mirror  “Today it’s scrambled eggs and rice.”

Nar. 1  Now every day, week in, week out,
         The spoiled and stupid Queen would shout,

Queen  “Oh Mirror Mirror on the wall,
         Who is the fairest of them all?”

Mirror  “Oh Madam, you’re the Queen sublime.
         You are the only one to charm us,
         Queen, you are the cat’s pajamas.”

Nar. 3  For ten whole years the silly Queen
         Repeated this absurd routine.
         Then suddenly, one awful day

Nar. 3  She heard the Magic Mirror say,
Mirror  “From now on, Queen, you’re Number two. Snow White is prettier than you!

Nar. 4  The Queen went absolutely wild. She yelled,

Queen  “I’m going to scrag that child! I’ll cook her flaming goose! I’ll skin ‘er! I’ll have her rotten guts for dinner!”

Nar. 1  She called the Huntsman to her study. She shouted at him,

Queen  “Listen buddy! You drag that filthy girl out side, And see you take her for a ride! Thereafter slit her ribs a part And bring me back her bleeding heart!”

Nar. 2  The Huntsman dragged the lovely child Deep deep into the forest wild. Fearing the worst, poor Snow White spake. She cried,

Snow White  “Oh please give me a break!”

Nar. 3  The knife was poised, the arm was strong, She cried again,

Snow White  “I’ve done no wrong!”

Nar. 4  The Huntsman’s heart began to flutter. It melted like a pound of butter. He murmured,

Huntsman  “Okay, beat it, kid,”
Nar. 2  And you can bet your life she did.

Nar. 3  Later, the Huntsman made a stop
Within the local butcher’s shop,
Nar. 1  And there he bought, for safety’s sake,
A bullock’s heart and one nice steak.

Huntsman  “Oh Majesty! Oh Queen!”
Nar. 4  he cried,

Huntsman  “That rotten little girl has died!
And just to prove I didn’t cheat,
I’ve brought along these bits of meat.”

Queen  The Queen cried out, “Bravissimo!
I trust you killed her...nice and slow.”

Nar. 1  Then (this is the disgusting part)
The Queen sat down and ate the heart!

Nar. 2  (I only hope she cooked it well.
Boiled heart can be as tough as hell.)

Nar. 3  While all of this was going on,
Oh where, oh where had Snow White gone?

Nar. 4  She’d found it easy, being pretty,
To hitch a ride into the city,

Nar. 1  And there she’d got a job, unpaid,
As general cook and parlor maid
Nar. 2  With seven funny little men,
Each one not more than three foot ten,
Ex-horse-race jockeys, all of them.

Nar. 3  These Seven Dwarfs, though awfully nice,
Were guilty of one shocking vice...

Nar. 4  They squandered all of their resources
At the race track backing horses.

Nar. 1  (When they hadn’t backed a winner,
None of them got any dinner.)

Nar. 2  One evening, Snow White said,

Snow White  “Look here,
I think I’ve got a great idea.
Just leave it all to me, okay?
And no more gambling till I say.”

Nar. 3  That very night, at eventide,
Young Snow White hitched another ride,
And then, when it was very late,
She slipped in through the Palace gate.

Nar. 4  The King was in the counting house
Counting out the money,
The Queen was in the parlor
Eating bread and honey,

Nar. 1  The footmen and the servants slept
So no one saw her as she crept
On tip toe through the mighty hall
And grabbed THE MIRROR off the wall.
Nar. 2 As soon as she had got it home, She told the Senior Dwarf (or Gnome) To ask it what he wished to know. “Go on!”

Nar. 3 she shouted.

Snow White “Have a go!”

Nar. 4 He said,

Gnome “Oh Mirror, please don’t joke!” Each one of us is stony broke! Which horse will win tomorrow’s race, The Ascot Gold Cup Steeplechase?

Nar. 1 The mirror whispered sweet and low, “The horse’s name is Mistletoe.”

Nar. 2 The Dwarfs went absolutely daft, They kissed young Snow White fore and aft, Then rushed away to raise some dough With which to back old Mistletoe.

Nar. 3 They pawned their watches, sold the car, They borrowed money near and far, (For much of it they had to thank The manager of Barclay’s Bank).

Nar. 4 They went to Ascot and of course For once they backed the winning horse.

Nar. 1 Thereafter, every single day, The Mirror made the bookies pay.
Nar. 2  Each Dwarf and Snow White got a share,
    And each was soon a millionnaire,
Nar. 3  Which shows that gambling’s not a sin
Nar. 4  Provided...that you always win!

THE END
NARRATOR Tyya went shopping with her father. She pushed the cart up the aisle and down the aisle, up the aisle and down the aisle.

TYYA Sometimes my father doesn’t buy good food. He gets bread, eggs, milk, cheese, spinach...nothing any good! He doesn’t buy ICE CREAM! COOKIES! CHOCOLATE BARS! or GINGER ALE!

NARRATOR So Tyya quietly snuck away from her father and got a cart of her own. She pushed it over to the ice cream. Then she put 100 boxes of ice cream into her cart. Tyya pushed the cart up behind her father and said,

TYYA Daddy, LOOK!

NARRATOR Her father turned around and yelled,

FATHER YIKES!

TYYA DADDY! GOOD FOOD!

FATHER On no! This is sugary junk. It will rot your teeth. It will lower your IQ. Put it ALL BACK!
NARRATOR  So Tyya put back 100 boxes of ice cream. She meant to go right back to her father, but on the way she had to pass the candy. She put 300 chocolate bars into her cart. Tyya pushed that cart up behind her father.

TYYA  Daddy, LOOK!

FATHER  YIKES!

TYYA  DADDY! GOOD FOOD!

FATHER  Oh no! This is sugary junk. Put it ALL BACK!

NARRATOR  So Tyya put back all of the chocolate bars.

FATHER  Okay, Tyya, I have had it. You stand here and DON’T MOVE!

NARRATOR  Tyya knew she was in BIG TROUBLE, so she stood there and DIDN’T MOVE. Some friends came by and said hello. Tyya didn’t move. A man ran over her toe with his cart. Tyya still didn’t move. A lady who worked at the store came by and looked at Tyya. She looked her over from the top down, and she looked her over from the bottom up. She knocked Tyya on the head...and Tyya still didn’t move.

LADY  This is the nicest doll I have ever seen. It looks almost real.
NARRATOR She put a price tag on Tyya’s nose that said $29.95. Then she picked Tyya up and put her on the shelf with all the other dolls. A man came along and looked at Tyya.

MAN This is the nicest doll I have ever seen. I’m going to get that doll for my son.

NARRATOR He picked up Tyya by the hair...

TYYA STOP!

MAN EYAAAH! IT’S ALIVE!

NARRATOR The man ran down the aisle, knocking over a pile of 500 apples. Then Tyya’s father came along looking for his daughter.

FATHER Tyya? Tyya? Where are you? TYYA! What are you doing on that shelf?

TYYA It is all your fault. You told me not to move and people are trying to buy me. WAAAHHH!

FATHER Oh, come now. I won’t let anybody buy you.

NARRATOR He gave Tyya a big kiss and a big hug; then went to pay for all the food. The man at the cash register looked at Tyya and said, CASHIER Hey Mister, you can’t take that kid out of the store. You have to pay for her. It says so right on her nose: $29.95.

FATHER Wait! This is my own kid. I don’t have to pay for my own kid.

CASHIER If it has a price tag, you have to pay for it.

FATHER I won’t pay!

CASHIER You’ve got to!

FATHER NNNNO!

CASHIER YYYYES!

FATHER NNNNO!

CASHIER YES!

FATHER NO!

NARRATOR Then Tyya quietly said,

TYYA Daddy, don’t you think I’m worth $29.95?

FATHER Ah...Um...I mean...Well, of course you’re worth $29.95.

NARRATOR He reached into his wallet, got out the money, paid the man, and took the price tag off Tyya’s nose. Tyya gave her father a big kiss and a big hug.

TYYA Daddy, you finally bought something good after all!

Characters:

Narrator
Stephanie School Kids
Stephanie’s Mom

Narrator: One day Stephanie went to her mom and said,

Stephanie: “None of the kids in my class have a ponytail. I want a nice ponytail coming right out the back.”

Narrator: So Stephanie’s mom gave her a nice ponytail coming right out the back. When Stephanie went to school the other kids looked at her and said,

Kids: "Ugly, ugly, very ugly."

Narrator: Stephanie said,

Stephanie: "It's my ponytail and I like it!"
Narrator: The next morning when Stephanie went to school all the other girls had ponytails coming out the back. Stephanie looked at them and said,

Stephanie: “You are all a bunch of copycats. You just do whatever I do. You don’t have a brain in your heads.”

Narrator: The next morning her mom said,

Mom: "Stephanie would you like a ponytail coming out the back?"

Narrator: Stephanie said,

Stephanie: "No."

Mom: Then that’s that.”

Narrator: said her mom.

Mom: “That’s the only place you can do ponytails.”

Stephanie: “No, it’s not.”

Narrator: said Stephanie.

Stephanie: “I want one coming out the side, just above my ear.”

Mom: “Very strange. Are you sure that is what you want?”
Stephanie: “Yes.”
Narrator: said Stephanie. So her mom gave Stephanie a nice ponytail coming out right above her ear. When she went to school the other kids saw her and said,
Kids: “Ugly, ugly, very ugly.”
Narrator: Stephanie said,
Stephanie: “It’s my ponytail and I like it!”
Narrator: The next morning when Stephanie came to school all the girls, and even some of the boys, had nice ponytails coming out just above their ears. The next morning the mom said,
Mom: “Stephanie, would you like a ponytail coming out the back?”
Narrator: Stephanie said,
Stephanie: “NNNO.”
Mom: “Would you like one coming out the side?”
Stephanie: “NNNO!”
Mom: “Then that’s that. There is no other place you can do ponytails.”
Stephanie: “Yes there is, I want one coming out the top of my head like a tree.”

Mom: “That’s very, very strange, are you sure that is what you want?”

Stephanie: “Yes.”

Narrator: said Stephanie. So her mom gave Stephanie a nice ponytail coming out the top of her head like a tree. When Stephanie went to school, the other kids saw her and said,

Kids: “Ugly, ugly, very ugly.”

Narrator: Stephanie said,

Stephanie: “It’s my ponytail and I like it.”

Narrator: The next day all of the girls and all of the boys had ponytails coming out the top. It looked like broccoli was growing out of their heads. The next morning the mom said,

Mom: Stephanie, would you like a ponytail coming out the back?

Narrator: Stephanie said,

Stephanie: "NNNO."

Mom: "Would you like one coming out the top?"

Stephanie: "NNNO !"
Mom: "Then that is definitely that. There is no other place you can do ponytails."

Stephanie: "Yes, there is, I want one coming out the front and hanging down in front of my nose."

Mom: "But nobody will know if you are coming or going."

Narrator: her mom said.

Mom: "Are you sure that is what you want?"

Stephanie: "Yes."

Narrator: said Stephanie. So her mom gave Stephanie a nice ponytail coming out the front. On the way to school she bumped into four trees, three cars, two houses and one Principal. When she finally got to her class the other kids saw her and said,

Kids: "Ugly, ugly very ugly."

Narrator: Stephanie said,

Stephanie: "It's my ponytail and I like it."

Narrator: The next day all of the girls and all of the boys, and even the teacher, had ponytails coming out the front and hanging down in front of their noses. None of them could see where they were going...
Narrator: They bumped into the desks and they bumped into each other. They bumped into the walls, and, by mistake, three girls went into the boys' bathroom. Stephanie yelled!

Stephanie: "You are a bunch of brainless copycats. You just do whatever I do. When I come tomorrow I am going to have...SHAVED MY HEAD!"

Narrator: The first person to come the next day was the teacher. She had shaved her head and she was bald. The next to come were the boys. They had shaved their heads and they were bald. The next to come were the girls. They had shaved their heads and they were bald...

Narrator: The last person to come was Stephanie, and she had... a nice little ponytail coming right out the back.

THE END
Narrator Once upon a time there was a little old woman and a little old man who lived together in a little house. They were lonely. So the little old lady decided to make a man out of stinky cheese.

Narrator She gave him a piece of bacon for a mouth and two olives for eyes and put him in the oven to cook. When she opened the oven to see if he was done, the smell knocked her back.

Old Lady Phew! What is that terrible smell?

Narrator The Stinky Cheese Man hopped out of the oven and ran out of the door calling:

Stinky Run, run, run as fast as you can! You can’t catch me, I’m the Stinky Cheese Man!

Narrator The little old lady and the little old man sniffed the air...
Old Man I’m not really very hungry.

Old Lady I’m not really all that lonely.

Narrator So they didn’t chase the Stinky Cheese Man. The Stinky Cheese Man ran and ran until he met a cow eating grass in a field.

Cow Wow! What’s that awful smell?

Stinky I’ve run away from a little old lady and a little old man and I can run away from you, too, I can! Run, Run, run as fast as you can. You can’t catch me. I’m the Stinky Cheese Man!

Cow I’ll bet you could give someone two or three stomach aches. I think I’ll just eat weeds.

Narrator So the cow didn’t chase the Stinky Cheese Man either. The Stinky Cheese Man ran and ran until he met some kids playing outside school.

Little Girl Gross! What’s that nasty smell?

Stinky I’ve run away from a little old lady and a little old man, and a cow, and I can run away from you too, I can! Run, run, run as fast as you can. You can’t catch me, I’m the Stinky Cheese man!

Little Boy If we catch him, our teacher will probably make us eat him. Let’s get out of here.

Narrator So the kids didn’t chase the Stinky Cheese Man either. By and by the Stinky Cheese Man came to a river with no bridge.
Stinky: How will I ever cross this river? It’s too big to jump, and if I try to swim across I’ll probably fall apart.

Narrator: Just then the sly fox (who shows up in a lot of stories like these) poked his head out of the bushes.

Fox: Why, just hop on my back and I’ll carry you across, Stinky Cheese Man.

Stinky: How do I know you won’t eat me?

Fox: Trust me.

Narrator: So the Stinky Cheese Man hopped on the fox’s back. The fox swam to the middle of the river and said...

Fox: Oh, Man! What is that funky smell?

Narrator: The fox coughed, gagged, and sneezed...and the Stinky Cheese Man flew off his back and into the river where he fell apart.

THE END
The Big, Bad Wolf was taking a walk one day when he saw Mother Hen hanging out her wash. He gazed at the things hanging on the line, and he had to admit that they looked very fine indeed.

Wolf: Hmmm...

Thought the Wolf.

Wolf: There are goodies to be had here.

So he stopped for a chat.

Wolf: Good morning! How about if I eat you up and steal all your goodies?

Hen: Thank you very much.

Squawked Mother Hen.

But wouldn’t you like a nice bowl of soup first?
Wolf: That’s very kind of you.

N-2: Said the Big, Bad Wolf...smiling.

Wolf: First, I’ll have some soup, and then, I’ll eat you.

N-1: Mother Hen picked up a stone from the yard.

Hen: I’ll make Grandmother’s favorite stone soup. It’s a very special treat.

Wolf: It must be. I’ve had soup at all the best places, and I’ve never heard of it.

N-1: Mother Hen boiled some water and dropped the stone into the pot. The Wolf didn’t believe you could make soup from a stone, so he sipped a spoonful.

Wolf: Peeee-eeeww!

N-2: He spat.

Wolf: It just tastes like hot water.

Hen: Of course it does.

N-2: Snapped Mother Hen.

Hen: It needs a little salt and pepper to bring out the flavor of the stone. While I season it, why don’t you wash some dishes?

Wolf: Okay!

N-2: Said the Big, Bad Wolf... laughing.
When the Wolf had finished the dishes, he tasted the soup again.

Wolf Yeee-uccch!

He howled.

Wolf It’s worse! Now it’s just hot salty water!

Maybe a couple of carrots will help the stone to cook. While you’re waiting, perhaps you could vacuum the house.

Wolf Okay!

Said the Big, Bad Wolf... grinning.

The Wolf took another taste.

It isn’t much better.

Potatoes!

Cried Mother Hen.

Bless me, I forgot the potatoes.

And she went to dig some up.

While you’re waiting, you could bring the wash inside before it rains.

Okay.

Said the Big, Bad Wolf.

Mother Hen let the Wolf taste the soup again.
Wolf It’s better.

Hen But not quite right.

N-2 Fussed Mother Hen.

Hen While I get some turnips, could you just cut that into a few logs?

N-1 She handed him a tiny ax and pointed to a huge tree.

Hen And by the time you’re finished, the stone soup should be just about ready.

Wolf Okay.

N-2 Muttered the Big, Bad Wolf.

N-1 When the tree was chopped into logs, the Wolf took yet another taste.

Wolf It’s fine. Let’s eat it now.

N-1 Mother Hen took a sip.

Hen Not yet. A little barley will really add to the flavor of the stone. While you’re waiting, be an angel and fix the TV antenna on the roof.

Wolf Okay.

N-2 Groaned the Big, Bad Wolf.

Wolf The soup smells delicious!

N-2 Panted the Wolf when he came down from the roof.
Hen  Hmm...

N-2  Sniffed Mother Hen.

Hen  There’s something missing...err...mushrooms, that’s what it needs...mushrooms!

N-1  The Wolf just stared.

Hen  While you’re waiting for the mushrooms to simmer, you just have time to sweep the chimney.

N-2  Said Mother Hen, smiling.

Wolf  Okay.

N-2  Snarled the Big, Bad Wolf.

N-1  By the time the Wolf had finished with the chimney, Mother Hen had thrown some beans, a little cabbage, a handful of lentils, and a zucchini into the pot. Proudly, she gave the Wolf a taste. He was delighted.

Wolf  Who would have thought...

N-2  He sighed.

Wolf  ...that a simple stone could make such a glorious soup?

Hen  I’m glad you liked it.

N-2  Said Mother Hen when the Wolf had finished the soup.
Hen And now you can eat me.

Wolf I couldn’t!

N-2 Burped the Wolf.

Wolf I’m too full.

Hen Imagine that. Then you’ll just have to steal my goodies and get away.

N-1 All at once the Big, Bad Wolf leaped to his feet. He gave a terrible roar and then...

N-2 He snatched the stone and ran away.

Murray

Pants  Narrator  Mother  Shirt

Belt  Underwear  Socks

Sneakers

Mother: Murray, are you up? It's time to get dressed.

Narrator: Murray woke up.

Mother: Did You hear me? It's late.

Murray: I'm up mom. I am getting dressed.

Narrator: Murray slid out of bed.

Murray: Where are those pants? I’m sure I left them on the chair.

Narrator: He saw a pant leg sticking out from under his bed.
He grabbed for it, but it slid farther under.

Murray: Get over here

Narrator: Murray said to his pants

Pants: Why?
Murray: Because I have to get dressed.
Pants: Why?
Murray: Cut that out and come here!
Pants: Can't make me.
Narrator: said his pants, hopping onto the bed.
Pants: Besides, you don't even have your underwear on yet.
Murray: Oops .... you are right
Narrator: said Murray.
The pants bounced on the bed.
Murray took off his pajamas and looked in his drawer.
Murray: Any clean underwear in here?
Underwear: No!
Narrator: yelled the underwear, and out jumped all his socks
Murray: I see you...
Narrator: Murray said to the underwear he saw hiding under a T-shirt.
Underwear: Where are we going today?
Murray: School
Underwear: Not again!
Murray: Stop wriggling! I can't get you on.

Pants: Guess who?

Narrator: asked the pants, as they jumped on Murray's head.

Murray: Get off!

Pants: Catch me!

Narrator: giggled the pants

Murray: I Will!

Socks: We'll help!

Narrator: cried the socks. They chased the pants over the bed and around the room. Murray put a gorilla shirt on. Unfortunately he put it on backwards.

Murray: Oops!

Narrator: He struggled to turn the shirt around.

Shirt: Careful! You're twisting my arm.

Murray: Sorry

Pants: Wait'll we put you in the washer. You'll see what twisted is.

Narrator: sneered the pants as they jumped up to the light on the ceiling.
Murray: Come on you guys, HELP!
Belt: I'll get him down. Make me into a lasso, and we'll rope him!
Narrator: yelled the belt
Murray: Good plan.
Pants: Ha ha, you can't get me.
Narrator: yelled the pants. Murray made a lasso, twirled it and...
Pants: Missed!!!
Belt: Get me down!
Narrator: yelled the belt
Pants: This is FUN. I love FUN! I've been...BORED! I want to JUMP, LEAP, RUN ... I'm sick of SITTING!
Murray: I feel the same way.
Narrator: Said Murray.
Mother: Murray, breakfast is on the table.
Narrator: Murray's mother shouted
Murray: Look,
Narrator: Murray said to his pants
Murray: I'll run all the way to school. I'll roll down the biggest hill in the park on the way home. I'll fill your pockets with wonderful things. Please come down.

Pants: What wonderful things?

Murray: Pennies, pistachios, puzzles, seashells, a flashlight, a race car, a tiny Swiss army knife.

Pants: Yes!!!! How about a yo-yo? I LOVE YO-YO's. Let's go!

Belt, shirt, and socks: Yaay!!!

Narrator: The pants jumped onto Murray's legs.

Socks: Are you ready for us?

Narrator: yelled the socks

Murray: One purple and one orange please.

Narrator: said Murray. The socks jumped onto his feet.

Murray: Sneakers!!

Sneakers: Is it time to go? I overslept.

Murray: Where is your partner?

Sneakers: How should I know?
Narrator: said the sneaker, and hopped onto Murray's foot.

Sneakers: Regular knot or double?

Murray: Double

Narrator: said Murray, looking around the room while his shoe tied a neat double knot.

Mother: MURRAY!! This is It. Come down and have your breakfast. Your left sneaker is under the table waiting for you.

Murray: We're coming

Narrator: And they all slid down the banister to breakfast.

THE END
Father: I’m going to make something special for your mother.

N-1: Julian and Huey’s mother were out shopping. His father was in the kitchen, looking at the pots and the pans and all the jars.

Julian: What are you going to make?

N-2: Said Julian.

Father: A pudding.

N-1: Julian’s father is a big man. When he laughs, the sun laughs in the window panes. However, when he is angry, Julian and his little brother, Huey, shiver to the bottom of their shoes.

Huey: What kind of pudding will you make?

N-2: Huey asked.
Father
A wonderful pudding. It will taste like a whole raft of lemons. It will taste like a night on the sea.

N-1 Julian’s father began cracking eggs and mixing all the ingredients. He even squeezed fresh lemons. Once finished mixing, he put the pudding on the stove. The pudding began to boil and cream splashed on the stove.

Father
Wipe that up, Huey!

N-2 The pudding began to boil. As Julian’s father stirred it, it got thicker and thicker.

Father
Just right, it is finished!

N-1 Julian’s father and the boys began to clean up.

Father
Now I am going to take a nap. If something happens, bother me. If nothing important happens, don’t bother me. And...the pudding is for your mother. Leave the pudding alone!

N-2 He went to the living room and was asleep in a minute, sitting straight up in his chair. Huey and Julian guarded the pudding.

Huey
Oh, it is a wonderful pudding.

N-2 Said Huey.

Huey
With waves on top like the ocean.

N-1 Said Julian.

Huey
I wonder how it tastes?
Julian Leave the pudding alone.

Huey If I just put my finger in-there-I’ll know how it tastes.

N-2 And Huey did it.

Julian You did it! How did it taste?

Huey It tastes like a whole raft of lemons, it tastes like a night on the sea.

Julian You made a hole in the pudding!

N-1 Julian shouted.

Julian But since you did it, I’ll have a taste.

N-2 And it tasted like a whole night of lemons. It tasted like a floating sea.

Huey It’s such a big pudding.

N-1 Said Huey.

Huey It can’t hurt to have a little more.

Julian Since you took more, I’ll have more.

Huey That was a bigger lick than I took.

N-1 Exclaimed Huey.

Huey I’m going to have more again!

Julian Whoops!
Huey  Julian, you put your whole hand in it! Look at the pudding you spilled on the floor!

Julian  I’m going to clean it up!

N-1  And he took a rag from the sink and began to clean.

Huey  Julian, that is not very clean.

Julian  It is the best I can do!

Huey  Now look at the pudding.

N-1  It looked like craters on the moon. Julian and Huey took spoons and began to smooth the pudding over.

N-2  The two boys evened it and evened it and ate some more.

Julian  Hey Huey, there isn’t much pudding left! We better get out of here!

N-1  The two boys ran to their bedrooms and crawled underneath a bed. After a long time they heard their father’s voice.

N-2  Julian and Huey’s mother were home. They heard their father open the refrigerator door to show her the pudding.

Father  WHERE ARE THE BOYS!!!

N-1  His voice went through every corner of the house.

Father  WHERE ARE YOU? I SAID!
Huey whispered.

Huey  I’m scared.

They heard their father walking slowly through each room.

Huey  HUEY! JULIAN!

They could see his feet coming into their room.

He lifted the bedspread and shouted.

Father  STAND UP! What do you want to tell me?

Julian and I were outside and when we came back in, the pudding was gone!

Then, why were you hiding under the bed?

The boys didn’t say a word, they just looked at each other.

I can tell you one thing, there is going to be a beating here and now! There is going to be some whipping! Go into the kitchen.

They both hurried into the kitchen.

See these eggs, crack’em and beat them!

Huey started to cry, his tears fell in the egg yolks.

Huey, are you ready for a whipping? Come here!
N-1 Huey approached his father.

Father Whip these egg whites!

N-2 Huey and Julian whipped and beat the eggs until they could whip and beat no more.

Father Congratulations boys, your whipping and beating are over!

N-1 He took the newly whipped and beaten eggs and mixed them in with the old pudding. Then he passed the pudding over to his wife.

Mother What a wonderful pudding!

N-2 Said Huey and Julian’s mother.

Mother Would you boys like some?

N-1 The two boys looked at each other with a smile and said.

Julian & Huey: NO THANK YOU!!!

Narrator: Julian, his brother Huey, and best friend Gloria, were left home on their own while mother attended a meeting and their father ran an errand.

Father: Will you kids be all right till I get back?

Kids: Sure!

Father: Fine. I may have a surprise for you.

Kids: Great!

Gloria: I wonder what your surprise will be!

Huey: Me too!

Narrator off the: All of the kids stayed in the back yard jumping off the swing. They didn’t hear their dad come back. It started getting dark and hard to see.

Huey: I jumped farther than you did!
Julian: No you didn’t!

Huey: Did too.

Julian: Did not...BEAN SPROUT!

Father: Did not...WHAT?

Narrator: Father had already come home and was sitting on the porch while Julian and his brother were arguing.

Julian: I only said, “did not.”

Huey: He called me, “BEAN SPROUT!”

Father: BEAN SPROUT? HE CALLED YOU BEAN SPROUT?

Gloria: I think I’ll go home.

Narrator: Father sat on the porch and looked at the children with a sly smile. He set a box down next to them.

Father: Gloria, wait just a minute! I have something to share with the boys. Come back.

Huey: (softly) We can forget about the surprise.

Narrator: Huey whispered to Julian.

Huey: A surprise is coming. But it won’t be nice.

Narrator: All of the children followed their father into the house.

Julian: Are you going to send us to our room?
Father No.

Narrator He said with a scary smile.

Huey Are you going to make us wash windows?

Father No.

Narrator Father said...smiling like a tiger.

Gloria What are you going to do?

Father I have an idea for these boys.

Narrator He grinned at Gloria...as if they were best friends.

Father I think they need to go through a potentially dangerous situation together. Then they may like each other more.

Julian What do you mean, “a potentially dangerous situation?”

Father I mean one that could be dangerous if you don’t handle it right. I know you boys like animals. It wouldn’t be anything much. Something like...live alligators. Maybe...sharks!

Huey Sharks!

Narrator Huey grabbed onto Julian’s hand.

Father Now you boys make yourselves comfortable. Gloria and I will be back in a minute.
Narrator    Gloria looked back at Julian and Huey as if saying goodbye forever. The boys sat on the couch for what seemed like a million years, waiting for Gloria and father to return. When they finally returned, they were carrying the box father had left on the porch.

Father      Hold it level, Gloria.

Narrator    Inside the package something skittered.

Huey        Not sharks. Maybe...live snakes.

Narrator    Gloria and father set the box down in front of everyone. It was tied with a strong cord. Julian moved his feet away from it.

Father      Now your job...will be to open the box.

Julian      I don’t want to.

Narrator    Gloria looked at Julian sympathetically and even father looked a little bit sorry.

Father      I don’t want you to go into this without a fighting chance.

Narrator    Father went into the kitchen to retrieve something.

Julian      Gloria! Do you know what’s inside there? Would you say it’s really dangerous?

Gloria      I would say that if I were you. I would say my prayers.
Father: Well, here you are. I figured two kitchen knives would help you. But the knives are for later. You have to open the box with your bare hands. And be gentle. That’s a good box. I may want to use it again. Here, I’ll help you a little bit.

Narrator: Father took one of the knives and cut the cord on the box. That left only a little piece of tape on top between... whatever it was...and the boys. They took hold of one top flap of the box. They pulled in opposite directions so hard they fell on the floor. Nothing came out of the box at them.

Huey: It’s the surprise! They’re baby rabbits!

Father: Well, what are their names?

Julian: Mine is Jake.

Father: And what about you, Huey?

Huey: Wait a minute. I have to think.

Narrator: With a big grin on his face, he exclaimed,

Huey: BEAN SPROUT!

CAST

Grandpa   Louie   Mary Ann   Teacher

Grandpa   Hello, Mary Ann!  Greetings, Louie!
           How was your first day at school?

Mary Ann  Terrible Grandpa!

Louie     I hated every minute!

Grandpa  That bad, eh?

Mary Ann  The boys made faces at me. It was no fun at all.

Louie     The teacher told me to sit down and be quiet.

Grandpa  Maybe tomorrow will be better.

Mary Ann  I don’t think I’m going back.
Louie: Me either.

Grandpa: Well, the first day is always hard.

Louie: It is?

Mary Ann: Was your first day hard, Grandpa?

Grandpa: Dreadful! I don’t even like to think about it!

Mary Ann: What part don’t you like to think about, Grandpa?

Grandpa: On that dreadful day, I got up very early so I’d be right on time. There was a drizzle and a dense fog. I walked and walked, but I couldn’t find the school. Somewhere the school bell was ringing. It made a dismal sound.

Mary Ann: Maybe you should have gone home!

Grandpa: Perhaps, but just then the fog cleared, and there was the school!

Louie: Did it look nice Grandpa?

Louie: You shouldn’t have gone into that school, Grandpa!

Grandpa: Well, you two went into yours, didn’t you?

Mary Ann: Yes, but ours isn’t at all scary!

Grandpa: I looked inside. The room was huge and still. As I walked through the door, something grabbed me!

Teacher: You’re late!

Grandpa: It said in a scary voice.

Teacher: Sit down and be AB- SO- LUTE- LY silent! Now class, are we ever late for school?

All: No, Mr. Smeal! (loud)

Teacher: Are we always right on time?

All: Yes, Mr. Smeal! (louder)

Teacher: Louder!

All: Yes, Mr. Smeal! (loudest)

Teacher: Softer! (quietly)

All: Yes, Mr. Smeal (whisper)

Teacher: All together now!

All: Yes, Mr. Smeeeeeaaal!
Teacher

Lovely.

Teacher

What’s the school cheer?

All

(in rhythmic cadence):

Sis boom ba
Sis boom ba
We have the most rules...
Ha-ha-ha
Yeah!

Teacher

And each rule is more important than the other!

All

Yes, Mr. Smeal!

Teacher

But what’s the most important rule of all, class?

All

(loudly) Never squeak the chalk!

Teacher

Correct! And why?

All

Because you hate that sound, Mr. Smeal.

Teacher

Yes...yes...it makes me get...upset.

Mary Ann

Our teacher isn’t anywhere near as bad as Mr. Smeal, Grandpa!

Grandpa

Oh, I’m glad to hear that.

Louie

Did things get better as the day went on, Grandpa?
Grandpa  No...

Teacher  You (Pointing at Grandpa). What is the largest country in the world?

Grandpa (as a child) Uh...Chicago? No wait.......... Switzerland?

Teacher  Oh, I love it when they don’t know! Read this book aloud! (Hands a book to Grandpa)

Grandpa (as a child) I...I don’t know these words.

Teacher  You’re reading it upside down and backwards! I’ll give you one minute to answer this question! When did Columbus discover America? Time’s up! When was it?

Grandpa  Uh...Quarter of six?

Teacher  Here’s one last chance...What’s 765 times 312?

Grandpa  Ummm...17...no wait...319...no...6?

Teacher  Now class, what do we call a stupid child like this?

All  A DUNCE, Mr. Smeal!

Grandpa (as himself) I was put in the back of the room.
Mary Ann: Gee, Grandpa, our teacher would never do that to us.

Grandpa: I should hope not!

Teacher: It is time for my mid-morning fig newton. You children sit absolutely still until I come back!

All: Yes, Mr. Smeal!

Teacher: Don’t speak...Don’t move! (leaves)

All: Yes, Mr. Smeal!

Grandpa: (as a child) He’s opening the box...he’s.... munching...All right, here’s what we do!

Mary Ann: But what if Mr. Smeal caught you Grandpa?

Grandpa: That’s just what happened a few moments later...

Teacher: What are you doing at the blackboard, children?

All: Getting ready to write with our chalk, Mr. Smeal! Everybody all together now! (make chalk noises on the chalkboard) (Teacher runs out of room screaming!)

Grandpa: We watched Mr. Smeal go running down the road. He got smaller and smaller, and was never seen again! The next day, we had a new teacher who was very, very nice!
Mary Ann  Do you think our teacher may turn out to be nice, Grandpa?

Grandpa  They generally do!

Mary Ann  You know what? I think I might go to school tomorrow.

Louie  It can’t hurt to give it one more try.

Grandpa  Sounds like a pretty good idea!

Hubie
It’s the first day of school. I wonder who my teacher is. I hear Mr. Smith has dandruff and warts, and Mrs. Jones has a whip and a wig. But Mrs. Green is supposed to be a real monster. Oh my, I have her!!!

Narrator
Mrs. Green...Room 109.

Hubie
What a bummer!!!

Narrator
Hubie sits at a desk, folds his hands, and closes his eyes.

Hubie
I’m too young to die!
Narrator  Suddenly a shadow covers the door. It opens...in slithers Mrs. Green. She’s really green!! She has a tail. She scratches her name on the blackboard with her claws!!

Narrator 2  Freddy Jones throws a spitball. She curls her lip and breathes fire at him. Poof!! Freddy’s gone.

Hubie  There is just a little pile of ashes on his desk.

Eric Porter  (giggles)  Talk about bad breath!

Narrator 2  She slithers over, unscrews his head, and puts it on the globe stand.

Hubie  I bet she gives homework the first day of school.

Mrs. Green  Your homework for today is pages 1 to 200 in you math book...all the fraction problems!

Derek Bloom  We’ve never had fractions!

Mrs. Green  Come up here!

Narrator  Derek stands by her desk.

Mrs. Green  This is a whole boy.

Narrator  She takes a big bite.

Mrs. Green.  This is half a boy. Now...you’ve had fractions!
Randy Potts What about spelling?

Mrs. Green Spelling can be fun! Spell, Abracadabra Kazam.

Randy Potts That’s tough to spell!

Narrator 2 Suddenly there’s a flash of light, a puff of smoke, and Randy’s a frog!

Narrator Penny Weber raises her hand.

Penny Weber Can I go to the nurse?

Mrs. Green What’s wrong?

Penny Weber I have a huge headache.

Narrator 2 Mrs. Green wriggles her fingers. There’s another flash of light and Penny’s head is the size of a pin!

Mrs. Green Better?? Now it’s nap time. Everyone who still has one, put your head on your desk.

Hubie I hope to make it to recess!

Mrs. Green SWEET DREAMS!!!

Narrator Suddenly the bell rings. Hubie wakes up. There’s a pretty woman writing her name on the black board. She has a real skin and no tail.

Mrs. Green I’m Mrs. Green, your teacher.
Narrator     He jumps out of his chair, runs up and hugs her.
Mrs. Green   Well, thank you! I’m glad to be here!
Hubie        Not as glad as I am!!!

Narrator: Liza looked out the window and saw a bear sitting in the garden, so she went outside and asked him,

Liza: What are you doing in my garden!

Bear: I'm here for a visit.

Liza: Why?

Bear: Why not?

Liza: Don't know exactly.

Bear: Exactly... and by the way, when bears come to visit they usually get invited in.
Liza: Oh, please come in.
Narrator: The bear looked around the kitchen.
Liza: Would you like something to eat?
Bear: Like what?
Liza: Porridge.
Bear: What makes you think bears like porridge?
Liza: Well... When Goldilocks went to the three bears' house...
Bear: Oh, that, you didn't believe any of that, did you? Next, you will be saying that all bears like honey.
Narrator: The bear poured himself a cup of coffee.
Liza: What's your name?
Bear: Jam.
Liza: Nobody is called Jam.
Bear: I am.
Liza: How come?
Narrator: The bear helped himself to a cookie and said,
Bear: My mother loved jam more than anything in the world then she had me and loved me more than anything in the world, so she called me Jam.

Liza: I see, it just seems like a funny name for a bear.

Narrator: But Liza didn't see at all and bear wasn't listening. He'd turned on the radio and was dancing and spilling potato chips everywhere. He danced into the hall, twisting and twirling, and into the living room, and then lay down on the sofa.

Liza: You're a good dancer.

Bear: I know.

Narrator: He then picked up the newspaper.

Bear: I am also brilliant at crossword puzzles.

Liza: That's showing off.

Bear: What is?

Liza: Boasting about how good you are at something.

Bear: Oh no, boasting is very unattractive in a child, but boasting when you're a bear is quite acceptable.

Liza: Really!
Bear: Yes, really. Now, what is the word for something you can't stand... ten letters?

Liza: I don't know.

Bear: Unbearable.

Liza: That's brilliant.

Bear: Yes, I told you I was.

Narrator: He jumped up and started to dance again.

Bear: I dance the tango best of all.

Liza: What's the tango?

Narrator: The bear took a rose from the vase, placed it between his teeth and grabbed Liza around the waist, and marched up and down the room singing and leaping and swirling Liza around with him until she fell down in a breathless heap.

Bear: Now that was the tango. Of course, you have to practice a lot before you can do it as well as me. What's upstairs?

Narrator: Bear asked even though he was already upstairs.

Liza: My room.
Bear: It needs trees.

Liza: Trees?

Bear: Definitely. A few big trees growing in here would give it style, make it more like a forest.

Liza: But people don't have trees growing in their rooms, and who'd want to live in a forest?

Narrator: The bear picked up Liza's school jacket. He tried to put it on and it split right down the middle.

Bear: Badly made.

Liza: You're too big for it.

Bear: No, no. If a jacket doesn't fit a bear, there's something wrong with the jacket, not something wrong with the bear. Always remember that.

Narrator: He went into the bathroom and climbed into the tub. It was a very tight fit.

Bear: This tub is too small.

Liza: Well, it's big enough for me.

Bear: What's the use of that if it's not big enough for a bear?
Narrator: Just then, Liza heard her mother come in; she'd been chatting with their next-door neighbor.

Mother: Time for dinner.

Liza: There's a bear in the bath!

Mother: Is there, sweetheart? That's nice. What's his name?

Liza: Jam.

Mother: Oh, I forgot it. Never mind, I'll get some tomorrow.

Narrator: When Liza went back into the bathroom the bear was drinking shampoo and wearing frilly underwear on his head.

Bear: How do I look?

Liza: You look like a bear with frilly underwear on his head.

Narrator: Before Liza was finished the bear had gone into her brother's room. Jack was standing up in his crib, looking rosy from his nap.

Jack: Teddy!

Narrator: Jack was very excited to see Jam.

Bear: No! Jam. He's not very bright, is he?

Liza: Well, he's only two.
Bear: When I was two, I could count up to 1,104 and play the violin.

Narrator: Bear scooped Jack out of his crib and Liza's mother called from downstairs.

Mother: Liza have you finished your homework yet?

Liza: Mommy, there's a bear in Jack's room giving Jack a bear hug.

Mother: That's nice, tell Jack to say thank you.

Bear: I think it's time to go.

Liza: Where to?

Bear: Oh, just somewhere. I lead a very busy life, you know. I've got a singing lesson at four.

Liza: I didn't know that bears sang.

Bear: Let's face it, you didn't know much at all about bears until you met me.

Liza: That's true.

Bear: What will you do when I've gone?

Liza: I have to do my homework, I have to write about what I've done today.
Bear: That's easy, just write that you met this totally wonderful, clever, fascinating bear.

Liza: No one would believe me.

Narrator: And they didn't.

THE END
THOMAS’ SNOWSUIT

Author - Robert Munsch

(Arranged for Reader’s Theater by Erin McPhail)
(Student in Mr. Servis’ Class - 5th Grade)

Narrator 1 Mother
Narrator 2 Principal
Thomas Teacher

Narrator 1 One day Thomas’ mother bought Thomas a nice new brown snowsuit.

Mother Thomas, here is your nice new brown snowsuit.

Thomas Ugh! That is the ugliest thing I’ve ever seen. If you think I’m going to wear that you’re the weirdest mom in this solar system!

Mother We’ll see about that!

Narrator 2 It is now the next day and time to go to school.

Mother Thomas, go put on your nice new brown snowsuit.

Thomas Nnnnnnnno!
Narrator 1  Thomas’ mother jumped up and down.

Mother  Thomas... put on that snow suit or else!

Thomas  Nnnnnnnno!

Narrator 2  Thomas’ mother picked him up in one hand and the snowsuit in the other hand, she tried to stick them together. They had an enormous fight and when it was done... Thomas was in his snowsuit!

Thomas  You win!

Narrator 1  Thomas went off to school and hung up his snowsuit. When it was time to go outside all the other kids jumped into their snowsuits and ran out the door. But, not Thomas! The teacher looked at him.

Teacher  Thomas, please put on your snowsuit.

Thomas  Nnnnnnnno!

Narrator 2  The teacher jumped up and down.

Teacher  Thomas, PLEASE PUT ON YOUR SNOWSUIT!

Thomas  Nnnnnnnno!
Narrator 1: So the teacher picked up Thomas in one hand...picked up the snowsuit in the other hand and tried to stick them together. They had an enormous fight...and when they were done... the teacher had on Thomas’ snowsuit and Thomas was wearing the teacher’s dress.

Narrator 2: When the teacher found out what she was wearing, she picked up Thomas in one hand and tried to get Thomas in his snowsuit. They had an enormous fight and when they were finished... the dress and snowsuit was in a knot on the floor. The teacher and Thomas were in their underclothes. Then the principal walked in.

Teacher: It’s Thomas. He won’t put on his snowsuit.

Narrator 1: The principal gave him his best principal look.

Principal: Thomas, put on your snowsuit.

Thomas: Nnnnnnnno!
Narrator 2  So the principal picked up Thomas in one hand and he picked up the teacher in the other hand... and he tried to get them back in their clothes. When he was done... the principal was wearing the teacher’s dress... the teacher was wearing the principal’s suit... and Thomas was still in his underwear.

Narrator 1  Someone from the playground called for Thomas to come out and play, so Thomas put on his snowsuit, got his boots on in two seconds and ran out the door.

Thomas  Bye!

Principal  Hey, you have my suit on. Take it off right now!

Teacher  Oh, no! You have on my dress. You take off my dress!

Narrator 2  Well, they argued and argued and argued... but neither one wanted to change first.

Narrator 1  Thomas came in from recess. Thomas picked up the principal in one hand, the teacher in the other. They had an enormous fight! When it was over... everyone was in their clothes.
Narrator 2 The next day the principal quit his job and moved to Arizona where nobody ever wore a snowsuit!

All: The End!
Once upon a time, there were three billy goats. One was very small, one was middle-sized, and one was very large. They were all named GRUFF, so people simply called them THE THREE BILLY GOATS GRUFF.

This morning, let's go to the hillside beyond the bridge. The grass over there is especially tall and green and tender.

BUT UNDER THAT BRIDGE was a deep, swift river and A GREAT BIG, UGLY TROLL!

I shall cross that bridge first. (stomp feet)

Who's that tripping across my bridge?
Small Billy Goat
It's only me, the smallest Billy Goat Gruff. I'm going over to yonder hillside where the grass is so tall and green and tender.

Troll
NO YOU'RE NOT, BECAUSE I'M GOING TO EAT YOU UP!

Small Billy Goat
Oh, no! Please do not eat me up! I'm much too small to make a meal for you. Wait for the second Billy Goat Gruff... he's MUCH bigger than I am!

Troll
Well, maybe you're right, so be off with you!

(troll goes back under the bridge)
(small billy goat runs to the green hillside)

Middle-sized Billy Goat
I shall cross over the bridge to reach the greener hillside. (stomp feet)

TROLL
WHO'S TRIPPING ACROSS MY BRIDGE?

Middle-sized Billy Goat
It's me, the second Billy Goat Gruff. But please don't eat me. The biggest Billy Goat Gruff is right behind me, and he is MUCH bigger!

Troll
Well, get on with you. I'll wait for the big one!

(Troll goes back under the bridge)
(middle-sized billy goat runs to the green hillside)

Biggest Billy Goat
I shall cross the bridge to reach the green hillside. (stomp feet loudly)
Troll
WHO'S THAT TRAMPING OVER MY BRIDGE?

Biggest Billy Goat
It's me, the BIGGEST BILLY GOAT GRUFF!
(loud voice)

Troll
WHOEVER YOU ARE, I'M GOING TO EAT YOU UP RIGHT NOW!
(climb on top of bridge)

Biggest Billy Goat
Well, come on then! I've got sharp horns to bull you with! And hard hooves to trample you with!

Narrator
THAT'S WHAT THE BIG BILLY GOAT SAID. THEN THE BIG BILLY GOAT RAN AT THE TROLL AND THE TROLL RAN AT THE BILLY GOAT!
The big billy goat butted the ugly troll with his sharp horns and trampled him with his sharp hooves. Then he butted him again and knocked him off the bridge and into the DEEP, SWIFT RIVER BELOW.

(biggest billy goat stomps across the bridge and onto the hillside)

Narrator
The great ugly troll was never seen again, and if the three Billy Goats Gruff haven't gone away, they are still on that hillside, getting fatter every day.

CHARACTERS:

Narr. 1
1st Javelina
3rd Javelina

Narr. 2
2nd Javelina
Bad Coyote

Narr. 1 Once upon a time there were three little javelinas (ha-ve-LEE-nas). Javelinas are wild, hairy, southwestern cousins of pigs. The javelinas were walking in the desert to find their fortune until they came to a path that was divided. They were all separated.

Narr. 2 The first javelina built a house out of tumbleweeds, but to no avail. Along came a coyote who laughed when he saw the tumbleweed house and smelled the javelina inside.
Bad Coyote  Mmmm! A tender juicy piggy!
Narr. 1     The coyote called out sweetly.
Bad Coyote  Little pig, little pig, let me come in!
1st Javelina Not by the hair of my chinny-chin-chin
Narr. 1     Said the first javelina.
Bad Coyote  Then I’ll huff and I’ll pig, and I’ll blow your house in!
Narr. 1     And he huffed, and he puffed, and he blew the little tumbleweed house away. Fortunately the first javelina was able to escape and ran to his second javelina brother’s house.
Narr. 2     The second javelina built his house out of parts from a giant cactus plant called saguaros (sa-WA-ros). The first javelina arrived, soon after his brother finished his house out of saguaros. Pretty soon the bad coyote found the house and again he called:
Bad Coyote  Little pig, little pig, let me come in!
1st Javelina No! not by the hair of my chinny-chin-chin!
Narr. 1     Said the first javelina.
Bad Coyote  Bah! I am not goin’ to eat your hair.
Narr. 1 So he huffed and he puffed and the saguaro came tumbling down. Fortunately, once again the two javelinas were able to escape in time into the desert to their sister javelina’s house.

Narr. 2 The third javelina built herself a solid little adobe house, cool in summer and warm in winter. When her brothers found her, she welcomed them in and locked the door behind them. The coyote followed their trail and again he knocked on the door and yelled:

Bad Coyote Little pig, little pig, let me come in!

Narrator This time the Coyote pretended to be very old and weak, with no teeth and a sore paw. They weren’t fooled.

3rd Javelina No! Not by the hair of my chinny-chin-chin!

Bad Coyote Then I’ll huff and I’ll puff and I’ll blow your house in.

Narr. 2 Said the Bad Coyote.

3rd Javelina Just try it!

Narr. 1 The three little javelinas peeked out the window but nothing happened.

Narr. 2 The Coyote decided to climb upon the tin roof and use his magic to make himself very skinny in order to climb down the stove pipe.
3rd Javelina  The stove pipe!
Narr. 1  Gasped the third javelina. Quickly she lighted a fire inside her wood stove.
Bad Coyote  I think I'll eat them with red hot chile sauce!
Narr. 1  Said the bad Coyote
Narr. 2  As the bad Coyote swept down the stove pipe the three little javelinas heard an amazing noise. It was not a scream or a howl, it was all the sounds put together.
Bad Coyote  Yiiiipp! Yaaaapp! Yeee-oowww-oooooooooooo!
Narr. 1  Away ran a puff of smoke shaped like a coyote. The three little javelinas lived happily after in the adobe house.
Narr. 2  And if you ever hear Coyote's voice, way out in the desert at night. . . well, you know what he's remembering!

If strolling through the woods one day,

Right there in front of you you saw
A pig who’d built his house of STRAW?
The Wolf who saw it licked his lips,
And said,

Wolf

"That pig has had his chips."

"Little pig, little pig, let me come in!"
Pig 1  “No, no, by the hairs on my chinny-chin-chin!”

Wolf  “Then I’ll huff and I’ll puff and I’ll blow your house in!”

Narr.  The little pig began to pray, But Wolfie blew his house away. He shouted, Wolf  “Bacon, pork and ham! Oh, what a lucky Wolf I am!”

Narr.  And though he ate the pig quite fast, He carefully kept the tail till last. Wolf wandered on, a trifle bloated. Surprise, surprise, for soon he noted Another little house for pigs, And this one had been built of TWIGS!

Wolf  “Little pig, little pig, let me come in!”

Pig 2  “No, no, by the hairs on my chinny-chin-chin!”

Wolf  “Then I’ll huff and I’ll puff and I’ll blow your house in!”

Narr.  The Wolf said,

Wolf  “Okay, here we go!”

Narr.  He then began to blow and blow. The little pig began to squeal. He cried, Pig 2  “Oh Wolf, you’ve had one meal! Why can’t we talk and make a deal?”

Narr.  The Wolf replied,

Wolf  “Not on your nelly!”

Narr.  And soon the pig was in his belly.

Wolf  “Two juicy little pigs!”

Narr.  Wolf cried,

Wolf  “But still I am not satisfied! I know full well my tummy’s bulging, But oh, how I adore indulging.” So creeping quietly as a mouse, The Wolf approached another house, A house which also had inside A little piggy trying to hide.

But this one, Piggy Number Three, Was bright and brainy as could be. No straw for him, no twigs or sticks. This pig had built his house of BRICKS.

Pig 3  “You’ll not get me!”

Narr.  The Piggy cried.

Wolf  “I’ll blow you down!”

Narr.  The Wolf replied.

Pig 3  “You’ll need,”

Narr.  Pig said,
Pig 3  “A lot of puff,
And I don’t think you’ve got enough.”

Narr.  Wolf huffed and puffed and blew and blew.
The house stayed up as good as new.

Wolf  “If I can’t blow it down,”

Narr.  Wolf said,

The number of Red Riding Hood.

Red  “Hello,”

Narr.  She said.

Red  “Who’s speaking? Who?
Oh, hello Piggy, how d’you do?”

Narr.  Pig cried,

Pig 3  “I need your help, Miss Hood!
Oh, help me, please! D’you think you could?”
“I’ll try, of course,”

Miss Hood replied.

“What’s on your mind...?”

“A Wolf!”

Pig cried.

“I know you’ve dealt with wolves before, And now I’ve got one at my door!”

“My darling Pig,

She said,

“My sweet,
That’s something really up my street.
I’ve just begun to wash my hair.
But when it’s dry, I’ll be right there.”

A short while later, through the wood,
Came striding brave Miss Riding Hood.
The Wolf stood there, his eyes ablaze
And yellowish, like mayonnaise.

His teeth were sharp, his gums were raw,
And spit was dripping from his jaw.
Once more the maiden’s eyelid flickers.
She draws the pistol from her knickers

Once more, she hits the vital spot,
And kills him with a single shot.
Pig, peeping through the window, stood
And yelled,
Pig 3 "Well done, Ms. Riding Hood!"

Narrator       There was an old sow with three little Pigs, and as she had not enough to keep them, she sent them out into the world to seek their fortune.

Narrator       The first that went off met a man with a bundle of straw and said to him...

Pig 1           Please, man, give me that straw to build a house with it.

Narrator       Which the old man did, and the little Pig built a house with it.

Narrator       Presently along came a Wolf, who knocked at the door and said...

Wolf            Little Pig, little Pig, let me come in.

Narrator       To which the Pig answered...
Pig 1  No, no, not by the hair of my chinny chin chin!

Narrator  The wolf answered to that...

Wolf  Then I’ll huff, and I’ll puff, and I’ll blow your house in.

Narrator  So he huffed, and he puffed, and he blew the house in, and ate up the little Pig.

Narrator  The second little Pig met a man with a bundle of twigs and said...

Pig 2  Please, man, give me those twigs to build a house.

Narrator  Which the man did, and the Pig built his house...Then came the wolf and said...

Wolf  Little Pig, little Pig, let me come in.

Pig 2  No, no, not by the hair of my chinny chin chin!

Wolf  Then I’ll huff, and I’ll puff, and I’ll blow your house in.

Narrator  So he huffed, and he puffed, and he huffed, and he puffed, and at last he blew the house down, and he ate up the little Pig.

Narrator  The third little Pig met a man with a load of bricks and said...
Pig 3 Please, man, give me those bricks to build a house with.

Narrator The man gave him the bricks, and he built his house with them...So the wolf came, as he did to the other little Pigs, and said...

Wolf Little Pig, little Pig, let me come in.

Pig 3 No, no, not by the hair on my chinny chin chin!

Wolf Then I’ll huff, and I’ll puff, and I’ll blow your house in.

Narrator Well, he huffed, and he puffed, and he huffed, and he puffed, and he huffed, and he puffed, but he could not get the house down.

All And so the Little Pig lived happily ever after!

N-1: I have had plenty of time from my bed here, at Canine Hospital, to think about the unfortunate accident I had after meeting the three pigs. My bad luck started the day I met them.

N-2: I’d lived in the woods for a long time. I’d never had neighbors...but that’s because no one else had ever moved in. I was so happy when I saw the first little pig. There he was...building his house of straw...right there in my neighborhood.

WOLF: Finally, I’ll have neighbors!

N-3: It didn’t take him long to finish his house and move in his furniture. I was so happy! I skipped up, politely knocked on his door, and said in my softest voice, WOLF: Little pig! Little pig! Please let me come in!

N-4 The walls of the house trembled as he answered in the loudest voice I’d ever heard.

Pig: NO! NO! NO! NOT BY THE HAIR OF MY CHINNY CHIN CHIN!

N-1: Hearing that, I turned around to leave! But to my surprise, down fell the straw house...smothering the little pig. Well, I thought of all the starving wolves all over the woods. I couldn’t just leave the pig lying there...so I sat down and ate him for dinner...right down to the last hair on his chinny chin chin.

N-2: I was so sad about losing a neighbor...even one I hadn’t gotten to know. I thought of all the fun he and I could have had together. By then, the sound of hammering caught my ear. I stood behind a tree, just to see what was going on, and couldn’t believe what I saw! Another little pig was busily building a house of sticks.

N-3: I watched him as he worked. He took a little longer building his house than the first little pig had taken. But then he finished and moved in his furniture.

N-4: I watched him, my mind filled with happy thoughts of the wonderful friendship he and I would have!

N-1 I thought excitedly. Nervously, I walked up to the door and knocked on it. Using my sweetest voice, I said, WOLF: Little pig! Little pig! Please let me come in!

N-2: I could hardly believe it when this pig yelled louder than the first one had. The walls shook as he shouted,

PIG:

NO! NO! NO! NOT BY THE HAIR OF MY CHINNY CHIN CHIN!

N-3: All of a sudden, the whole house fell right down before my very eyes. The poor pig was killed instantly! And again, thinking of all those starving wolves throughout the woods; I ate him too...right down to the last hair of his chinny chin chin.

N-4: I continued my walk homeward making plans to pack my things and move to another neighborhood! I felt that I didn’t have a friend in the world...and I’m a likeable fella. But the sound of whistling interrupted me.

N-1: That’s when I saw the third little pig...whistling away while he built his house of bricks. He worked and worked...while I watched and watched. I wanted to go and help him, but he seemed to take such pride in doing it all by himself. He probably could have finished quicker had he not whistled so much, but finally he finished and moved in his furniture.

N-2: I didn’t know if I should risk introducing myself to him, but I did! Shyly, I went up to the house, knocked on the door, and in my nicest voice asked, WOLF: Little pig! Little pig! Will you please let me come in?

N-3: Well, this pig was even louder than the other two. He yelled,

PIG: NO! NO! NO! NOT BY THE HAIR OF MY CHINNY CHINNY CHIN!

N-4: I stood there...shocked! Why had he yelled at me? I hadn’t done anything to him. Why did he hate me so much? I stepped back, waiting for the house to fall down from all of his yelling. It didn’t, and I really wanted to meet him. I knew he’d like me if he met me. That’s why I ran and jumped on top of the roof.

WOLF: I could go down the chimney and meet him in no time. I could hardly wait!

N-1: But, how was I to know he would have a big kettle of hot water boiling in the fireplace? Waiting just for me... and not for tea either!

N-2: So that’s why I’m lying here in the hospital...furless, bandaged up with three broken legs, and no front teeth. You know...I guess some pigs...(slowly)...just don’t want to make friends!

Narrator
Mrs. Apple’s heart was heavy.
Outside her house, it was summer.
The air was filled with birds and bees and butterflies. But inside, the house was dark and damp. Mrs.
Apple had a brick yard with no grass at all. There was no room for summer.

Mrs. Apple
I need cheering up... I know! I’ll buy a tree in a tub!

Narrator
Mrs. Apple bought a little green tree.
She weeded it, and watered it, but the tree hung it’s head. Its leaves drooped. It needed summertime.

Mrs. Apple
I must send for the tree doctor.

Narrator
The tree doctor came to call. He swung from tree to tree over all the backyards of the city.
Townspeople There goes the tree doctor! Someone has got a sick tree, but he will cure it. The tree doctor landed in Mrs. Apple’s brick yard. He tapped the tree trunk and listened to its little green voice, which no one else could hear.

Tree Doctor What this tree needs is some of my famous pepper-upper. Then it will make its own summertime.

Narrator The pepper-upper came in a green bottle.

Tree Doctor One dose now and another at bedtime.

Narrator And with that, he swung away in the backyard trees.

Mrs. Apple I will give the tree a big dose of pepper-upper now, and then again before bed...hopefully that’ll do the trick.

Narrator Then she got under her patchwork quilt and went to sleep. Morning came, the sun rose. Mrs. Apple woke up. But where was she? Where was her dark bedroom?

Everyone Gone! All Gone!
Narrator: She was still in her bed, but not in her bedroom. She was up among the leaves of a tree. Birds perched at the foot of her bed. Butterflies sat on her patchwork quilt. Summer was all around her! Far below, was a brick yard and a damp, dark house. The tree doctor’s pepper-upper had made the tree grow in the night. One of the branches had grown through the bedroom window and carried Mrs. Apple away.

Mrs. Apple: I don’t mind! I feel happy!

Narrator: She was out in the summer with the birds and the butterflies.

Mrs. Apple: I shall sit here forever!

Narrator: She said to the birds:

Mrs. Apple: I will make a nest for myself and have an umbrella in case it rains! After all, the proper place for an apple is in a tree, isn’t it?

Everyone: Especially in summertime!

THE TRUE STORY OF THE THREE LITTLE PIGS

by A. Wolf as told to Jon Scieszka

Adapted for Reader’s Theater by Kristin McAuliffe

Narrator Pig 2
Wolf Pig 3

Narr. Everybody knows the story of the Three Little Pigs. Or at least they think they do. But no one hears the wolf’s side of the story.

Wolf I’m the wolf. Alexander T. Wolf. You can call me Al. I don’t know how this Big Bad Wolf thing got started, but it’s all wrong. Maybe it’s because of our diet. Hey, it’s not my fault wolves eat cute little animals like bunnies, sheep, and pigs. That’s just the way we are. If cheeseburgers were cute, folks would probably think you were Big and Bad, too. The real story is about a sneeze and a cup of sugar...You’ll see!

Narr. Way back once upon a time, the wolf was making a birthday cake for his dear old granny. He had a terrible sneezing cold, and he ran out of sugar. So he walked down the street to ask his neighbor (a pig) for a cup of sugar.

Wolf This pig must not be too bright, he built his house out of straw. Can you believe it? Who in his right mind would build a house of straw?
Narr. Of course the minute the wolf knocked on the door, it fell right in. The wolf didn’t want to just walk into someone else’s house, so he called...

Wolf Little Pig, Little Pig, are you in?

Narr. There was no answer. The wolf was just about to leave without the cup of sugar for his dear old granny’s birthday cake when he felt a sneeze coming on. He huffed and he snuffed, and sneezed a great sneeze. The whole darn straw house fell down, and right in the middle of the pile of straw was the first little pig. He had been home the whole time.

Wolf It seems like such a shame to leave a perfectly good ham dinner lying there in the straw. I’d better eat it up. Hey... think of it as a big cheeseburger just lying there.

Narr. The wolf was feeling a little bit better, but he still didn’t have his cup of sugar. So he went to the next neighbor’s house. The neighbor was the First Little Pig’s brother. He was a little smarter, but not much. His house was built out of sticks. The wolf rang the doorbell on the stick house. Nobody answered. So the wolf called...

Wolf Mr. Pig, Mr. Pig, are you in?

Pig 2 Go away wolf. You can’t come in. I’m shaving the hair on my chinny chin chin.
Narr. Just then the wolf felt another sneeze coming on. He huffed and he puffed and he tried to cover his mouth, but he sneezed a great sneeze. And you won’t believe it, but this guy’s house fell down just like his brother’s. When the dust cleared, there was the Second Little Pig - dead as a doornail.

Wolf I know food will spoil if you just leave it out in the open. There is only one thing to do...have dinner again! Just think of it as a second helping.

Narr. The wolf was feeling awfully full, but his cold was feeling a little bit better. He still didn’t have that cup of sugar for his dear old granny’s birthday cake, so he went to the next house. This was the First and Second Little Pig’s brother. He must have had the brains in the family. He built his house out of bricks. The wolf knocked on the brick house. Nobody answered, so he called...

Wolf Mr. Pig, Mr. Pig, are you in?

Narr. And the rude little porker answered...

Pig 3 Get out of here, Wolf. Don’t bother me again.

Narr. The wolf knew the pig probably had a whole sackful of sugar, and he wouldn’t even give him one little cup. He thought to himself...

Wolf Talk about impolite! What a pig! Maybe I’ll just go home and make a nice birthday card instead of a cake for my dear old granny.

Narr. Just then the wolf felt his cold coming on. He huffed, and he snuffed, and he sneezed once again. Then the Third Little Pig yelled...
Pig 3  And your old granny can sit on a pin!

Narr.  Now the wolf is usually a pretty calm fellow, but when someone talks about his granny like that, he goes a little crazy. When the cops drove up, of course he was trying to break down this Pig's door. And the whole time he was huffing and puffing and making a real scene. The rest, as they say, is history.

Wolf  The news reporters found out about the two pigs I had for dinner. They figured a sick guy going to borrow a cup of sugar didn’t sound very exciting. So they jazzed up the story with all of that “Huff and puff and blow your house down.” And they made me the Big Bad Wolf.

Narr.  That’s it. The real story.

Wolf  I was framed...but maybe you could loan me a cup of sugar.

Characters: Narrator Pig 3 Wolves

Narrator: Once upon a time there were 3 soft cuddly little wolves who lived with their mother. One day, she sent them out into the world with a warning to beware of the Big Bad Pig.

Narrator: The first house they built was of red and yellow bricks given to them by a kangaroo.

Narrator: The very next day as the 3 little wolves were playing croquet in their garden, a big bad pig came prowling down the road. Remembering their mother’s warning the 3 little wolves ran inside and locked their door.

Pig: Little wolves, little wolves, let me come in!

3 Wolves: No, no, no! By the hair on our chinny-chin-chins, we will not let you in, not for all the tea leaves in our china teapot.

Pig: Then I’ll huff and I’ll puff and I’ll blow your house down!
Narrator: So the pig huffed and he puffed and he puffed and he huffed and the house didn’t fall down. But the pig wasn’t called big and bad for nothing. He went and fetched his sledgehammer, and he knocked the house down.

Narrator: The little wolves decided to build a stronger house. They used buckets and buckets full of messy, slurry concrete from their friend the beaver.

Narrator: The very next day they were playing badminton in the garden when a big bad pig come prowling down the road. Remembering their mother’s warning, the 3 little wolves ran inside and locked the door.

Pig: Little frightened wolves, let me come in!

Wolves: No, no, no! By the hair on our chinny-chin-chins, we will not let you in, not for all the tea leaves in our china teapot.

Pig: Then I’ll huff and I’ll puff and I’ll blow your house down.

Narrator: So the pig huffed and he puffed and he puffed and he huffed, but the house didn’t fall down. But the pig wasn’t called big and bad for nothing. He went and fetched his pneumatic drill and smashed the house down.
Wolves: We shall build an even stronger house!

Narrator: So they built themselves an armored house.

Narrator: The very next day they were playing hopscotch in the garden. This time when they saw the big bad pig coming, they ran inside their house and they locked the door with 37 padlocks.

Pig: Little frightened wolves let me come in!

Wolves: No, no, no! By the hair on our chinny-chin-chins we will not let you come in, not for all the tea leaves in our china teapot.

Pig: Then I’ll huff and I’ll puff and I’ll blow your house down.

Narrator: So he huffed and he puffed and he puffed and he huffed, but the house didn’t fall down. But the pig wasn’t called big and bad for nothing. He bought dynamite and blew it up.

Narrator: So the wolves decided to build a house of flowers. Now when the big bad pig came prowling down the road he saw the house of flowers.

Pig: Little frightened wolves, let me come in!

Wolves: No, no, no! By the hair on our chinny-chin-chins we will not let you come in, not for all the tea leaves in our china teapot.
Narrator: As the big bad pig took a deep breath, he smelled the flowers.
It was fantastic!
So he sniffed deeper and deeper and he grew tender.
Right then, he decided to become a good pig.
He started to sing and dance.

So the 3 little wolves realized the big bad pig had truly changed and they invited him to live with them as long as he wanted.

Narrator 1: Once upon a time it was the custom for the fathers and mothers in China to give their first sons great long names, but second sons were given hardly any name at all.

Narrator 2: In a small mountain village there lived a mother who had two sons. Her second son she called Chang which means little or nothing. Her first and honored son she called Tikki tikki tembo-no sa rembo-chari bari ruchi-pip peri pembo, which means the most wondrous thing in the whole wide world.

Narrator 1: Every morning the mother and her little boys went to wash clothes in a little stream near their home. On the bank was an old well.

Mother: Don’t go near the well or you will surely fall in.

Narrator 2: The mother warned her little boys.
The boys did not always listen to their mother. One day they were playing on the well and Chang fell in.

Tikki tikki tembo-no sa rembo-chari bari ruchi-pip peri pembo ran as fast as his little legs could carry him to his mother.

Most honorable mother, Chang has fallen into the well!

But his mother could not hear him over the roar of the water. So Tikki tikki tembo-no sa rembo-chari bari ruchi-pip peri pembo yelled again over the roar of the water.

Most honorable mother, Chang has fallen into the well!

Run and get the Old Man with The Ladder to fish him out!

So Tikki tikki tembo-no sa rembo-chari bari ruchi-pip peri pembo ran as fast as his little legs could carry him to the Old Man with The Ladder.

Old Man with The Ladder, Chang has fallen into the well. Will you come fish him out?

The Old Man ran as quickly as his old legs could carry him. He went into the well and picked up little Chang. Chang was just as good as ever.
Narrator 2  The two boys stayed away from the well for several months, but after the Festival of the Eighth Moon they ran to the well to eat their rice cakes. This time Tikki tikki tembo-no sa rembo-chari bari ruchi-pip peri pembo fell into the well! Chang ran as fast as his little legs could carry him to his mother and said:

Chang  Most Honorable Mother, Tikki tikki tembo-no sa rembo-chari bari ruchi-pip peri pembo has fallen into the well!

Narrator 2  But the waters roared and his mother could not hear him. He tried again louder, but she still could not hear him. Finally he tried again, but he was so out of breath... he said:

Chang  Honorable Mother, Chari bari rembo tikki tikki pip pip has fallen into the well!

Mother  Unfortunate Son, surely the evil spirits have bewitched your tongue. Speak your brother’s name with reverence.

Chang  Most Honorable Mother, Tikki tikki...tembo-no...sa rembo...chari bari...ruchi pip...peri pembo...is at the bottom of the well!

Narrator 1  His mother told him to run to the Old Man with The Ladder. So he ran as fast as his little legs could carry him. He yelled as loudly as he could that his brother had fallen into the well. But the Old Man was sleeping and could not hear him. He tried again, and finally the Old Man was awakened.
Narrator 1  The Old Man ran with Chang and pulled the little boy from the well. Then he pumped the water out of him and pushed the air into him. But little Tikki tikki tembo-no sa rembo-chari bari ruchi-pip peri pembo had been in the water so long, all because of his great long name. The moon rose many times before he was quite the same again.

Narrator 2  And from that day on the Chinese have always thought it was wise to give all their children little, short names instead of great long names.

The End
A long time ago there was an old man. His name was Peter, and he lived in an old, old house. The bed creaked. The floor squeaked. Outside, the wind blew the leaves through the trees. The leaves fell on the roof. Swish. Swish. The tea kettle whistled. Hiss. Hiss.

Too noisy!

said Peter.

Peter went to see the wise man of the village.

What can I do?
Nar 2  Peter asked the wise man.

Peter  My house makes too much noise. My bed creaks. My floor squeaks. The wind blows the leaves through the trees.

Wise Man  I can help you,

Nar 1  the wise man said.

Wise Man  I know what you can. do.

Peter  What?

Nar 2  said Peter.

Nar 1  Get a cow.

Nar 2  said the wise man.

Peter  What good is a cow?

Cow  Moo. Moo.

Peter          Too noisy!
Nar 1          said Peter.
Nar 2          And he went back to the wise man.
Wise Man       Get a donkey.
Nar 1          said the wise man.
Peter          What good is a donkey’?
Nar 2          said Peter.
Nar 1          But Peter got a donkey anyhow.
Nar 2          The donkey said,
Donkey         Hee-Haw.
Nar 1          The cow said,
Cow            Moo. Moo.
Nar 2          The bed creaked.
The floor squeaked.
The leaves fell on the roof. Swish. Swish.
The tea kettle whistled. Hiss. Hiss.
Peter          Still too noisy,
Nar 1          said Peter.
Nar 2          And he went back to the wise man.
Wise Man       Get a sheep,
Nar 1          said the wise man.
Peter What good is a sheep?
Nar 2 said Peter.
Nar 1 But Peter got a sheep anyhow.
Nar 2 The sheep said,
Sheep Baa. Baa.
Nar 1 The donkey said.,
Donkey Hee-Haw.
Nar 2 The cow said,
Cow Moo. Moo.
Nar 1 The bed creaked.
The floor squeaked.
The leaves fell on the roof. Swish. Swish.
The tea kettle whistled. Hiss. Hiss.
Peter Too noisy!
Nar 2 said Peter.
Nar 1 And he went back to the wise man.
Wise Man Get a hen,
Nar 2 said the wise man.
Peter What good is a hen?
Nar 1 said Peter.
Nar 2 But Peter got a hen anyhow.
Nar 1 The hen said,
Hen Cluck. Cluck.
Nar 2 The sheep said,
Sheep Baa. Baa.
Nar 1 The donkey said,
Donkey Hee-Haw.
Nar 2 The cow said,
Cow Moo. Moo.
Nar 1 The bed creaked.
The floor squeaked.
The leaves fell on the roof. Swish. Swish.
The tea kettle whistled. Hiss. Hiss.
Peter Too noisy!
Nar 2 said Peter.
Nar 1. And he went back to the wise man.
Wise Man Get a dog,
Nar 2 the wise man said.
Wise Man And a cat too.
Peter What good is a dog?
Nar.1 said Peter.
Peter Or a cat?
But Peter got a dog and a cat anyhow.

The dog said,

Woof. Woof.

The cat said,

Mee-ow. Mee-ow.

The hen said,

Cluck. Cluck.

The sheep said,

Baa. Baa.

The donkey said,

Hee-Haw.

The cow said,

Moo. Moo.

The bed creaked.
The floor squeaked.
The leaves fell on the roof. Swish. Swish.
The tea kettle whistled. Hiss. Hiss.

Now Peter was angry.

He went to the wise man.

I told you my house was way too noisy,

he said.
Peter I told you my bed creaks.
My floor squeaks.
The leaves fall on the roof Swish. Swish.
The tea kettle whistles. Hiss. Hiss.

Peter You told me to get a cow. All day the cow says,

Cow Moo. Moo.

Peter You told me to get a donkey. All day the donkey says,

Donkey Hee-Haw.

Peter You told me to get a sheep. All day the sheep says,

Sheep Baa. Baa.

Peter You told me to get a hen. All day the hen says,

Hen Cluck. Cluck.

Peter You told me to get a dog. And a cat. All day long the dog says,

Dog Woof. Woof.

Peter All day the cat says,

Cat Mee-ow. Mee-ow.

Peter I AM GOING CRAZY!!!

Nar 2 said Peter.

Nar 1 The wise man said,
Wise Man  Do what I tell you.
Let the cow go.
Let the donkey go.
Let the sheep go.
Let the hen go.
Let the dog go.
Let the cat go.

Nar 2  So Peter let the cow go.
He let the donkey go.
He let the sheep go.
He let the hen go.
He let the dog go.
He let the cat go.

Nar 1  Now no cow said,

Cow    Moo. Moo.

Nar 2  No donkey said,

Donkey Hee-Haw.

Nar 1  No sheep said,

Sheep  Baa. Baa.

Nar 2  No hen said,

Hen    Cluck. Cluck.

Nar 1  No dog said,

Nar 2  Woof. Woof.

Nar 1  No cat said,

Cat    Mee-ow. Mee-ow.
Nar 2 The bed creaked.
Peter Ah,
Nar 1 said Peter.
Peter What a quiet noise.
Nar 2 The floor squeaked.
Peter Oh,
Nar 1 said Peter.
Peter What a quiet noise
Nar 2 Outside, the leaves fell on the roof. Swish. Swish.
Inside the Tea kettle whistled. Hiss. Hiss.
Peter Ah!
Nar 1 said Peter.
Peter How quiet my house is.
Nar 2 And Peter got into his bed and went to sleep and dreamed a very quiet dream.

(Finally...finally... the quiet, peaceful ending)
Two for Stew

Narrator
Waiter
Woman
Chef
Manager

Waiter: Good evening, Madame. And how do you do?

Woman: I'd like a table, A table for two.

Waiter: I'll bring you a menu In a minute or two.

Woman.: No need to bother. We came for the stew.

Waiter: There is no more stew,

Narrator: I'm sorry to say. We do have some noodles, Will that be okay?
Woman: No, thank you, kind sir, we never touch noodles. They're messy to eat, and not fit for poodles.

Waiter: I think you'd enjoy our ham nuggets and peas.

Woman: Oh, no, thank you, sir, two bowls of stew, please.

Waiter: Look through the menu, won't something else do?

Woman: But we had our hearts set on your world-famous stew. There's nothing quite like it. It's chunky, yet creamy. It tickles our taste buds. It's ever so dreamy.

Manager: I'm really quite sorry, we're all out of stew. A bus load of tourists from Spain just came through. They ate every drop... Oh! what could I do? Had I known you were coming, I'd have saved some for you.

Waiter: The special tonight is a wonderful dish. Oh, please won't you try our gravy and fish?
Woman. Fish makes me seasick. And gives me a rash. The last batch we had Went right in the trash. Can't your chef make some more? Oh, please don't say no. We must taste your stew. One bite and we'll go.

Chef: I'm not the one. Who makes it, you see. His grandmother does, From an old recipe.

Woman: That's why it's so great! We just never knew. Can we go to her house, And ask for some stew?

Narrator: I guess we can go. Said the waiter, surprised.

Waiter: My bike's right out side. Hop in, grab a helmet. I'll give you a ride.

Narrator: The waiter thought to himself, I've never brought guests To Grandma's before. Won't she be surprised When she opens the door!

Waiter: She's a wonderful cook. She bakes a mean strudel.
Woman: Maybe she'll make some
For me and my poodle!

Waiter: Uh-oh, there goes Grandma
In that car at the light.
I forgot that it's Tuesday,
Her big bowling night.

Woman You can't mean it. Bowling?
Then it's no stew for us?

Waiter: I've been trying to tell you,
But you made such a fuss.

Woman: Well, there is one more thing,
One thing you can do:
Follow that grandma!
It's bowling for two!

THE END
Narrator 1 Mrs. Twit did not have a hairy face like her husband. It was a pity she didn’t because that, at any rate, would have hidden some of her fearful ugliness.

Narrator 2 The funny thing is that Mrs. Twit wasn’t born ugly. She’d had quite a nice face when she was young. The ugliness had grown upon her year by year as she got older. Why would that happen?

Narrator 1 If a person has ugly thoughts, it begins to show on the face. And when that person has ugly thoughts every day, every week, every year, the face gets uglier and uglier until it gets so ugly you can hardly bear to look at it.
Narrator 2  A person who has good thoughts cannot ever be ugly. You can have a wonky nose and a crooked mouth and a double chin and stuck-out teeth, but if you have good thoughts they will shine out of your face like sunbeams and you will always look lovely.

Narrator 1  Nothing good shone out of Mrs. Twit’s face. In her right hand she carried a walking stick. She used to tell people that this was because she had warts growing on her left sole of her foot and walking was painful. But the real reason she carried a stick was so that she could hit things with it, things like dogs and cats and small children.

Narrator 2  And then there was the glass eye. Mrs. Twit had a glass eye that was always looking the other way.

Narrator 1  You can play a lot of tricks with a glass eye because you can take it out and pop it back any time you like. You can bet your life Mrs. Twit knew all the tricks.

Narrator 2  One morning she took out her glass eye and dropped it into Mr. Twit’s mug of beer when he wasn’t looking.

Narrator 1  Mr. Twit sat there drinking the beer slowly. The froth made a white ring on the hairs around his mouth. He wiped the white froth onto his sleeve and wiped his sleeve on his trousers.
Mrs. Twit         You’re plotting something!

Narrator 2       Mrs. Twit said... keeping her back turned so he wouldn’t see that she had taken out her glass eye.

Mrs. Twit         Whenever you go all quiet like that I know very well you’re plotting something!

Narrator 1       Mrs. Twit was right. Mr. Twit was plotting away like mad. He was trying to think up a really nasty trick he could play on his wife that day.

Mrs. Twit         You’d better be careful, because when I see you starting to plot, I watch you like a wombat!

Mr. Twit          Oh, do shut up, you old hag!

Narrator 2       He went on drinking his beer, and his evil mind kept working away on the latest trick he was going to play on the old woman.

Narrator 1       Suddenly, as Mr. Twit tipped the last drop of beer down his throat, he caught sight of Mrs. Twit’s awful glass eye staring up at him from the bottom of the mug. It made him jump!

Mrs. Twit         I told you I was watching you. I’ve got eyes everywhere so you’d better be careful.
Narrator 2  They continued to trick and deceive one another for a long time. One day the gas man came to read the meters. He knocked on the door and no one answered. He peered into the unkept residence. He saw only the dead twits.

Narrator 1  Want to know how they died? Easy, just read the book!

The End
"Uh-Oh!" Said the Crow
by Joanne Oppenheim

Adapted for Reader's Theater
by Eileen Sellers

Narrator       Goose       Crow
Cat            Mare        Duck
Sheep          Hog         Donkey
Chicks         Goat        Cow

Nar.           WH0000!
It was a dark and windy night.
In the barn, all the animals were sound asleep.
Just before dawn there was a terrible...

THUD!

Crow           Uh-oh!

Nar.           cawed Crow.

Cat            What was that?

Nar.           mewed Cat.

Crow           I don't know,

Nar.           cawed Crow.
Mare It's up there,
Nar. whinnied Mare.
Nar. As she pointed to the loft, there was another loud THUD!
Crow Uh-oh!
Nar. cawed Crow.
Cat What was that?
Nar. mewed Cat.
Marc It's up there,
Nar. whinnied Mare.
Goose Sounds like spooks!
Nar. honked Goose.
Nar. Now the whistling wind swept around the barn calling WHOOOO! WHOOOOO! And from the loft came the frightening sound of THUD! THUD! THUD!
Crow: Uh-oh!
Nar. cawed Crow.
Goat Might be a ghost!
Nar. bleated Goat.
Cat.    Don't say that!
Nar.    mewed Cat.
Mare    It's up there.
Nar.    whinnied Mare.
Goose   Must be spooks!
Nar.    honked Goose.
Duck    What bad luck!
Nar.    quacked Duck.
Sheep   Go back to sleep!
Nar.    baaed Sheep.
Nar.    But Crow, Goat, Cat, Mare, Goose, and Duck were too scared to sleep. They sat side by side, shaking with fear.
Crow    I know!
        Someone has to go up in the loft to see what's there.
Donkey  I'm afraid!
Nar.    Donkey brayed.
Nar.    Again, the wind cried
        WHOOOO! WHOOOO!
        And a loud and terrible
        THUD! THUD! THUD! rumbled from above.
Nar. (continued) Crow tried to stay calm. But now all the animals in the barn were wide awake and worrying. Crow thought and thought. Finally he had an idea.

Crow Let's draw straws. The one who draws the longest must go up to see what's there.

Hog Not my job!

Nar. grunted Hog.

Chicks Nix! Nix!

Nar. peeped the Chicks.

Cow Not right now!

Nar. mooed Cow.

Duck No such luck,

Nar. quacked Duck.

Donkey I'm afraid!

Nar. Donkey brayed.

Nar. Again the wind howled WHOO! WHOOOO! And something overhead went THUD! THUD! THUMP!
Crow Uh-oh! I guess I know who has to go.

Nar. cawed Crow.

Nar. And saying that, Crow gathered up his courage, spread his wings, and disappeared into the dark loft above.

Hog, Cow, Duck, Donkey, Goat, Mare, Goose, Cat, Sheep, and the Chicks sat as still as stones...waiting and listening.

All at once there was a storm of THUDS and THUMPS and Crow began to caw, Crow: Uh-oh! Oh no!

Nar. And hearing Crow, they all ran for the door-mooing and grunting, baaing and peeping, mewing and braying, honking and bleating. And running outside, they heard the thudding sound as the wind hit the apples that hit the barn that hit the ground!

Nar. And up in the treetop they saw brave Crow jumping on the branches, cawing, Crow Watch out below!

Goat Some ghost,

Nar. bleated Goat.

Goose So much for spooks!

Nar. honked Goose.

Mare Such a scare!
Nar. whinnied Mare.

Duck What good luck!

Nar. quacked Duck.

Crow I saved the show!

Nar. cawed Crow.

Donkey Glad I stayed!

Nar. Donkey brayed.

Sheep Let's eat!

Nar. baaed Sheep.

Cat I'm for that!

Nar. mewed Cat.

Cow Right now!

Nar. mooed Cow.

Hog That's my job!

Nar. grunted Hog.

Chicks First picks!

Nar. peeped the Chicks.
Nar. So all that day and into the night, they munched and crunched apples till the moon turned bright. They munched and crunched apples one by one. They munched and crunched apples until there were none.

THE END
The Vanishing Pumpkin
by Tony Johnston
Adapted for Reader’s Theater
by Cathy Conrad

CHARACTERS:

Narrator 1   Narrator 2   Wizard
Ghoul         Old Man     Old Woman
Varmint       Rapscallion

Narrator 1  There was a 700-year-old woman. There was an 800 year-old man. They were rocking by the fire when the sun came up.

Old Woman  Old, Man, that sun reminds me of something.

Old Man  What?

Old Woman  Pumpkins. And pumpkins remind me of Halloween. And that’s what day it is.

Old Man  Lucky Lizards!!! Fetch the pumpkin we’ve been saving, and let’s make a pumpkin pie.
Narrator 2  The old woman would have done that, but the pumpkin had vanished from sight.

Narrator 1  She looked in the coffeepot.

Narrator 2  No pumpkin.

Narrator 1  She looked in the bed.

Narrator 2  No pumpkin.

Narrator 1  She looked in her purse of magic powders.

Narrator 2  No pumpkin. Not a single one!

Old Woman  Snitched!

Narrator 1  She cried in her 700-year-old voice.

Old Woman  Our Halloween pumpkin’s been snitched!

Old Man  Great Snakes!

Narrator 2  croaked the old man.

Old Man  Who would dare snitch a pumpkin from an 800 year-old-man?

Narrator 1  And they set off down the road.

Narrator 2  They went as fast as a 700 year-old-woman and an 800 year-old-man can. In fact, they fairly flew.

Narrator 1  They met a ghoul perched on a fence.
Narrator 2 The old man flew up and hollered out,

Old Man Ghoul, where is it?

Ghoul Dunno.

Narrator 1 And he didn’t. He didn’t even know what it was.

Old Woman Tell him what it is.

Old Man Our pumpkin. Where is it?

Ghoul Dunno.

Narrator 2 And he began to search for the pumpkin.

Narrator 1 He looked underneath himself.

Narrator 2 He looked behind himself.

Narrator 1 He looked behind the old woman. He looked behind the old man.

Old Man Stop that, or I’ll do you such a trick!

Ghoul Please do.

Narrator 2 So the old man made him thin as an onionskin. And he peered right through him, hoping to find the pumpkin hidden in a sneaky place.

Narrator 1 The old woman clapped.

Everyone CLAP!

Narrator 2 The Ghoul clapped.
Everyone  CLAP!

Narrator 1  Even the old man clapped at that trick.

Everyone  CLAP!

Narrator 2  But they did not find the pumpkin. So the old man made him a normal ghoul again.

Old Man  Oh, where is the pumpkin? I want my pumpkin pie!

Narrator 1  So they set off down the road.

Narrator 2  They went as fast as a 700 year-old-woman and an 800 year-old-man can. In fact, they fairly flew.

Narrator 1  The Ghoul came right behind. He wanted to see more tricks (He wanted some pumpkin pie too).

Narrator 2  They met a rapscallion picking mushrooms.

Narrator 1  The old man flew up and hollered out.

Old Woman  Pumpkin!

Old Man  Exactly! Where is it?

Narrator 2  The rapscallion thought about that. He looked behind a rock.

Narrator 1  No pumpkin.
Narrator 2  He looked under his feet (Which was hard to do)!

Narrator 1  No pumpkin.

Narrator 2  He looked in his mushrooms basket.

Narrator 1  No pumpkin.

Rapscallion  Will a mushroom do?

Old Man  Never! I shan’t eat mushroom pie. It’s pumpkin pie or nothing!

Rapscallion  Then it’s nothing.

Narrator 2  He said grinning.

Old Man  Rapscallion, don’t be fresh with an 800 year-old-man, or I’ll do such a trick!

Rapscallion  Please do.

Narrator 1  So the old man turned him upside down, there between earth and sky, to shake that pumpkin out.

Narrator 2  The old woman clapped.

Everyone  CLAP!

Narrator 1  The ghoul clapped.

Everyone  CLAP!

Narrator 2  The rapscallion clapped.
Everyone  CLAP!

Narrator 1  Even the old man clapped at that fine trick.

Everyone  CLAP!

Narrator 2  But not one single pumpkin fell from the rapscallion. So the old man put him down again.

Old Man  Oh, where is that pumpkin? I want my pumpkin pie!

Narrator 1  So they set off down the road.

Narrator 2  They went as fast as a 700 year-old-woman and an 800 year-old-man can. In fact, they nearly flew.

Narrator 1  The ghoul and the rapscallion came right behind. They wanted to see more tricks (They wanted some pumpkin pie too).

Narrator 2  They met a varmint right then and there.

Narrator 1  The old man flew up and bawled out,

Old Man  Varmint, did you see a pumpkin go by? A big fat one?

Varmint  A great big fat one?

Old Man  YES! YES!

Narrator 2  cried the old man as he jumped up and down.
Varmint  Nope.
Old Man  Wicked! Wicked! Wicked! I’ll do you such a trick for tricking me!
Varmint  Please do.
Narrator 1  So the old man turned him into a black cat and gave him lots of fleas.
Narrator 2  The old woman clapped.
Everyone  CLAP!
Narrator 1  The ghoul clapped.
Everyone  CLAP!
Narrator 2  The rapscallion clapped.
Everyone  CLAP!
Narrator 1  Even the old man clapped at his own trick.
Everyone  CLAP!
Narrator 2  The varmint scratched.
Everyone  SCRATCHED!
Narrator 1  But no matter how he scratched, he never scratched a pumpkin. So the old man brought him back again.
Old Man  Oh, where is that pumpkin? I want my pumpkin pie.
Narrator 2  So they set off.
Narrator 1 They went as fast as a 700 year-old-woman and an 800 year-old-man can. In fact, they nearly flew.

Narrator 2 The ghoul and the rapscallion and the varmint came right behind. They wanted to see more tricks (They wanted some pumpkin pie too).

Narrator 1 They met a 900 year-old-wizard, rocking by a fire as the sun went down.

Narrator 2 The old man flew up and he saw that it was no fire at all.

Narrator 1 It was...the pumpkin, carved into a jack-o’-lantern and grinning from ear to ear.

Narrator 2 The old man felt like yelling. But you don’t yell at a 900 year-old-wizard.

Narrator 1 He might turn you into a lizard.

Wizard I borrowed your pumpkin.

Old Man Snitched!

Wizard Borrowed! For my jack-o’-lantern. Nothing but the best for me!

Old Man Great Grizzlies! I’ll never have my pumpkin pie

Wizard Pie? That reminds me of something.

Old Woman What?
Wizard: Pie reminds me of pie. And when I finished my jack-o’-lantern, that’s what I made for you.

Old Man: WHERE!

Wizard: Oh, dear. It was just here.

Narrator 2: And he began to search for the pumpkin pie.

Narrator 1: He looked inside the jack-o’-lantern.

Narrator 2: No pie.

Narrator 1: He looked under his hat.

Narrator 2: And...there it was (along with a bat).

Narrator 1: So they all sat down and gobbled it up.

Narrator 2: Now...what do you think of that?

THE END
In the light of the moon a little egg lay on a leaf (flashlight)

One Sunday morning the warm sun came up and..

POP! (clap!)

out of the egg came a tiny and...

VERY HUNGRY (said slowly) caterpillar. He started to look for some food. (Hand above eyebrows)

On Monday he ate through one apple, but he...was...still-hungry!

On Tuesday he ate through two pears,

but he...was...still-hungry!...hungry!...hungry!

On Wednesday he ate through three plums,

but he...was...still-hungry!...hungry!...hungry!
N 4: On Thursday he ate through four strawberries,
All: but he...was...still-hungry!...hungry!...hungry!
N 1: On Friday he ate through five oranges,
All: but he...was...still-hungry!...hungry!...hungry!
N 2: (read all italics rapidly)
On Saturday he ate through one piece of chocolate cake,
N 3: one ice-cream cone,
N 4: one pickle,
N 1: one slice of Swiss cheese,
N 2: one slice of salami,
N 3: one lollipop,
N 4: one piece of cherry pie,
N 1: one sausage,
N 2: one cupcake,
N 3: and one slice of watermelon.
N 4: That night he had a...
All: Stomach-ache. (groan and moan)
N 1: The next day was Sunday, again

N 2: The caterpillar ate through one...(pause)...nice...(pause)...green...(pause)...leaf,

N 3: And after that he felt,

All: much better! (Crescendo)

N 1: Now he wasn’t hungry any more - and he wasn’t a little caterpillar any more.

N 2: He was a B I G
N 3: F A T

N 4: Caterpillar.

N 1: He built a small house

N 2: called a cocoon

N 3: around himself.

N 4: He stayed inside for more than two weeks.

N 1: Then he nibbled a hole

N 2: in the cocoon,

N 3: pushed his way out

N 4: and...
All: he was a beautiful... butterfly!

blow his nose,
and... fetch a shoe.
Owner 1: He can... clean the zoo, cut the grass, brush his hair, and... take out the trash! We must show people more because we’re only up to 84.

Owner 2: That’s not all Spot can do. He will... cook the dinner, mop the floor, read a book, and... wash the windows on the back door.

Owners 1 & 2: Now there! That makes 100 words. Our dog will learn those 100 words, and how our friends will cheer! We’ll teach our dog those hundred words not now, but... next year.

THE END
Narrator 1 The night Max wore his wolf suit and made mischief of one kind...

Narrator 2 and another...his mother called him...

Mom WILD THING!!!

Narrator 1 And Max said...

Max I’LL EAT YOU UP!!!

Narrator 2 so he was sent to bed without eating anything. That very night in Max’s room a forest grew.

Narrator 1 and grew...until his ceiling hung with vines and the walls became the world all around.
and an ocean tumbled by with a private boat or Max, and he sailed off through night and day, and in and out of weeks and almost over a year, to where the wild things are.

And when he came to the place where the wild things are, they roared their terrible roars and gnashed their terrible teeth, and rolled their terrible eyes and showed their terrible claws, till Max said...

MAX  BE STILL!!!

...and tamed them with the magic trick of staring into all their yellow eyes without blinking once, and they were frightened and called him the most wild thing of all...

...and made him king of all wild things.

Max  And now...let the wild rumpus start!!!!

Max and the wild things hung from the vines, jumped, danced and paraded all night.

Max  NOW STOP!!

Max sent the wild things off to bed without their supper. And Max, the king of all wild things was lonely and wanted to be where someone loved him best of all.

Then all around from far away across the world he smelled good things to eat, so he gave up being king of where the wild things are.

But the wild things cried...
Wild Thing 1  Oh...please don’t go!!

Wild Thing 2  We’ll eat you up, we love you so!!!

Narrator 2  and Max said...

Max   NO!!

Narrator 1  The wild things roared their terrible roars and gnashed their terrible teeth and rolled their terrible eyes and showed their terrible claws, but Max stepped into his private boat and waved goodbye...

Narrator 2  ...and sailed back over a year and in and out of weeks and through a day and into the night of his very own room where he found his supper waiting for him...

Narrator 1  ...and it was still hot!

Humpty Tom
____________________________________________________

Narrator 1 There is a rhyme we all recall, that tells of Humpty and his fall.

Narrator 2 From the wall he fell headlong, But how did it happen? What went wrong?

Narrator 3 Was Humpty pushed? Was it a crime? We’ll look at the suspects, one at a time.

Narrator 4 First the old woman, who lived in a shoe; she had lots of children - all hungry, too!

Narrator 1 Did she see Humpty, high on the wall, and plan an omelette to feed them all?

All Did she push Humpty?

Narrator 2 Up the hill went Jill with Jack, up to the well at the top of the track.

Narrator 3 Jack fell down and broke his crown, did Jill push Jack and Humpty down?

All Did she push Humpty?
Narrator 4  The Duke of York marched all his men, to the top of the hill and down again.

Narrator 1  And what did that army think of most? Was it Humpty, served on toast?

All  Did they push Humpty?

Narrator 2  There was a little girl, who had a little curl, who could be good, or horrid.

Narrator 3  In a bad temper, late one night, did she push Humpty, out of spite?

All  Did she push Humpty?

Narrator 4  In the dark, Tom ran by, with a squealing pig from a farmer’s sty.

Humpty  “Stop thief!” he cried from the wall.

Tom  “Be quiet.” he hissed, “or you might fall.”

All  Did he push Humpty?

Narrator 1  Or maybe, while alone one night, Humpty saw the strangest sight.

Narrator 2  A cow was jumping over the moon, a dish was running away with a spoon!

Narrator 3  Did Humpty laugh and wobble around? Could this be how he fell to the ground?
All Maybe no one pushed Humpty!

Narrator 4 But someone else we shouldn’t neglect, is little Jack Horner, a prime suspect.

Narrator 1 After pie...all sugar and spice... a simple egg might be quite nice.

All Did he push Humpty?

Narrator 2 And Little Bo Peep, when she lost her sheep, might have grown tired of looking.

Narrator 3 Did she see Humpty on the wall, and begin to think of cooking?

All Did she push Humpty?

Narrator 4 The suspects now have all been named.

Narrator 1 Look at them closely. Who’s to blame?

Narrator 2 You’ll have to guess, ‘cause we won’t tell, how it was that Humpty fell.

Narrator 3 But probably you have a hunch and while you’re thinking...

All ...we’ll have lunch!

Mama  Baby  Narrator 3  Narrator 4

Narrator 1
Mama loved her baby Ben,
Her small and precious child.

Narrator 2
But he always disobeyed her,
he was reckless, loud and wild.

Narrator 3
(said Mama to Baby)

Mama
Don’t use scissors, don’t eat toothpaste,
Don’t go climbing on the shelf,
And don’t go bumping down the staircase,
You are sure to hurt yourself.

Narrator 4
Baby disappeared one morning, when she should have been in bed.
Narrator 1  She found him sleeping soundly, on the wooden clock instead.

Narrator 2  He crept into her room one night, she snored and didn’t hear.

Narrator 3  Softly as the slyest cat, he climbed the chandelier.

Narrator 4  He dangled there until it broke, then hurried out as mama woke.

Narrator 1  He fell into the toilet bowl, and so he had to shout:

Baby  Mama! Hurry! Help! I’m stuck! Please Mama! Get me out!

Narrator 2  Mama rushed in terrified, and quickly pulled him back outside.

Narrator 3  He clambered up the kitchen sink, and dove in for a swim.

Narrator 4  He broke a lot of dishes, Mama really scolded him.

Baby  (to Mama) How come you never let me play!?

Narrator 1  He grumbled as he stormed away.

Narrator 2  He crawled into a big, blue sack, and left without a sound.

Narrator 3  Poor Mama hunted vainly, baby Ben could not be found.
Narrator 4  But late that night, the big blue sack, marched right into the hall.

Baby     Hello! I’m back!

Narrator 1 Mama hugged him sack and all.

Narrator 2 She took him out to get some air, but all at once he wasn’t there.

Narrator 3 She shuddered as a car sped by, and surely was about to cry.

Narrator 4 But then she spied him in a tree, relaxing on a limb.

Narrator 1 She sat below, so when he fell, she softly cushioned him.

Narrator 2 Soon afterward, at lunchtime, baby Ben grew very ill.

Narrator 3 He had spots and dots all over, with a fever and a chill.

Narrator 4 So Mama put her Ben to bed, she held his hand, she stroked his head.

Narrator 1 She kissed his nose, she rubbed his ears, he soon was well, she dried her tears.

Narrator 2 What happy noises then were made, as all that night they danced and played.

Narrator 3 One day she took him for a stroll, they walked and walked for hours.
Narrator 4  And when they reached a grassy knoll, she stooped to gather flowers.

Narrator 1  But as she picked a small bouquet, he tiptoed off and slipped away.

Narrator 2  When Mama saw he wasn’t there, the tears streamed down her face.

Narrator 3  She wept and wept in great despair.

Mama  He’s gone without a trace. I’ll never find him in the wood, my baby Ben is lost for good.

Narrator 4  Then suddenly out popped his head,

Baby  A wolf just licked my face!

Narrator 1  He said.

Baby  I licked him back, he ran away, we won’t see him again today!

Narrator 2  Mama broke into a smile, and hugged him tightly for awhile.

Narrator 3  She bundled home her baby Ben,

All  Of course, he’s since run off again!!!

CLASS CLOWN
by Johanna Hurwitz

CAST

Narrator   Lucas (Third grade boy)   Marius
Mr. Cott (father)  Mrs. Cott (mother)  Louie (barber)
Tony (barber)

Mrs. Cott   I have a wonderful idea.
Narrator   Said Mrs. Cott. Lucas looked at her hopefully.
Mrs. Cott   The boys all need haircuts.
Narrator   She said.
Mrs. Cott   Lucas’s hair is in his eyes and the twins need a good trim too. Let’s all go to the barbershop this afternoon.
Narrator: It wasn’t Lucas’s idea of a wonderful idea at all, but at least it would be more fun if the whole family went.

Mr. Cott: All right.

Narrator: Agreed Mr. Cott.

Mr. Cott: I could use a haircut myself.

Narrator: So they all got into the car and drove to the barbershop. Lucas had been getting his hair cut at the same barbershop ever since he was a small boy. He liked to watch the three barbers at their work. He always wondered if they trimmed one another’s hair at times when there were no customers waiting on the chairs that were lined up against the wall.

Marius: No! No!

Narrator: Said Marius when he recognized where they were going. He didn’t like haircuts.

Lucas: It’s fun, Marius.

Narrator: Lucas lied to his brother.

Marius: No fun!

Narrator: Marius said.

Lucas: I’ll get my hair cut first.
Lucas suggested Lucas.

Then you can watch and see that it doesn’t hurt at all.

A barber named Louie finished trimming the hair of a man who was mostly bald. Lucas wondered what it felt like to be bald. His favorite wrestler was Hairless Hairy, who was so bald that his scalp shone on the television screen.

I like the way Louie cuts my hair.

Mr. Cott whispered to the others.

If you don’t mind, I’ll go first.

Sure.

Said Mrs. Cott.

Then you’ll be able to give me a hand when the twins get their haircuts.

You don’t need any help from me.

Said Lucas’ father.

That’s what the barbers are for.

That’s what you think.

Said Mrs. Cott.

Is this the first time you ever came to the barbershop with the boys?
Narrator  Mr. Cott looked at Marius and Marcus. They had gotten off their chairs and were making little piles out of the hair on the floor.

Louie  Next.

Narrator  Called Louie. He looked very pleased when Mr. Cott got onto his chair. The other two barbers kept looking up from their work to see how far along the other was. One of them would avoid cutting the twin’s hair if he worked slowly enough and Louie finished cutting Mr. Cott’s hair. Finally, the barber named Tony finished working on his customer. He looked anxiously at Mrs. Cott as he said:

Tony  Next.

Lucas  It’s my turn.

Narrator  Said Lucas as he got onto the barber’s chair. Tony smiled at him with delight.

Tony  I like to cut big boys’ hair.

Narrator  He said as he began snipping away. He worked so well that he forgot to stall. Lucas’s hair was finished while Louie was still cutting Mr. Cott’s hair.

Tony  Next.
Narrator      Said Tony. He looked across at the third barber. He was cutting one hair at a time.

Mrs. Cott    All right, Marcus, It’s your turn.

Narrator    Said Mrs. Cott. Marcus looked up from the floor where he was still sitting.

Marcus      No haircut!

Narrator    He said.

Lucas        It’s fun.

Narrator    Said Lucas.

Lucas        I just had mine cut. Now it’s your turn.

Mr. Cott     Go ahead, Marcus.

Narrator    Called Mr. Cott from a damp towel which the barber had placed over his face.

Marcus      No!

Narrator    Marcus howled.

Marius       No?
Narrator: Marius howled too. Mrs. Cott lifted Marcus up and put him onto the special seat that Tony had put on top of his chair. It had a steering wheel and was meant to look like a car.

Marcus: No! No! No!

Narrator: Howled Marcus, and he kept shaking his head so much that Tony was afraid to come near him with the scissors.

Tony: I don’t want to cut your boy.

Narrator: He explained to Lucas’ mother.

Mrs. Cott: That’s all right.

Narrator: Said Mrs. Cott.

Mrs. Cott: He’ll settle down in a minute.

Marcus: No! No! No!

Narrator: Screamed Marcus. From the floor came an echoing howl from Marius.

Tony: Come back next week.

Narrator: Said Tony.

Tony: Not today.

Mrs. Cott: No, we’re here now and you’re not busy either.
Narrator  Said Mrs. Cott.

Tony  I can’t cut the hair of a boy who jumps so much.

Narrator  Said Tony.

Lucas  Wait!

Narrator  Said Lucas.

Lucas  I’ll help you.

Narrator  Lucas went over to Tony’s chair and locked his arm around Marcus’s neck and shoulder. He pressed his brother against the chair in the best head lock he had ever done.

Lucas  Okay. Cut away!

Narrator  He instructed Tony. The barber waited a moment to see if the little boy was going to break out of the hold. But Marcus didn’t resist. He stayed still the way he always did when Lucas wrestled with him at home.

Tony  I think this will work.

Narrator  Said Tony, nodding his head, and quickly began to cut.

Lucas  See, it’s fun!
Narrator: Lucas insisted as he held Marcus in place. Some of Marcus’s hair fell onto Lucas’s face as the barber cut. But Lucas knew better than to let go of Marcus to wipe his face.

Marius: My turn! My turn!

Narrator: Marius began to cry. He had been watching them.

Mrs. Cott: You’re next.

Narrator: His mother promised him. Tony worked fast. Soon, Marcus’s hair was quite short. Tony helped him down from the chair and picked up Marius.

Tony: Don’t go away!

Narrator: He called to Lucas.

Lucas: Don’t worry.

Narrator: Said Lucas.

Lucas: I know a lot of holds.

Marius: My turn!

Narrator: Marius shouted triumphantly. Lucas reached behind the chair and shot his arms through his brother’s.

Lucas: This is the double chicken-wing. I just learned how to do it this morning.
Narrator He explained.

Tony It works well.

Narrator Said Tony, snipping away. The third barber finished with his customer. He stood back and relaxed as he watched Tony cutting Marius’s hair. Louie finished cutting Mr. Cott’s hair, too. Mr. Cott paid the bill for four haircuts.

Mr. Cott See.

Narrator He said to his wife.

Mr. Cott There’s nothing to it.

THE END
Narr 1 was walking through the forest one day, humming proudly to himself. He had made up a little hum that very morning, as he was doing his ‘Stoutness Exercises’ in front of the glass:

Pooh Tra-la-la, tra-la-la

Narr 1 as he stretched up as high as he could go, and then...
Pooh  Tra-la-la, tra-la-la, help-la

Narr 1  as he tried to reach his toes. After breakfast he had said it over and over to himself until he had learnt it off by heart, and now he was humming it right through, properly. It went like this:

Pooh  Tra-la-la, tra-la-la
     Tra-la-la, tra-la-la,
     Rum-tum-tiddle-um-tum
     Tiddle-iddle, tiddle, iddle,
     Tiddle-iddle, tiddle-iddle,
     Rum-tum-tum-tiddle-um.

Narr 2  Well, he was humming this hum to himself, and walking along qaily, wondering what everybody else was doing, and what it felt like, being somebody else, when suddenly he came to a sandy bank, and in the bank was a large hole.

Pooh  A-ha! If I know anything about anything, that hole means Rabbit. And Rabbit means Company. And Company means Food and Listening-to-Me-Humming and such like. Rum-tum-tum-tiddle-um.

Narr 1 and

Pooh  Is anybody at home?
Narr 2  There was a sudden scuffling noise from inside the hole, and then silence.
Pooh   What I said was, ‘Is anybody at home?’
Rabbit NO!
Narr 1  said a voice, and then added:
Rabbit You needn’t shout so loud. I heard you quite well the first time.
Pooh   Bother! Isn’t there anybody here at all?
Rabbit Nobody.
Narr 2  Winnie-the-Pooh took his head out of the hole, and thought for a little, and he thought to himself
Pooh   There must be somebody there, because somebody must have said, ‘nobody.’
Narr 1  So he put his head back in the hole
Pooh   Hallo, Rabbit, isn’t that you?
Rabbit No!
Narr 1  said Rabbit, in a different sort of voice this time.
Pooh   But isn’t that Rabbit’s voice?
Rabbit I don’t think so. It wasn’t meant to be.
Pooh   Oh!
Narr 1 said Pooh. He took his head out of the hole, and had another think, and then he put it back, and said

Pooh Well, could you very kindly tell me where Rabbit is?

Rabbit He has gone to see his friend Pooh Bear, who is a great friend of his.

Pooh But this is me.

Rabbit What sort of Me?

Pooh Pooh Bear

Rabbit Are you quite sure?

Narr 2 said Rabbit, still more surprised

Pooh Quite, quite sure

Rabbit Oh, well, then, come in.

Narr 1 So Pooh pushed and pushed and pushed his way through the hole, and at last he got it.

Rabbit You were quite right.

Narr 2 said Rabbit, looking at him all over.

Rabbit It is you. Glad to see you.

Pooh Who did you think it was?
Rabbit: Well, I wasn’t sure. You know how it is in the Forest. One can’t have anybody coming into one’s house. One has to be careful. What about a mouthful of something?

Narr 1: Pooh always liked a little something at eleven o’clock in the morning, and he was very glad to see Rabbit getting out the plates and mugs, and when Rabbit said

Rabbit: Honey or condensed milk with your bread?

Narr 2: He was so excited that he said

Pooh: BOTH!

Narr 1 added: And then, so as not to seem so greedy, he Pooh: but don’t bother about the bread, please.

Narr 2: And for a long time after that he said nothing... until at last, humming to himself in a rather sticky voice, he got up, shook Rabbit lovingly by the paw, and said that he must be going on.

Rabbit: Must you?

Narr 1: said Rabbit politely

Pooh: Well, I could stay a little longer if it-if you-

Narr 2: And he tried very hard to look in the direction of the larder.

Rabbit: As a matter of fact, I was going out myself directly.
Pooh  Oh, well, then, I’ll be going on. Good-bye.

Rabbit Well, good-bye, if you’re sure you won’t have any more.

Pooh  Is there any more?

Narr 1 asked Pooh quickly. Rabbit took the covers off the dishes, and said, ‘No, there wasn’t.’

Pooh  I thought not.

Narr 2 said Pooh, nodding to himself.

Pooh  Well, good-bye. I must be going.

Narr 1 So he started to climb out of the hole. He pulled with his front paws, and pushed with his back paws, and in a little while his nose was out in the open again...

Narr 2 and then his ears.

Narr 1 and then his front paws...

Narr 2 and then his shoulders.

Narr 1 and then

Pooh  Oh help! I’d better go back. OH bother, I shall have to go on. I can’t do either. OH HELP AND BOTHER!!!

Narr 2 Now by this time Rabbit wanted to go for a walk too, and finding the front door full, he went out by the back door, and came round to Pooh, and looked at him. He asked,
Rabbit Hallo, are you stuck?

Pooh N-No, just resting and thinking and humming to myself.

Rabbit Here, give us a paw.

Narr 1 Pooh bear stretched out a paw, and Rabbit pulled and pulled and pulled...

Pooh Ow! You’re hurting!

Rabbit The fact is, you’re stuck.

Pooh It all comes,

Narr 2 said Pooh crossly

Pooh of not having front doors big enough

Rabbit It all comes

Narr 1 said Rabbit sternly

Rabbit of eating too much. I thought at the time

Narr 2 said Rabbit

Rabbit only I didn’t like to say anything, that one of us was eating too much. And I knew it wasn’t me. Well, well then, I shall go and fetch Christopher Robin.

Narr 1 Christopher Robin lived at the other end of the Forest, and when he came back with Rabbit, and saw the front half of Pooh, he said,

Chris (lovingly) ‘Silly old bear’
Narr 2 in such a loving voice that everybody felt quite hopeful again.
Pooh I was just beginning to think
Narr 1 said Bear, snifffing slightly
Pooh that Rabbit might never be able to use his front door again. And I should hate that.
Rabbit So should I.
Chris Use his front door again? Of course he’ll use his front door again!
Rabbit Good.
Chris If we can’t pull you out Pooh, we might push you back.
Narr 1 Rabbit stretched his whiskers thoughtfully, and pointed out that, when once Pooh was pushed back, he was back, and of course nobody was more glad to see Pooh than he was, still there it was, some lived in trees and some lived underground, and-Pooh You mean I’d never get out?
Rabbit I mean...that having got so far, it seems a pity to waste it.
Narr 2 Christopher Robin nodded.
Chris Then there’s only one thing to be done. We shall have to wait for you to get thin again.
Pooh How long does getting thin take?
Chris: About a week, I should think.

Pooh: But I can’t stay here for a week.

Chris: You can stay here all right, silly old Bear. It’s getting you out which is so difficult.

Rabbit: We’ll read to you.

Narr 2: said Rabbit cheerfully.

Rabbit: And I hope it won’t snow. And I say, old fellow, you’re taking up a good deal of room in my house...do you mind if I use your back legs as a towel horse? Because, I mean, there they are...doing nothing...and it would be very convenient just to hang the towels on them.

Pooh: A week! What about meals?

Chris: I’m afraid no meals, because of getting thin quicker. But we will read to you.

Narr 1: Bear began to sigh, and then found he couldn’t because he was so tightly stuck, and a tear rolled down his eye, as he said:

Pooh: Then would you read a Sustaining Book, such as would help and comfort a Wedged Bear in Great Tightness?

Narr 2: So for a week Christopher Robin read that sort of book at the North end of Pooh, Narr 1: and Rabbit hung his washing on the South end...

Narr 2 and in-between Bear felt himself getting slenderer and slenderer. And at the end of the week Christopher Robin said

Narr 1 So he took hold of Pooh’s front paws and Rabbit took hold of Christopher Robin, and all Rabbit’s friends and relations took hold of Rabbit, and they all pulled together...

Narr 2 And for a long time Pooh only said:

Pooh OW! OH!

Narr 1 And then all of a sudden, he said:

Pooh POP!

Narr 1 just as if a cork were coming out of a bottle.

Narr 2 And Christopher Robin and Rabbit and all Rabbit’s friends and relations went head over heels backwards…and on top of them came Winnie-the-Pooh-free!

Narr 1 So, with a nod of thanks to his friends, he went on with his walk through the forest, humming proudly to himself. But Christopher Robin looked after him lovingly, and said to himself

Chris ‘Silly old Bear!’

WITH HIS MOUTH FULL OF FOOD
by Shel Silverstein

Adapted for Reader’s Theater by Susie Marsick

Narrator 1  Father
Narrator 2  Milford Dupree
Mother

N-1 Milford Dupree, though he knew it was rude, always talked with his mouth full of food.

N-2 He never would burp or walk out in the nude, But he always talked with his mouth full of food.

N-1 His mother said,

Mother Get married or go get tattooed,
But don’t talk with you mouth full of food. If it was a crime you would surely get sued,
If you talked with your mouth full of food.
Why, just ask an animal, you should be zoo’d,
As you talk with your mouth full of food.
For you know we’re all put in a terrible mood,
When you talk with you mouth full of food.
His dad said,

Father  Milford, it’s crude and it’s lewd,
To talk with your mouth full of food.
Why even the cow who moo’d as she chewed,
Never moo’d with her mouth full of food.
And the cuckoo would never have ever cuckoo’d,
If he coo’d with his mouth full of food.

Mother  We plead!

Father  And we beg!

But Milford just giggled and chewed and laughed,
With his mouth full of food.

And all they advised him, he simply poo po’d.
He po po’d with his mouth full of food.

So they called the gluer.

We need his mouth glued so he cannot talk,
With his mouth full of food.

Now instead of ‘Good morning!’ he says,

Gnu murnood, I wun tuk mny marf furu foog.

The Year Mom Won the Pennant by Matt Christopher
adapted for Reader’s Theater
by Michael Bokovitz

Characters:

Narrator Scotty    Jabber Kane    Nick

Jabber    Hey, look who’s here! Nick, I heard your Mom is coaching the Thunderbirds!
Narrator    Jabber was one kid with the perfect nickname.
Nick    So what?
Narrator    Said Nick. The kid with Jabber was Steve Dale. Both boys played with the Clowns. Jabber laughed as they approached.
Jabber    Who ever heard of a woman coaching a boy’s baseball team?
Nick    What difference does it make?
Narrator    Snapped Nick.
Nick She probably knows more about baseball than your whole bunch of Clowns put together.

Narrator Jabber’s wide smile showed large teeth in front, teeth that Nick felt like knocking down Jabber’s skinny throat.

Jabber I can’t wait till we play you guys! I can picture your Mom yelling from the dugout (in a female-like voice). “Come on, boys! Don’t slide unless you have to! You mustn’t get your pants dirty!” (Jabber’s own loud voice): Ha!

Narrator The guys laughed. Including Scotty and Jerry. Nick saw red. He squared his jaw and went after Jabber, his fist clenched. Jabber whisked around on his skate board and sped off down the sidewalk, his laughing trailing after him.

Scotty Forget it, he’s only kidding.

Nick I know. But I don’t like it. I hope that when we play those Clowns we’ll beat them twenty to nothing!

Narrator What he really wished was that someone else were coaching the Thunderbirds. Someone else, not Mom.

The Zax
by Dr. Seuss
Adapted for Reader’s Theater
by Michelle McNamara

Narrator 1
Narrator 2
North-Going Zax
South-Going Zax

Narrator 1
One day, making tracks
In the prairie of Prax,
Came a North-going Zax
And a South-Going Zax.

Narrator 2
And it happened that both of them came to a place where they bumped.
There they stood.
Foot to foot. Face to face.

North-Going Zax
Look here, now! I say!
You are blocking my path.
You are right in my way.
I’m a North-Going Zax and I always go north.
Get out of my way, now, and let me go forth!

South-Going Zax
Who’s in whose way?
Narrator 1 snapped the South-Going Zax.

South-Going Zax I always go south, making south-going tracks. So you’re in MY way! And I ask you to move, And let me go south, in my south-going groove.

Narrator 2 Then the North-Going Zax, puffed his chest up with pride.

North-Going Zax I never ever take a step to one side. And I’ll prove to you that, I won’t change my ways, If I have to keep standing here, fifty-nine days!

South-Going Zax And I’ll prove to YOU.

Narrator 1 yelled the South-Going Zax.

South-Going Zax That I can stand here, in the prairie of Prax, For fifty-nine years! For I live by a rule, That I learned as a boy, back in South-Going School. Never budge! That’s my rule. Never budge in the least! Not an inch to the west! Not an inch to the east! I’ll stay here, not budging! I can and I will, If it makes you and me, and the whole world stand still!
Well...
Of course the world didn’t stand still. The world grew.
In a couple of years, the new highway came through.
And they built it right over, those two stubborn Zax.
And left them there, standing un-budged in their tracks.
